ROOSEVELT ASKS POWER TO REOPEN SOUND BANKS

Today

Co-education.
A Great University.
The Girl Can Choose.
Breaking a Steel Bar.

—By ARTHUR BRISBANE—

GALLUP, N. M., March 9.

TRAVELING BACK toward the Atlantic through Chicago, Detroit and other powerful, troubled cities, you leave many wonders and hopes for the future on the great American empire that stretches along the Pacific Coast.

The giant ocean that nothing troubles is there, wealth unlimited in the soil, the groves, oil wells, gold mines and the brilliant sun that produces them all.

Greatest of all in purpose, hope for the future, is the University of California, with its 25,000 young students, earnest devoted teachers, and brilliant corps of scientists, constantly working in their laboratories to attain greater prosperity, happiness, safety and power for the human race.

JOHN FRANCIS NEYLAN, distinguished successful lawyer of San Francisco, also a regent of the University of California, a job that brings him nothing but honor and arouses his deepest interest, undertakes in two days, one on each side of the great Bay of San Francisco to show you one per cent of one per cent of what the University of California is doing.

MR. NEYLAN'S formula for this country and the outside world is simple:

The United States is the greatest country in the world. California is the greatest state in this country. San Francisco is the greatest city in California or anywhere else on earth, and the University of California is the culminating glory of this planet, the universe in which it rolls, and the distant unseen nebula-universes also, for that matter.

For that plain statement of facts, as he calls it, Mr. Neylan will argue or fight, preferably both.

HEADQUARTERS of the university, in Berkeley on the eastern side of the Bay of San Francisco, is beautifully located on the side of a great mountain. A tall white tower stands amid innumerable buildings, schools, administration buildings, laboratories, a multitude of fraternity and sorority houses, gymnasiums, swimming pools and giant stadium.

These include a very complete "mining building" erected by the late Phoebe A. Hearst in memory of her husband, Senator George Hearst, for the training of mining engineers and for information of those in search for gold or other precious metals.

They include also an admirable gymnasium and swimming tank, built in memory of his mother, by W. R. Hearst, who was born in this state, and has sent sons to California's state university.

The whole is under the direction of Robert Gordon Sproul, B. S., LL. D., a learned man and a very able administrator supervising all branches of the university spreading far over the state, including the University of California at Los Angeles with its seven thousand students.

CONCERNING THIS university, Daniel Coit Gilman, who was president fifty-one years ago, made this preliminary and thoroughly American statement:

"The charter and the name declare that this is the University of California. It is not the University of Berlin or New Haven which we are to copy; it is not the University of Oakland or San Francisco which we are to create; but it is the university of this state.

"It must be adapted to this people, to their public and private schools, to their peculiar geographical position, to the requirements of their new society and undeveloped resources. It is of the people and for the people."

You could not do better than send your boy or girl to a university that has lived up admirably to this declaration of purpose.

SOME, BACKWARD, will ask:

"But does co-education, bringing young men and women together in the university, not result in too hasty marriages?"

The answer is simple:

"One marriage out of every six in the United States ends in divorce, while f marriages brought about at co-educational institutions, not more than one in seventy-five results in failure."

Co-educational marriages are therefore more than twelve hundred per cent more successful than the average.

STUDYING FOR three or four years beside the young man of her choice, a girl knows what he amounts to, need no take his word for it. She knows how well he studies, whether or not he is good at athletics, which is not important, whether he is a good loser and not a braggart when he wins, which is very important.

A girl attending the University of California sees a thousand young men and more she can choose.

ALL THIS, says John Francis Neylan, believing that a regent of the university should com-

KING ASKED TO QUIT BY PINCHOT

By MARK SHIELDS

Gov. Pinchot demanded today that Dr. Clyde L. King resign as chairman of the Public Service Commission.

The Governor said:

"Dr. King's usefulness as chairman of the Public Service Commission is at an end. Dr. King's name is now before the Senate for confirmation or rejection. A decision of the Supreme Court prevents me from withdrawing it. Neither can I command his resignation. If I could, his unexplained change of attitude would leave me no other choice but to do so."

The Governor's startling repudiation of his friend of years' standing followed King's refusal to interpret and amplify testimony he gave before the Senate Utilities Investigating Committee two weeks ago, which was seized upon in many quarters as an invitation to the committee to cease the inquiry into alleged utility extortion and alleged corruption touching the D. S. C. which had been forced by Mr. Pinchot.

FOLLOWS EATON MOVE

The action of the Governor followed close on the heels of a demand by O. K. Eaton, who resigned as counsel for the Senate Committee, that King quit.

The Governor commended the work of the Public Service Commission since King became its chairman last October.

"Any one who opposes a full investigation of the public utilities and their past relations to the Public Service Commission

Shaw, Jap Premier Argue Over Wine

TOKIO, March 9.—(INS.)—After a three-day visit here, George Bernard Shaw, British dramatist, left today to complete the world cruise that will take him to the United States.

Before leaving, he discussed longevity with Premier Makato Saito. They disagreed when the Premier told Shaw he had not found wine, meat and tobacco a hinderance to attainment of old age.

Daniels May Head Large, New 'Bureau'

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP.)—Josephus Daniels, of North Carolina, Secretary of the Navy during the Wilson administration, was understood in informed circles today to be slated for chairmanship of a new government group to include the Interstate Commerce Commission, the Shipping Board and the aeronautics branch of the Commerce Department.

Text of Roosevelt's Message

To the Senate and House of Representatives:

On March 3 banking operations in the United States ceased. To review at this time the causes of this failure of our banking system is unnecessary. Suffice it to say that the government has been compelled to step in for the protection of depositors and the business of the nation.

Our first task is to reopen all sound banks. This is an essential preliminary to subsequent legislation directed against speculation with the funds of depositors and other violations of position of trust.

In order that the first objective—the opening of banks for the resumption of business—may be accomplished, I ask of the Congress the immediate enactment of legislation giving to the executive branch of the government control over banks for the protection of depositors; authority forthwith to open such banks as have already been ascertained to be in sound condition and other such banks as rapidly as possible; and authority to reorganize and reopen such banks as may be found to require reorganization to put them on a sound basis.

I ask amendments to the Federal Reserve act to provide for such additional currency, adequately secured, as it may become necessary to issue to meet all demands for currency and at the same time to achieve this end without increasing the unsecured indebtedness of the government of the United States.

I cannot too strongly urge upon the Congress the clear necessity for immediate action. A continuation of the strangulation of banking facilities is unthinkable. The passage of the proposed legislation will end this condition and I trust within a short space of time will result in a resumption of business activities.

In addition, it is my belief that this legislation will not only lift immediately all unwarranted doubts and suspicions in regard to banks which are 100 per cent sound, but will also mark the beginning of a new relationship between the banks and the people of this country.

The members of the new Congress will realize, I am confident, the grave responsibility which lies upon me and upon them.

In the short space of five days it is impossible for us to formulate complete measures to prevent the recurrence of the evils of the past. This does not and should not, however, justify any delay in accomplishing this first step.

At an early moment I shall request of the Congress two other measures which I regard as of immediate urgency. With action taken thereon we can proceed to the consideration of a rounded program of national restoration.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT.

The White House,

REORGANIZE OTHERS, INCREASE CURRENCY, PRESIDENT'S PLAN

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP.)—In a few crisp words, President Franklin D. Roosevelt urged the specially convened Congress today to empower him immediately to open "sound" banks, to reorganize other banks and to provide currency expansion.

Spurred by his call for "immediate action," Senate and House alike set about writing into law a revision of banking statutes among the most extensive in history.

Even while his brief message was being read to crowded galleries in both chambers, the highest financial and legislative authorities were at work behind locked doors putting the finishing touches on the all-embracing bill.

As advocated by the President, it would give him sweeping authority over banking and gold movements in any emergency.

It would permit only "sound banks" to reopen at once, those unable to show conclusively their soundness being administered during reorganization by government "conservators."

The stockholders and the Comptroller of the Currency would have to join in approving the reorganization before the bank could be turned back to its board of directors.

THRONGS IN GALLERIES

Throngs were gathered in the galleries to hear the Presidential message read, while he remained at work at his White House desk. The President declared:

"Our first task is to reopen all sound banks.

"I ask of the Congress the immediate enactment of legislation giving to the executive branch of the government control over banks for the protection of depositors; authority forthwith to open such banks as have already been ascertained to be in sound condition and other such banks as rapidly as possible; and authority to reorganize and reopen such banks as may be found to require reorganization to put them on a sound basis.

"I ask amendments to the Federal Reserve act to provide for such additional currency, adequately secured, as it may become necessary to issue to meet all demands for currency and, at the same time, to achieve this end without increasing the unsecured indebtedness of the government of the United States.

"I can not too strongly urge upon the Congress the clear necessity for immediate action."

VET RELIEF CUT

He revealed, also, that he soon will request Congress to enact two other measures "of immediate urgency"—proposals believed in Democratic ranks at the Capitol to be power to reduce government

WALKER'S WIFE SEEKS DIVORCE

MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—(INS.)—Janet Allen Walker, wife of former Mayor James J. Walker, of New York, today filed suit for absolute divorce.

Mrs. Walker charged that he left her on October 15, 1928, taking a residence in a hotel and leaving their home, and that he has since refused to live with her as husband and wife.

The suit was filed in the Dade County Circuit Court.

Mrs. Walker charged desertion to the former Mayor in alleging Walker left her "despite her pleas to the contrary."

She charged in her petition:

Girls Link 'School' With Wild Parties

HOLLYWOOD, March 9.—(INS.)—Startling stories of "wild parties," which girl students of a "modeling school.. were urged to attend to "earn extra money," were under investigation today by police following the arrest of Marie Fontayne, 24, head of the "school." Miss Fontayne was held on a charge of suspicion of grand theft and bunco.

Edna Baker, one of the prospective "models," declared young girls nearly nude danced for the entertainment of stag party guests.

Bank Bill Highlights

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP.)—A brief, authoritative description of the emergency banking bill follows:

1—Validation of all emergency decrees and proclamations of the President and Secretary of the Treasury.

2—Re-enactment of sections of the old wartime trading with the enemy act, to prevent hoarding and to control gold reserves in the United States.

3—Grant to the federal government of power to control all national banks; state banks, through state banking commissioners; provision for prompt reorganization of non-liquid banks, and closure of non-liquid banks for the present.

4—Authorization for the Reserve Board to issue Federal Reserve bank notes, through reserve banks, against obligations of the United States, notes of corporations, partnerships or individuals secured by United States obligations and against notes of member banks when secured by sound assets.

5—Immediate reopening of liquid banks.

This was the interpretation of a Senator who had studied the bill, but was not an administration explanation.

BANKERS HERE SCAN F. R. PLAN

Bankers here today held a series of conferences, culminating with a meeting of the Clearing House Association, to discuss the provisions of the President's message to Congress.

While opinion was slow to crystallize, the general trend seemed to be one of unqualified approval of the message, with its request for prompt reopening of sound banks under a federal guarantee of liquidity.

Meanwhile, it was thought probable that the use of scrip would not be resorted to by Pittsburgh on the ground that the currency to be issued, if Congress approves, would meet the emergency.

SECURED SCRIP

The scrip was definitely ordered by the Clearing House Tuesday, after a report from a certificate committee recommended a plan modeled on that of New York City, providing for secured scrip issued by an administrative clearing house committee.

Treasury Secretary Woodin announced from Washington yesterday that scrip was banned in favor of a Federal Reserve bank note issue, ubt he later modified the ruling to allow local clearing houses to issue the new certificate paper where emergencies exist.

Bank Bill Before Senate

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP.)—The administration's drastic banking revision bill was introduced in the Senate at 1:40 p. m. today by Senator Fletcher (Dem.), Florida, new chairman of the Banking Committee.

The measure, providing for a controlled expansion of the currency and for approval of all of President Roosevelt's orders taken during the bank holiday, was referred immediately to the Banking Committee.

Senator Glass, of Virginia, who redrafted the bill in conference with Chairman Steagall, of the House Banking Committee and Treasury officials, said some "very important" changes would be made.

NORBECK OBJECTS

As Fletcher moved to refer the bill to the committee, Senator Norbeck (Rep.), of South Dakota, who has been chairman under the Republican regime, said he would not object to the action, but that he deemed rushing a banking bill through "unwise." He asked:

"Will you meet tomorrow?"

Fletcher replied:

The Senate then recessed for 15 minutes without discussing the emergency banking bill, to give its Banking Committee time to get together and consider the measure, and at 2:20 the Senate adjourned until 4:30 to permith the committee to conclude its work.

MUSCLE SHOALS BILL

Meanwhile a bill described as representing in general President Roosevelt's plans for a gigantic improvement project in the Tennessee Valley was introduced by Senator Norris (Rep.), Nebraska.

The measure calls for government operation of Muscle Shoals, extensive improvement on the Tennessee River and reforestation of submarginal land in that area.

Plans for such a project, intended to aid the employment situation and provide for a long-range public works program, were outlined by Roosevelt several weeks ago at Warm Springs, Ga.

The bill was referred to the Agricultural Committee.

PARK COMBATS KLINE APPEAL

District Attorney Andrew T. Park today gave the Supreme Court his reasons why the case of Mayor Kline should be sent back to the Superior Court. The Mayor, having been refused a new trial and sentenced to six months in jail by the lower courts, has appealed to the Supreme Court—an appeal which, if successful, would delay the Mayor's removal from office until at least October.

Park contended that the rule which gives the Supreme Court power to act on cases in which public officers are removed does not apply in this case. The Mayor's removal is simply incidental to the conviction of a misdemeanor, the prosecutor argued in a brief filed today.

Parole for Succop Sought by Petition

A petition asking Judge Thomas D. Finletter to parole Bertram L. Succop was being circulated among Succop's friends and businessmen on the South Side today. The petition describes him as "a victim of circumstances." Succop, former city purchasing agent, was convicted with Mayor Kline at Butler.

RAINEY MAKES HARMONY PLEA

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP.)—Assuming the Speakership of the new Congress, Representative Henry T. Rainey, of Illinois, told the House that "today we are engaged in another war—more serious in its character and presenting greater dangers to the republic" than the World War.

The white-haired veteran of many Congressional battles said the country was undergoing a rebirth, and would emerge happier and more prosperous in "the new era which now dawns." He said, appealing to Republicans to cooperate:

"We are going to call on the entire membership of the House to support the relief measures which will again be suggested by a Democratic administration.

"In the serious business which is ahead of us, we are already assured that back of us are the people of the entire United States, exhibiting a patience and fortitude in the midst of their difficulties unparalleled in the history of this or any other nation."

Grove City Ousts Stars —After Losing Game

GROVE CITY, Pa., March 9.—Five leading athletes who certainly can't be pleased with the prospects of finding jobs were expelled from Grove City College today, while the campus buzzed with stories of an hilarious fraternity initiation.

The initiation was staged by Pan Sophic, a social fraternity, a week ago, but a "grand jury" composed of the faculty didn't expel the athletes immediately not until after the basketball team had lost to its ancient foe, Westminster, by a 36-26 score.

Dr. Weir C. Ketler, president of the college, refused to comment on the expulsion.

Mrs. Roosevelt Knits While Watching House

By DOROTHY DUCAS
International News Service.

WASHINGTON, March 9.—With galleries jammed and a hushed expectancy not unlike war days hovering over the entire membership, as the House of Representatives today convened for the special session of the Seventy-third Congress, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt sat in the presidential gallery placidly knitting.

Three minutes before the House was called to order Mrs. Roosevelt entered the President's gallery, took off her coat and hat and "settled down to work." At least it was a businesslike face the first lady of the land turned toward the mobile floor, where five women sat as members of Congress.

The President's wife wore a sealskin coat, dark skirt and white silk blouse, and unlike the women members, she wore no gloves. As soon as she had seated herself she pulled out her knitting and something white and woolly—which she began working upon.

Accompanying her were her son, James; her secretary, Miss Nancy Cook, partner in Mrs. Roosevelt's furniture business; Mrs. Henry Morgenthau, wife of the new Farm Board head, and Miss Marguerite Lehand, the President's secretary.

While the roll was being called, Mrs. Roosevelt wound yarn. One of her friends held the skein on two outstretched hands.

ROOSEVELT REQUESTS POWER TO REOPEN SOUND BANKS

'CONTROLLED' EXPANSION OF CURRENCY ASKED BY PRESIDENT

costs, including veterans' funds; and to provide $500,000,000 or so for public projects to spur employment.

House leaders said that a $500,000,000 public works program including the development of Muscle Shoals and the Columbia basin project was a part of the emergency program which President Roosevelt would send to Congress later.

Speaker-Designate Rainey said the administration banking bill, authorizing a new issuance of treasury currency on the basis of government bonds, would be brought up and passed in the House immediately.

Preparation for similar speed was being made in the Senate.

Mr. Rainey said:

"The bill is very involved, and government bonds only will be the security for currency.

"Any individual, bank or corporation would have the right to tender government bonds to the Treasury and take away currency.

The currency would be a new issue entirely. The extent of the issue would be controlled by the Treasury. The maximum that the issue could reach would be $11,000,000,000, but it will not go that high."

He said the plan would not add to the government's debt.

The banking bill was nine printed pages long.

The fact that the administration proposal was quite lengthy strengthened the belief that it would have to go through the routine of committee consideration first.

They may delay final action a little, but both Republican and Democratic leaders have pledged themselves to push it through without undue postponement.

Senator Glass in the Senate and Representative Byrns in the House sponsored the banking bill, aiming if possible to get it to the White House by tonight. This, it was believed, would enable bank reopenings tomorrow.

Weeks ago President Roosevelt outlined the scope of a vast project in the Tennessee Valley which included power development, reforestation and the elimination of marginal lands.

COLUMBIA BASIN

At that time he also mentioned the Columbia Basin and similar projects.

The House leaders said that only the broad lines of the President's public works plan had been sketched to them, but they expected it to receive the support that has been promised for the other points in the program.

Among the crowds who filled the Congressional galleries was the wife of the President. In the House, too, numerous friends of Representative Rainey, of Illinois, gathered to watch his formal election as Speaker to succeed Vice President Garner.

The currency expansion provision, informed authorities said, would not result in any debasement of currency whatever, nor would it operate through a reduction of the gold content of the dollar.

One authority who would not admit use of his name said:

"It would not be printing press money in any sense.

"It would be controlled expansion, the currency to be secured by federal or other sound obligations—really sound securities—and would be provided for through an expansion of the machinery set up in the Glass-Steagall bill passed at the last session.

"We did the same thing to some extent during the war. And, in normal times, the currency is automatically expanded by the Federal Reserve System to meet the demands of commercial paper, against which ordinary Federal Reserve currency is issued."

The Glass-Steagall bill provides a method by which banks could expand the currency by issuing paper money against federal obligations.

Meanwhile, hedged about by virtual war-time restrictions which kept out all callers except those actively engaged developing the plans they have under way, Treasury officials went ahead today with the work of charting a course for the nation's banks until the special legislation enacted by Congress can go into effect.

WOODIN CONFERENCES

Whether banks would be permitted to reopen tomorrow depended largely upon President Roosevelt's recommendations today.

No word was forthcoming on how state and federal banking regulations would be co-ordinated, but many assumed that Congress would give federal authorities full power over state as well as Federal Reserve and national banks.

President Roosevelt and leaders of the new Congress stood as one today in the campaign to thrust aside an immediate obstacle to normalcy—the scarcity of currency.

Their agreement, reached in a get-together that lasted after midnight, was hailed by both as something that would permit immediate reopening of a large number of banks.

The people who sat in the meeting when this plan was agreed upon saw no question but that these things would prove the soundness of the money.

EXPLAINS PROGRAM

The President worked until after midnight explaining his program to Democratic and Republican congressional leaders. After that conference was over, Robinson and Rainey issued a joint statement on the banking bill, saying:

"It is the opinion of all in the conference that the bill will be passed through both houses Thursday and will result in the opening of a large number of banks Friday."

President Roosevelt's statement after the conference said:

"I have been in conference with members of the Senate and House and have talked over with them a measure which has been carefully studied and prepared which will immediately relieve the situation and at once start banking operations throughout the entire country. I have been assured that there is every prospect of the immediate passage of this legislation on its introduction. I am gratified at the outlook."

CONTROL OVER GOLD

As part of the program Mr. Roosevelt wanted, and was told he would get, power to continue his control over gold; he was assured, too, that Congress would give him the sweeping powers he wants to reduce expenditures to equal income. Payments on the public debt would be the next step.

Eventually officials apparently hope bankers will take advantage of the rights they have under existing law to expand or contract the currency as conditions demand. Around $3,000,000,000 in new money could be issued under existing law, even without Mr. Roosevelt's latest proposal, but the bankers had not been exercising their privileges with enough speed. Consequently, this latest step was proposed.

FIRE ON HOTEL ROOF QUELLED

Sleeping guests in the Schenley Hotel were undisturbed early today as firemen extinguished a slight blaze in a ventilator fan house on the roof. Tenants of the Schenley Apartment, adjoining, were awakened and watched as firemen played water on the fire, thought to have been caused by sparks igniting oil-soaked rags.

Two families were driven from their homes at 547 Rossmore street by fire believed to have been caused by an overheated furnace, according to Battalion Chief Saul Klein, who said the loss would be approximately $1,000.

The first floor is occupied by the family of F. N. Amigh, and the second by Dr. R. W. Roden. The first was confined to the basement.

Carnegie, Chief Ford Accountant, Dies

DETROIT, March 9.—(AP.)—William E. Carnegie, 54, chief accountant for the Ford Motor Company, died here yesterday. He had been an auditor for the Ford company for more than 20 years.

Postal Bank Checking Plan Being Studied

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(Universal.)—President Roosevelt has ordered three members of his cabinet to investigate the feasibility of using postal savings banks for checking institutions as a part of the emergency banking program.

It is learned in authoritative circles that Secretary of the Treasury Woodin, Postmaster General Farley and Secretary of Commerce Roper have been working on the problem.

The plan under consideration would arm the President with emergency powers to utilize the present postal savings system and expand it so persons may draw on their accounts by check, as is done in ordinary commercial banking institutions.

Senator Dill (Dem.), of Washington, who has introduced a bill to expand the system, said:

"Postal savings banks offer an established system of guaranteed bank deposits which have proved itself workable and extremely popular with the people. During the past few days the receipts of the postal savings banks have increased while runs were taking place on other banks.

"The people are depositing literally hundreds of millions of dollars in these banks, although they are compelled to go to the postoffices every time they want to use a little money."

Uncle Sam Begins Hunt For Gold in Hoarding

Millions Withdrawn By Wealthy Under Bogus Names

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—The Federal Reserve Board is organizing a gigantic treasure hunt which has for its object the return to government vaults of millions of dollars worth of gold.

It is the declaration of war by the government against hoarders, but the authorities are fighting a hidden enemy—an enemy which has concealed its identity under the prosaic names of John Smith, Paul Jones and William Brown.

Toward the end of February hundreds of apprehensive citizens began to walk through the doors of the Federal Reserve Bank demanding gold. If the amount demanded was considerable bank employes asked the names and addresses of those who were withdrawing the gold. Now the government has directed the Federal Reserve banks to furnish it with the names of those who withdrew gold and who have failed or who will have failed by March 13 to redeposit it.

Unfortunately for the government, officials of the Federal Reserve Bank are just now beginning to realize that it is quite likely that most of the names and addresses given are fictitious which makes the treasure hunt the more difficult.

Meanwhile bounding upward $901,000,000 during February, money in circulation at the end of the month totaled $6,545,617,000, the highest figure on record, the Treasury announced today.

The increase for the year was $942,000,000. Per capita circulation February 28 was $52.23 as compared with $45.06 January 31 and $44.98 a year ago.

Gold in circulation February 28 totaled $571,337,000, an increase of $92,000,000 during the month and $109,000,000 in a year. The circulation of gold certificates was $649,563,000, an increase of $58,000,000 in February, but lower by $201,000,000 a year earlier. February was the first month in a year in which the circulation of gold certificates increased.

Since the end of February there has been a tremendous increase in money circulation due to the banking crisis.

U. S. Diplomats Paid Despite Bank Crisis

LONDON, March 9.—(INS.)—The United States banking emergency failed to cause financial distress among American embassy or consular officials here, they said today. All received their pay checks on March 1, they declared, converting them into sterling without difficulty.

3 Defy 'Holiday,' By Robbing Bank

CHANDLER, Minn., March 9.—(AP.)—Three young bandits who decided the bank holiday did not apply to them, robbed the State Bank of Chandler of approximately $2,000 today. The bank was open only to make change for townspeople.

HOARDED GOLD REAPPEARING

"Hoarded" gold was steadily pouring into some Pittsburgh banks today, attributed to the thinly veiled threat of the Secretary of the Treasury to publish the names of hoarders. Individuals frightened by the thought of being publicised were largely responsible for the gold influx, bankers agreed.

Bankers here have received Secretary Woodin's request to report to the Federal Reserve Bank of this district, the names of all persons who have withdrawn gold since February 1, and fail to deposit it by March 13.

Although only member banks of Reserve system come under direct jurisdiction of the request, it was reliably reported that some nonemember banks were contemplating compiling such a list of hoarders.

Concensus of bankers' opinion here today is that an inflow of gold will do much to restore confidence.

Herriot Proposes France Pay Debt

PARIS, March 9.—(AP.)—Former Premier Edouard Herriot, who advocated payment of the American war debt when he was head of the government, proposed today that France pay the $19,000,000 installment due last December, as a gesture of friendship and confidence at this time of financial crisis.

In an interview with the newspare L'Intransigeant, he expressed complete confidence in the ability of the United States to overcome its present troubles.

N. Y. BANK HEAD URGES DRASTIC REFORM

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—Wide-eyed Wall street looked toward Washington today and pondered the legislative chances of Winthrop W. Aldrich's plan to change the set-up in the financial heart of the western world.

Aldrich, who is head of Chase National Bank, the largest in the world, and is brother-in-law to John D. Rockefeller, Jr., proposed last night the most drastic program of banking reform that has ever emanated from Wall street.

Not only would it divorce deposit and investment banking completely, but it would go far beyond even the Glass bill, which hitherto has met much disfavor in Wall street. One effect would be to curb severely the activities and power of leading private banking firms, notably J. P. Morgan & Co.

MORGAN FIRM TARGET

It would forbid private bankers to take deposits or to be directors of banks of deposit. Members of the Morgan firm are directors of some of the largest commercial banks of the country and hold important deposits, foreign and domestic.

There was a feeling in some parts of Wall street today that Congress would give close consideration to the Aldrich proposals. They adopted the spirit of the Glass bill, which advocates the separation of banks and security affiliates, and extended it further.

The program, designed to rid commercial banking of any "spirit of speculation," astonished many in Wall Street. It involves the inclusion of all commercial banks in the Federal Reserve System.

PRIVATE BANK CURB

The New York Times pointed out the suggested program would curb the power of the large private investment banking firms in three respects:

First, by depriving these firms of the right to accept deposits, it would make it necessary for the private banks to obtain credit from the commercial banks in financing their security flotation.

Second, by doing away with the security affiliates of the commercial banks, the proposed regulations would take from the private banks outlets for the syndicating of their securities which have in the past been of great importance.

Third, by removing all private bankers from their positions as directors of the commercial banks, the changes would greatly reduce the prestige, influence and "inside information" available to the partners of investment houses at present.

Aldrich, a comparative newcomer to the banking field, made his proposals in connection with an announcement that Chase National Bank would divorce its security affiliate, Chase Securities Corporation. Similar steps are being taken by National City Bank.

Merchants to Accept School Board 'Paper'

Donald P. Davis, superintendent of the Arnold schools, announced last night that he had arranged with merchants there to accept the certificates of indebtedness of the borough school board. The certificates were issued to 80 employes of the schools as part of their salaries, and are redeemable in 10 months at 6 per cent interest. The acceptance will be general enough to take care of any of the employes' needs, Davis said.

Rockefeller Expresses Confidence in Nation

By R. L. FALCONNIER
International News Service.

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., March 9.—John D. Rockefeller, Sr., retired oil magnate, halted in the midst of his daily round of golf yesterday to express absolute confidence in the banking system and the government of the United States.

JOHN D. ROCKEFELLER, SR.

In the first interview in many months in which he has discussed national topics, Mr. Rockefeller told International News Service:

"I have every confidence in the bank system of our country and in our good government, I am sure everything will work out all right in the end. We must be patient.

"The Rockefellers always have in the past, and always will in the future, stand loyally by the government of the country, whether Democratic or Republican. It is the duty of everyone, especially in these trying times."

The people, he said, "must be brave and do the best we can, and at the same time hope for the best."

He played around the Ormond Beach golf course with two close friends, Mr. and Mrs. John Dick, of Ontario, Canada. He said:

"We had a wonderful game."

He was dressed in a light cap, gray ulster, large sun glasses and seemed unmindful of a snappy westerly wind whipping across the course.

Bankers Here Scan Roosevelt Plan

CASH FOR FOOD

Honoring withdrawals for use in transportation of the "necessities of life"—food and medicine and animal feed—acceptance of new deposits to be held in trust accounts and subject to withdrawal in full on demand, but not subject to checks, were chief among their activities.

Procedure was not expected to be uniform, with a number of large banks waiting for official instructions from the Federal Reserve Bank of Cleveland or from the Treasury Department. Even new deposits in the trust accounts were discouraged by some banks where they didn't appear necessary for business flow.

The Department of Banking today issued orders to prevent a flow of deposits to banks operating under the Sordoni withdrawal restriction bill. Dr. William D Gordon, Secretary of Banking, announced that banks authorized to restrict withdrawals may not accept money from depositors with accounts in other institutions.

The Sordoni bill requires banks operating under state restrictions to place all new deposits in separate accounts subject to immediate withdrawal.

LITTLE DIFFICULTY

Business, meanwhile, continued with a plentiful supply of change and little cash hardship reported. Restaurants and stores dealing in small change had little difficulty.

Firms in general extended credit where it was necessary, with many houses accepting checks pending adjustment of the situation. Hotels reported a general closing down on acceptance of checks, although in general they would allow no one to be stranded for lack of money for railroad fare. Credit was extended to known travelers.

One hotel was said to have approximately $35,000 in checks on its hands, pending reopening of banks.

Eagerness of bankers here to obtain quick word of latest developments in the situation was shown as some left requests with newspaper offices to be awakened during the night in event of important announcements in Washington. They were not disturbed.

PRECAUTIONS TAKEN

Precautions against the counterfeiting of the new scrip were in progress here today. Elaborately engraved certificates are the rule; the Republic plant on Forbes street is heavily guarded against intruders, with 12 policemen reported on guard; a general police order to watch for known counterfeiters had been issued last night.

The design of the scrip was carefully concealed and the clearing house issued strict orders against revealing it to the public in advance of issuance.

BANK FUNCTIONS

The majority of local banks were following a uniform policy regarding the "holiday" banking services:

1—Exchanging money.

2—Receiving trust deposits against which withdrawals can be made only by counter checks.

3—Meeting payroll requirements of many corporations and large concerns upon signed releases that the money is to be used solely for payroll purposes.

4—Permitting payments by check on bills of lading with drafts attached for large shipments of perishable produce.

In addition to these services, the Union Trust Company and the Farmers Deposit National Bank are cashing small personal checks, for emergencies, such as sickness, food and other necessaries. All such checks must be accompanied by affidavits giving the reason for the withdrawals.

HOSPITAL GIRLS HURT IN CRASH

Two young women laboratory technicians of St. John's Hospital, on their way to a class today, finished the trip as patients, one in a serious condition.

Miss Elizabeth Fogarty, 22, of Greensburg, and Miss Edith Dougan, 24, Negro, of 2400 Webster avenue, were passengers in an automobile that collided with an ice truck at Galveston and West North avenues. The automobile was driven by James Swan, 23, Connellsville pharmacist and a St. John's laboratory technician.

Miss Fogarty's skull may be fractured, it was said. Miss Dougan, daughter of James O. Dougan, Webster avenue pharmacist, suffered a knee injury.

Swan and Frank Bach, 12, 2031 Lautner street, Troy Hill, were arrested on reckless driving charges.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S FIRST PRESS CONFERENCE

Old Medical Student Yarn Alarms 'Hill'

Hill district social workers were perplexed today at the spread of a fantastic tale of the seizure of human beings by medical students seeking subjects for experimentation.

One worker said the time he spends pointing out the absurdity of the rumors and laughing them down consumes much of his working day. He said some of the misinformed persons had been led actually to believe that a certain period after March 1 had been set aside as the period during which medical students could actually stalk down subjects for experiment.

One veteran social worker in the Hill district said the rumor is one that has been circulated periodically for decades by practical jokers. It is believed by social workers to be one of the many colorful tales handed down as folklore for generations.

COUNTY STARTS DRIVE ON COST PADDING

Squires, Constables Accused of Trying 'Phantoms'

A drive against aldermen and justices of the peace who have padded their cost accounts with the County Controller through phantom cases was launched today by Controller Robert G. Woodside and District Andrew T. Park.

They are working jointly, Woodside supplying suspected cases and Park making an investigation through county detectives.

Thousands of dollars have been paid out in costs on cases which only existed in the minds of some of the minor judiciary, officers say.

That the county was being mulcted of huge sums through phantom cases was charged by auditors of the County Commissioners, making an examination of the Controller's books. A preliminary investigation substantiated the charges of the auditors. Last January Justice of the Peace Henry Williams and Constable George J. Burkhart, of Stowe Township, together with two clerks in Williams' office, were charged with conspiracy. They are alleged to have collected more than $5,000 last year in costs on phantom cases. The charge was made when Park seized the records in Williams' office, after Williams had been arrested in an alleged shakedown on complaint of a Bloomfield motorist.

Park said an audit of the books seized showed 276 assault and battery cases entered and 274 were marked "discharged." From this number county detectives selected 25 at random and reported that all of them bore phantom names, Park said.

'WANT TO KILL PRESIDENT,' HE CRIES

Assassin of Cermak Indifferent Despite Shadow of Chair

International News Service.

COURTROOM, MIAMI, Fla., March 9.—Smiling broadly and apparently indifferent to his fate, Giuseppe Zangara, Italian anarchist who fatally wounded Mayor Anton J. Cermak, of Chicago, in an attempt on the life of President Roosevelt, pleaded guilty to one of two counts at his arraignment on a charge of first degree murder today.

Arraigned on two counts charging first degree murder, Zangara pleaded guilty to:

"Killing Mayor Anton J. Cermak in attempting to shoot President Franklin D. Roosevelt."

CHAIR OR LIFE PENALTY

The penalty under the guilty plea is death in the electric chair or life imprisonment, at the discretion of the trial judge.

After other witnesses had testified, Zangara himself took the stand. In a rush of unrestrained oratory, face distorted and eyes blazing, he shouted:

"I hate all President, all ruler, all kings, capitalist!

"I want kill all them, get all money—put it in pile—burn it up.

"People need bread, not money. Millions hungry for bread."

In broken English, Zangara told how lack of money had forced him from school and how he had developed a hatred for rulers and "capitalists."

He said his stomach "alla time sore" and blamed it on the hard work he was forced to undergo as a boy. He said the "fire insida me" forced him to eschew whisky and tobacco.

Zangara's counsel asked if he was "mad at anyone in this courtroom."

He replied:

"No, no, no.

"I tried shoot President, couldn't get away—there 25,000 persons there, how could I get away?"

He declared he was an athiest.

TELLS OF SHOOTING

He then related his attempt to assassinate Roosevelt.

"I went to park, tried get in front but couldn't. I found little iron chair, folding chair, and I stood there until President come.

"I aimed at him, but chair shook as fired and bullet missed him quarter inch maybe.

"Then people shook chair and I kill somebody else.

"Sure I try kill Mussolini, it help Italy."

He said:

"I'm sorry Roosevelt still living."

He added he regretted slaying Cermak and wounding the four other victims.

The defense then turned the witness over to State's Attorney Hawthorne for cross-examination.

Q.—If Mr. Roosevelt was to come in this courtroom and you had a pistol, would you shoot him?

A.—Oh, yes, sure.

Court then was adjourned until late this afternoon.

Thousands Pay Tribute At Bier of Cermak

CHICAGO, March 9.—(INS.)—Chicago paid homage at the bier of its murdered Mayor, Anton J. Cermak, today as the body lay in City Hall.

Thousands of citizens waited in line to pass through the corridor beside the huge bronze casket standing upon a catafalque draped in purple and black velvet. The crowds, come to pay tribute to the man who was to have been the "World's Fair Mayor" this summer, passed beside 500 white-gloved policemen who formed an honor guard about the casket.

Brought here from Miami where he was shot down by a bullet intended for President Roosevelt, the Mayor's body was taken from a special train and escorted to the Cermak home on the Southwest Side yesterday.

The Mayor's body will rest in City Hall until Friday, when it will be buried after a great parade to the Chicago Stadium, where public funeral services will be held at noon in the presence of 25,000 persons, including national, state and city officials.

COLD WAVE DUE HERE TONIGHT

A severe cold snap, with the temperature dropping to between 12 and 15 degrees tonight, will cap a spell of freak weather, Forecaster W. S. Brotzman announced.

At least two days of unseasonable frigidity may be expected, Brotzman said, as an immense high pressure area overspread the Northwest and is moving slowly eastward. Last March 9 a record March cold wave held sway here, the mercury falling to five degrees.

Tonight's clear, cold weather will wind up a varied spell that included rain, snow, sunshine and finally a violent electrical and wind storm last night, the first of this season.

TAFT KIN LAUDS MANAGER PLAN

Watchfulness of the electorate is essential to the success of the city manager plan, Charles Taft II, of Cincinnati, emphasized today on his arrival here to address a mass meeting tonight in Syria Mosque in behalf of the plan for Pittsburgh. Taft said:

"We have had the city manager or, perhaps, more properly, a small council manager government in effect in Cincinnati for seven years. The citizens believe it is superior to the mayoralty system. However, the citizens of Cincinnati, both men and women, are thoroughly organized, and keep close watch on the operation of the government.

"This insures election of the right kind of a council, which in turn results in selection of the right kind of a manager."

FAMILY QUARREL FATAL TO 4

GENESEE, Pa., March 9.—(AP.)—A farmer, his two sons and a farm hand lay dead here today as the outcome of a shooting which followed a family argument last night.

The dead are: Alfred McGinnis, 60; John McGinnis, 17; Frank McGinnis, 12, and Miles McHale, 60.

The body of the oldest son was found in an automobile near here this morning by police, who had sought him for questioning in connection with the slaying of the other three. Police said he had committed suicide.

The slayings were discovered last night by firemen who went to the McGinnis home to extinguish a fire believed to have been started by the slayer.

IDENTIFY PAIR AS BANDITS

Two men held as suspects in the killing of James Battel, of 1109 Bedford avenue, in a Detroit store holdup were identified today, according to county detectives, as the robbers who held up a drug store at 1900 Monongahela avenue, Swissvale, January 28. Joseph Meszaros, 24, of 347 Johnson avenue, Hazelwood, an employe in the store, said the suspects, Guy Cicco, 25, of 540 Price street, North Braddock, and Frank Matea, 28, of the same address, were the holdup men.

Cicco, Matea and Joseph Newman, 540 Penn street, Braddock, will be questioned later by Detroit officers in connection with the killing of Battels.

PITT, TECH DROP 2 BIG DANCES

Two Pittsburgh colleges were head over heels in dance troubles today.

The University of Pittsburgh today canceled its colorful military ball, while at Carnegie Tech it was learned that the spectacular arts ball had been stricken from the social schedule.

Men students at Pitt were busy canceling dates for the military ball, while co-eds were doing their best to cancel orders for evening gowns. It all started when the 30 members of the military ball committee decided to cancel the dance, scheduled for Friday, March 31, at the William Penn Hotel. The committee said:

"We feel compelled to give first consideration to the personal interests of the university student body in this period of financial difficulty that has come upon all of us."

Lieut. Col. Edward J. Cullen, head of the military department, added:

"This action is not due in any sense to a lack of confidence in the prompt and rapid return to normal financial conditions. The committee feels that the money used for the ball could be more appropriately employed during the present crisis."

At Carnegie Tech the situation was somewhat different. The Tech student council, it was said, canceled the arts ball because its authority was flouted by the committee in charge. The Tartan, campus newspaper, said the action was the result of letters sent to four councilmen granting them complimentary tickets to the ball, "without the approval of the committee."

The councilmen charged the committee with the mishandling of its last dance on February 17. The mismanagement concerned such phases of the dance as refreshments, smoking regulations, barring of Tartan reporters, ventilation and too many policemen.

Suzanne, Aged 2, Enters U. S. for Adoption

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—Entre, Suzanne!

Suzanne, if you don't happen to know, is Miss Suzanne Karcher, who has attained the ripe old age of 2 years.

She is a French orphan and she is going to be adopted by Mr. and Mrs. Burks Oakley, of Cleveland, O. Mrs. Oakley was at the pier to meet her when she arrived on the liner Champlain yesterday, but Ellis Island officials had to look into the matter.

They did—for 24 hours. And they found Suzanne O. K.

DEFENDS SON IN SLAYING

Claiming her life was threatened by John Rizner, 39, who said he was going to kill all women because they had a monopoly on jobs, the mother of Tony Pazzynski, 30, 1547 Eckert street, North Side, told a Coroner's jury today her son killed Rizner in defending her.

The jury held Pazzynski on a murder charge following the inquest into Rizner's death February 17. Police had said the younger man killed Rizner, his uncle, because of the latter's amourous attentions to the mother. Mrs. Nellie Pazzynski, Mrs. Puzzynski said Rizner, who lived at 1436 Forsythe street, ran into the house and cried:

"No, I get no work. Women got all the jobs and men can get no jobs. I'm going to kill all the women, and then there will be jobs for men."

He tried to choke her, she said, but the son appeared and fired the fatal shot from a rifle.

FRAUD CHARGED TO BARDOLPH

Charges of making false entries involving $58,997 in the books of the closed Franklin Savings and Trust Company were taken up this afternoon in the trial of Charles A. Bardolph, former president of the institution, accused of misuse of the bank's funds.

A. S. Williams, auditor of the State Banking Department, was on the witness stand for several hours, testifying as to details of the alleged entries.

The commonwealth charges the books showed the Agricultural Exchange credited with cash deposits, whereas the deposits actually were drafts or delivery orders. Deposit slips all marked "O. K. C. A. B." were identified by the witness.

Bardolph, through his counsel, Charles B. Prichard, yesterday admitted transactions set forth in 17 embezzlement counts charging that Bardolph used bany funds amounting to $270,000 to speculate in stocks. All the money was later eturne dto the bank.

Marriage Racket Charged to Official

MERCER, Pa., March 9.—(AP.)—Marvin R. Loutzenhiser, clerk of courts, was indicted on charges of conducting a "marriage license racket." The case will be tried next week.

Loutzenhiser is charged specifically with accepting marriage license fees in excess of those allowed by law and with exacting fees for preventing newspaper publication of marriage license notices.

WAR TO REGAIN JEHOL MAPPED

PEIPING, March 9.—(INS.)—Plans for a new campaign aimed at recapturing Jehol Province from the Japanese were announced here today following a conference between former President Chiang Kai-Shek, Marshal Chang Hsueh-Liang and acting Premier T. V. Soong.

The conference took place this morning in a railway carriage outside the Peiping station some hours after Marshal Chang submitted his resignation as northern military commander.

Chang Hsin-Tien, spokesman for Chiang Kai-Shek, now commander-in-chief of the Chinese armies, said that the campaign would be sponsored by the Nanking government and might be expanded into an attempt to retrieve all of Manchuria.

Straus Acceptable As Envoy to France

PARIS, March 9.—(INS.)—Jesse Straus, New York merchant, is acceptable as American Ambassador to France, International News Service learned today.

Although formal announcement is prevented by diplomatic etiquette, a foreign office spokesman said informal conversations regarding Straus had been held and that his acceptability had been indicated.

Despondent Girl Drinks Liniment

A despondent girl drank half a bottle of rubbing liniment in an attempt to end her life early today, according to police. She was Pearl Jatkowski, 29, of 175 Thirty-sixth street. At West Penn Hospital, where she was taken by members of her family, it was said her condition was not serious.

BABY GIRL BORN TO BOETTCHERS

DENVER, March 9.—(AP.)—The police case against six suspects in the Charles Boettcher II, kidnaping has become "ironclad," Chief of Police Albert T. Clark announced today.

The chief also predicted that officers on the trail of two of the six not yet in custody would effect their capture today. The two sought are Verne Sankey and Gordon Elkhorn, believed by Clark to be fleeing into Canada. Two women and two men are in jail here.

Information which caused Chief Clark to state he had an "ironclad" case, he said, came from Arthur Youngberg. Police said he guarded Boettcher at the Sankey ranch during the 16-day period in which negotiations for $60,000 ransom were completed.

Youngberg and Boettcher were brought together just after Boettcher had come from a hospital where his wife had given birth to a baby daughter, their second child. The chief said:

"Boettcher closed his eyes when I asked Youngberg questions. When he heard Youngberg's voice he lunged forward as if to throttle him, but was restrained."

WIFE SHOOTS RIVERMAN

Albert Dacons, 34, Negro steamboat hand, was shot by his wife, Mrs. Jamella Dacons, 32, at the entrance to the boat yard of the J. H. Hillman Company at Dravosburg today, according to county detectives.

After being treated for slight wounds, Dacons was able to return to work, detectives said. Mrs. Dacons later was held for court before Justice of the Peace James H. Allen, of Dravosburg, on charges of felonious shooting and carrying concealed weapons.

County Detectives Edward Frank and Albert Shedlock said they arrested the woman at her home at 470 Overhill street, Dravosburg, after the shooting, and that they found her doing washing. They said the wife had heard stories that the husband had been friendly with other women along the river.

Sent Home by Teacher, Girl Returns With Gun

Henrietta Piron, a teacher in the Wylie School, Elizabeth Township, sent one of her youthful girl students home to bring her parent after a slight altercation with the pupil, it was revealed yesterday, and a short time later the girl returned with a smart-looking revolver under her coat, according to testimony of Constable George W. Nicholls before the Elizabeth Township Board of Education.

The Constable said that as Miss Piron started to question the student yesterday, she whipped out the gun and ordered her to hold up her hands.

Nicholls said that he asked the student, whose name the Sun-Telegraph declines to print because of her age, what she intended to do, and got this reply:

"Well, I was going to make her dance."

STARS OF FILMS TAKE 50 PCT. PAY CUT

HOLLYWOOD, March 9. (AP.)—With most movie stars accepting drastic salary slashes to keep the cameras turning, the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences early today authorized creation of a committee of five to act as a clearing house for financial problems of the industry.

The committee will be formed of representatives of the five groups in the academy—the directors, actors, writers, technicians and producers. Two of the groups named their representatives at once. William K. Howard will represent the directors and Howard J. Green the writers.

ACCEPT REDUCTION

Employes in the industry joined almost 100 per cent in accepting salary reductions up to 50 per cent yesterday for a specified period of eight weeks to aid in tiding over the major producing companies during the banking holidays.

Highly paid artists voiced no protest to the reduction as far as could be learned, although many players said they would first consult their managers or attorneys.

Among those who formally expressed willingness to take slashes in their salary contracts to help meet the emergency caused by the banking situation were Marie Dressler, Joan Crawford, Maurice Chevalier, Helen Twelvetrees, Sylvia Sidney, Richard Arlen, Wynne Gibson, Clive Brooks, John Boles, Spencer Tracy, Robert Montgomery and John Miljan.

BARRYMORE INCLUDED

Pro rata cuts, executives said, will be asked of the luminaries who are paid by the picture. These include John Barrymore, Richard Barthelmess and Leslie Howard.

Extras, who receive from $5 to $7.50 a day for doing occasional "bits" or joining in crowd scenes, were not included in plans for lower pay.

Acceptance of the cuts was in accordance with the recommendation of the board of directors of the Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences that this must be done or studios be closed entirely. The only groups yet to be heard from are members of the labor unions.

Pat Casey, representing the Association of Motion Picture Producers and Distributors in union wage matters, said the answer of the union workers to the salary reductions ultimatum of the producers probably will be made known by tomorrow night.

CANDY CAUSES FIGHT, BOY CUT

A 14-year-old boy, stabbed in the side during a fight with a Negro boy in front of the Soho Community House, 2358 Fifth avenue, last night, was reported in fair condition at Montefiore Hospital today.

The victim, William Mihallo, of 103 Beelen street, and his brother, Steve, 12, and the Negro, engaged in a fight when the latter accused Steve of stealing a bar of candy from him as they watched a basketball game in the community house, detectives said.

The Negro stabbed William, according to City Detective Edward Muldowney, who was called from his home across the street. Muldowney took the assailant to the Juvenile Detention Home.

Charge Sailors Killed Girl, 17, by Attack

SOUTH GATE, Cal., March 9.—(AP.)—Complaints charging murder and burglary were issued here today against four United States Navy sailors in connection with the death Monday of Miss Marjorie Barr, 17. The men accused were William Kozak, H. Peterson, Robert Barnett and Revell Covington.

Miss Barr, who hiked here from Longview, Wash., recently with Rose Hammond, 21, died, authorities said, following an alleged attack upon her in the home of Albert Stevens, where she and Miss Hammond were employed.

WILL ROGERS SAYS

BEVERLY HILLS, Cal., March 9.
To the Editor, Sun-Telegraph:

It's surprising how little money we can get along on. Let the banks never open, let scrip never come. Just everybody keep on trusting everybody else. Why, it's such a novelty to find that somebody will trust you, that it's changed all our whole feeling toward human nature. Why, never was our country so united, never was a country so tickled with their poverty. For three years we have had nothing but

Will Rogers

"America is fundamentally sound." It should have been "America is fundamentally cuckoo." The worse off we get the louder we laugh, which is a great thing. And every American international banker ought to have printed on his office door, "Alive today by the grace of a nation that has a sense of humor."

Yours, WILL.

Boy Friends' Cars Hit by Holiday, Co-eds Skate

SALEM, W. Va., March 9.—(AP.)—When their boy friends placed their cars in storage, because of shortage of cash, resulting from the banking holiday, Salem College girls refused to stay at home.

A dozen local college lassies who have been accustomed to a spin after classes last evening took their usual "ride"—several of them accompanied by their boy friends.

Families Homeless In Mine Town Fire

GREENSBURG, Pa., March 9.—Fanned by high wind, flames raced through double block house in mining village of Hannastown today, rendering two families homeless and threatening entire row of houses. Greensburg firemen confined the fire to one double dwelling, occupied by families of John Brosnok and Nick Parson. The loss was $6,000.

WIFE AWARDED ALIMONY

Mrs. Lillian B. Lusk, 6106 Walnut street, suing to divorce Grover M. Lusk, engaged in the lumber business, yesterday was awarded an order by Judge Thomas M. Marshall directing her husband to pay her $10 a week alimony pending the outcome of the suit.

Mrs. Lusk charges cruelty and barbarous treatment.

Divorce decrees were granted to Rose Brinham from Alden Brinham, James H. Robertson from Maryonette K. Robertson, Juva Jean Buhrmester from Henry C. Buhrmester, Ernestine M. McKivigan from Clair L. McKivigan, Bertha D. Johnston from William McKee Johnston, Virginia C. McChesney from John Robert McChesney, Alfiere Clementina from Narcelo Clementina and Margaret E. Nowak from Stephen Nowak.

Moving on Gain Here, Telephone Man Says

Pittsburgh is "on the move," with every new day now recording an increasing number of families and business establishments moving to new locations, according to William Bradford, division manager of the Bell Telephone Company. From his records of telephone changes, Bradford concludes that April leads all other months, followed closely by March, and suggests five or six days' notice by subscribers will make new installations more expeditious.

Income Tax Revenue Shows Gain Here

Income tax returns and receipts yesterday were heavier than on the corresponding day of last year, it was disclosed at the office of D. B. Heiner, collector of internal revenue.

Officials attributed the increases to the higher rate of tax and the lower exemptions. They said that a large percentage of returns are being made by mail.

COUNCIL BATTLE IN SHARPSBURG

Lawrence Bragg, a member of Sharpsburg Council, during a meeting last night accused Councilman John J. Malley of sending complaining delinquent taxpayers to him to inquire why their electricity had been shut off.

The accusation brought about a heated argument. Pointing to Malley, Bragg said:

"This man was sitting in the borough office and told a woman to go see Bragg and Leo Horstman, they're the ones responsible. It's a shame you have to have your lights off."

The entire Council had agreed to restore service upon payment of the current light bills plus 5 per cent of the old balance, Bragg said, adding:

"It's a low-down, dirty piece of work, and a man who betrays the agreement he entered into with his colleagues should resign before the people lose confidence and kick him out."

Malley retorted:

"He's no good, he's a leather-head; he's turned the town upside down! Oh, what'll I do?"

M'DONALD OFF TO ARMS MEET

LONDON, March 9. — (AP.) — Premier Ramsey MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon started today for Geneva, where they will attempt to save the world disarmament conference from failure.

They will confer with Premier Edouard Daladier in Paris and proceed to Geneva tonight. They plan to stay about 10 days.

Premier MacDonald said:

"We are going to Geneva to try to help the disarmament conference get some results. It may not be all we want but we hope it will be a good contribution toward world peace."

PARIS, March 9. — (AP.) — French fears that Germany may announce it intends to rearm are likely to be one of the principal topics of the talks here today between Premier MacDonald and Foreign Secretary Sir John Simon, of England, and Premier Daladier, of France.

LEIDY UNAWARE OF WIFE'S DEATH

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.) —Carter Randolph Leidy, Philadelphia sportsman, lay in serious condition in Fordham Hospital today, unaware his socially prominent wife, Mrs. Marjorie Procter Leidy, was dead.

Mrs. Leidy was killed yesterday when their automobile plunged 30 feet into Bronx River after crashing through a guard rail in an attempt to avert a collision with another car.

Police were hunting the motorist who cut in the path of Leidy's car, forcing it to swerve into the rail.

Spectators who rescued Leidy failed to retrieve Mrs. Leidy's body and a police emergency squad extricated it from the rear of the big sedan. Physicians and relatives today decided not to inform Leidy of his wife's death until he improves.

BRADDOCK TRAIL EXPERT DIES

CONNELLSVILLE, Pa., March 9.—Prof. John Kennedy Lacock, 61, an authority on Braddock's expedition in the French and Indian War and on the location of the Forbes road from Bedford to Pittsburgh, died yesterday at the Connellsville State Hospital here.

His home was in Boston, where he was head of the Boston School of Expression and Dramatic Art. He was born in Washington County and was graduated from Washington and Jefferson College and Harvard University. For several years he was professor of history and government at Harvard.

In 1910 he and other college men walked over the Forbes road with a view to having it marked. He made two trips afoot over the Braddock trail from Cumberland to Pittsburgh. Within the last year he financed and supervised the marking of a large part of the Braddock trail, practically completing the work as far as Irwin.

HELD IN BROWN EXTORTION

PHILADELPHIA, March 9.—(AP.) — An indictment, charging him with writing an extortion letter, was returned yesterday by the federal grand jury against a man who said he was James F. Evans, of St. Louis.

Evans is accused of attempting to obtain $105 from Mrs. Ruth McCauley Brown, whose husband, Bradway Brown, was found shot to death in his Cinnaminson Township (N. J.) home in January. Evans was held in default of $500 bail.

Authorities say Evans promised Mrs. Brown he would furnish, for $105, information which would solve the mystery of her husband's death. Police stated Evans confessed writing the letter, but declared he did so at the behest of a stranger he met in a hotel.

OIL MAN WILLS SON $350,000

E. Frederick Treat, King's Arms Apartment, Negley avenue, will receive $350,000 under the will of his father, Ellis M. Treat, oil magnate, according to a news dispatch from Buffalo, N. Y.

Under the Treat will, which carries bequests totaling $5,000,000, Richard J. Dugan, of Monongahela, Pa., connected with the Pittsburgh office of the Treat Oil Company, receives $10,000.

However, according to present estimates, the estate is valued at slightly more than $500,000. A $200,000 trust fund is provided for the widow, Mrs. Mary T. Treat, of Los Angeles, Cal.

Wills Leave Two Estates to Families

Fred Schweitzer, of McKeesport, by his will probated today distributed a $12,800 estate among his eight children.

An estate valued at $14,000 was disposed of by the will of John Pfrenzinger, East End. He left his son, Frank L. Pfrenzinger and a granddaughter, Blanche A. Pfrenzinger, $1,000 each, and $500 each to other grandchildren. Bequests of $5 each were made to three of his children and the residue given to a son, Charles M. Pfrenzinger.

COUNTY TO HIRE HARRISBURG LOBBYIST

Dissatisfied with the advancement of legislation concerning Allegheny County, Commissioner C. C. McGovern is in the market for a first-class lobbyist, who for a salary and expenses would look after the county's interests in Harrisburg for the remainder of the legislative session.

With Commissioner-State Senator W. D. Mansfield not voting, it was decided at the Commissioners' meeting yesterday to make McGovern a committee of one to select the lobbyist. When Mansfield remarked that he was doing all anyone could do to hurry the legislation, McGovern said

"I know, but you could not even get on a committee."

He evidently was referring to Mansfield losing his place on the education committee.

DRAW COUNTY PAY

Some weeks ago the Commissioners decided Mansfield would look after bills pertaining to the county in the Senate. They also permitted Assistant Solicitor James H. McClure to draw his county salary while in Harrisburg as a member of the House, for the sake of his representation of county interests there.

Joseph A. Rectenwald, a county assessor and also a Representative, was denied his county pay while in Harrisburg.

Although no compensation has been set for the lobbyist, Commissioner C. M. Barr said $250 a month and expenses had been paid for similar work some time ago. McGovern replied he could not offer that sum to the person he had in mind.

RAE MENTIONED

The name of James Rae, former head of the Chamber of Commerce, was mentioned by McGovern, who admitted he had not yet approached Rae.

After the meeting Mansfield said:

"I am serving on virtually every committee that would have anything to do with bills concerning Allegheny County. If I cannot hurry them I don't see what good an outsider would do. The only bill that had any opposition, among the many I presented, was that eliminating the office of delinquent tax collector."

McGovern said he felt that political enemies of Mansfield might oppose his bills. He believes an outsider could discuss bills with legislators without politics entering into it.

RESIGNS POST IN COUNCIL

The resignation of Michael J. Muldowney as City Councilman has been mailed to the City Clerk. Muldowney said last night before leaving for Washington to enter Congress.

City Council will elect his successor Monday in a meeting in which Mayor Charles H. Kline will have a vote. The majority of Council under the leadership of President John S. Herron, favors George S. Oliver for the vacated position, and at least one of the independent Councilmen, Robert Garland, concurs.

John D. Houston, retail grocer who started the city supplies department investigation, has been mentioned as a possible candidate and may be put forward by the other independents, Councilman P. J. McArdle and Charles Anderson.

Financial Crisis Spurs Credit Buying

Many persons who have not previously availed themselves of the use of charge accounts at Pittsburgh stores are obtaining credit on account of the banking situation, it was announced by J. R. Truesdale, secretary of the Retail Credit Men's Association and manager of the Merchant Owned Credit Bureau, Inc. Mr. Truesdale said that some stores have had to augment their credit department to take care of the increased number of applications for credit.

Sea Hero Made Leviathan Officer

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—Giles C. Steadman, master of the American Merchant when it rescued the crew of the foundering Exeter City recently, sailed on the Leviathan last night as staff captain, second in command. The promotion was his reward for heroism in the rescue. The Leviathan had 250 passengers, including Mary Wigman, the dancer, and William Van Hoogstraten, orchestra conductor.

Autos Collide, Man Hurt, Two Arrested

Carl Augustine, 27, of Parkersburg, W. Va., was injured slightly early today as the automobile in which he was a passenger collided with another machine in Penn avenue, near Main street. The drivers of the two machines, Kenneth Whittaker, 24, of 3028 Nantasket street, and Richard Frame, of 428 South Atlantic avenue, were arrested. Augustine, a passenger in Frame's machine, was taken to West Penn Hospital.

HUNGRY DUKE ADMITS BEING 'MUG'

LONDON, March 9.—(Universal.)—The Duke of Manchester, not sure that he likes being a duke because of his reduced income, said today that his trouble is that he's always been "a mug."

The duke, whose wife was the former Helena Zimmerman, daughter of the late Eugene Zimmerman, American financier, told his troubles to the London Daily Express, saying:

"People think being a duke is great fun. It has its advantages and disadvantages. I am not quite sure I'm glad to have been born a duke.

"I've been so broke at one time and another that I've only just been able to pay for my valet's meals, but if I had had as much money as a duke should, I would have weighed 250 pounds and have died of apoplexy."

Asked how it feels to be a duke who is perpetually harassed by money worries, he replied:

"It's infernal.

"My trouble is that my income comes from America. It is sufficient normally to buy a couple of meals a day and provide the reasonable comforts of life, but it has been reduced by 50 pounds sterling a week on account of the depression. That is a considerable cut.

"My trouble has been that I've been a mug, always too trustful and willing to help others."

Award Against City And Garage Owners

Mrs. Flora Williams of Lawrenceville, yesterday was awarded a verdict of $4,229 in Common Pleas Court in her suit against the City of Pittsburgh, and Mr. and Mrs. Brownie Kozlowski, of 300 Forty-third street, for the death of her husband, Harry Williams.

Williams slipped and fell in the street, his head striking the Kozlowski garage. The suit charged the garage's sloping driveway was built too close to the sidewalk. The city was named in the action for granting a permit for its construction.

'BUGS' AIRS BAER FACTS ON NEW DEAL

Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Arthur "Bugs" Baer, famous humorist of the Hearst newspapers, in a broadcast over a CBS network yesterday on the subject of what makes people laugh, said:

"We are making history today. And that puts us in a class with a Swiss toymaker. We are making history to amuse our grandchildren. It's no fun for us. History is truth and truth makes people laugh."

"We can consider ourselves fairly launched on the renaissance of American industry in which the theme song will be "America First" and we don't care who is second. It means a lot of work, a lot of sacrifices and a lot of patriotism."

"Bugs," in giving the "Baer facts" of the situation, said:

"Four years ago we might have been saved by a competent, fearless leadership, which was woefully lacking; instead we were fed a mass of soft-boiled statistics by a group whose only system was this—when facts interfere with truth, discard them both.

"At that time, their battle cry was 'don't sell America short.'

"Today, they are pleading, 'don't sell America's shirt.'

"Our great minds hemmed and hawed, dawdled and daddled, twisted and turned and ran up the impressive mileage of a squirrel in a revolving cage—and achieved the same destination. It was not until Saturday in Washington that we got a new deal."

DEATH DRIVER OUT ON BAIL

George Swindells, 32, of Russelton, was released on $5,000 bail today pending an inquest in connection with the death of two women, who were injured fatally by an automobile in Russelton road, near Cheswick, early yesterday.

Tarentum police reported Swindells, driver for a baking company, walked into their headquarters late yesterday and said it was his car that struck the two women. The victims, who died in Citizens General Hospital several hours later, were Mrs. Kate Fisher, 40, of Acmetonia, and Mrs. Emma Reader, 33, of Cheswick.

Swindells told police he was unaware of the accident until he got to work, when he noticed one of the lights on his machine was bent, they said.

Three men injured in an automobile collision in the 3200 block Spring Garden avenue were treated at Allegheny General Hospital last night. They were Joseph Woloszyk, 23, of Mt. Troy road; Gottlieb Mann, 23, of Mt. Troy road, and Chester Toski, 38, of 18 Province street.

Church Head Calls For Prayer in Crisis

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—The Rev. Dr. Albert W. Beaven, president of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America, called today upon church people to put aside fear because of the present financal conditions. He described the situation as "a day of judgment upon the unsocial and unchristian standards that have prevailed in our economic life" and called for united prayer "privately day by day and corporately in our places of worship on the coming Sunday."

First Lady Takes Trooper Motoring

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP.)—Leo Casey, an injured New York state trooper, well known to the Roosevelt family at Albany, was taken for a drive yesterday by the First Lady of the Land.

Only An Appetite And Lead Pencil, But Still Happy

By ARTHUR 'BUGS' BAER

We started a riot in a lunch wagon by eating a meal and paying for it with 30 cents in stamps.

The proprietor called in a cop who decided that 3-cent stamps were legal baby bonds.

The proprietor said:
"I don't mind the stamps for the meal. But he had meringue pie for dessert and tried to pay me off with 10 Paris postcards."

And that's the way it stands now. Everybody happy. Everybody in the same boat. And nobody's got tickets.

We've got so much air in our pockets we can qualify for an aviator's license.

BANDITS LASSO AGED MAN

Oakland police today were searching for two bandits who attacked Samuel Feldman, 70, of the Dithridge apartments, 144 South Dithridge street, and escaped with $15.50 after tying a rope around his neck last night.

The aged man was walking in Dithridge street, near Bayard street, when the bandit pair leaped from an automobile and lunged at him. The assailants knocked him down, tied the rope around his neck and threatened him with a knife before rifling his pockets, he reported.

After having his pants pressed in the tailor shop of Samuel Klieger, 1518 Brighton road, North Side, a Negro whipped out a revolver and held up Joseph Klieger, a son of the proprietor, last night. The gunman rifled the cash till of $13 and fled.

HOME DIVIDED, DIVORCE ASKED

A wife who testified she is living in the same house with her husband, although estranged 13 months, asked Judge Thomas R. Marshall for a divorce today.

Marie O. Eiffler, represented by Attorney John G. Koedel, said her husband, Elmer C., spends his nights and eats breakfast at the home they own at 53 Florence avenue, Bellevue, but they have avoided each other completely.

Mrs. Eiffler testified she had seen her husband with another woman and once he and a woman companion were held up by bandits. She accused him of using liquor excessively and failing to support her. Her parents testified they have been living with their daughter and supporting her.

OPEN TARENTUM RELIEF DEPOT

The relief commissary at Tarentum began operations today as the state's fourth standardized community market, according to Walter C. Titus, of the Allegheny Steel Company, in charge.

Changes in purchasing and distribution have been made to conform with state plans, the most important of which, according to Titus, is establishing a central warehouse in Third avenue, Tarentum.

Buying will be in larger quantities than formerly, Titus said. The commissary is financed by the State Emergency Relief Board, which also has such markets in Williamsport, York and Erie.

Woman Fractures Leg in Street Fall

Mrs. Helen Cyle, 30, of 928 North Lincoln avenue, fell as she crossed Penn avenue, near Sixth street, late last night and suffered a fractured left leg, according to a police report.

Burglar Sleeps In Guest Bedroom

CHANUTE, Kan., March 9.—(AP.)—Police called to a home where a burglar was reported, found him asleep in the guest bedroom. He finished his night's slumbers in a cell bunk.

5 Stores

FROM a little store in East Liberty 20 years ago, the HAHN FURNITURE COMPANY has marched steadily forward . . . expanding . . . spreading its influence from one community to another . . . opening One, Two, Three, Four . . . and now, a FIFTH store Saturday morning on the South Side.

Today, this is the largest personally operated and directed furniture institution in America.

That didn't just happen! It wasn't an accident! Luck played no part in that remarkable growth. It was Faith, Courage and Sound Business Principles that guided its activities through the years.

It has Faith today! Others may face the future with fear and trembling, but HAHN has faith in the soundness of American institutions, and faith in the certainty of a returning prosperity.

With that faith, Hahn prepares to open a Fifth Store, at Seventeenth and Carson Streets on the South Side on Saturday morning.

In commemoration of that event, and in celebration of 20 years of service to a great community, Hahn invites its great army of loyal patrons and the people of greater Pittsburgh to visit your nearest Hahn store, get one of the beautiful Free Souvenirs, and join in the thereby puts himself squarely on the side of the public utilities and against the people.

"I regret very deeply that Dr. King, chairman of the Public Service Commission, by his testimony before the Senate committee has created the widespread impression that he is against continuing the investigation and for shielding the utilities.

CITES REFUSAL.

"I regret still more that when I asked him to make a public statement that the investigation must go on, he refused.

"I have never attempted to influence or control Dr. King or any other members of the commission upon any question before the commission.

"But this is a matter of statewide policy of the gravest importance. I cannot let personal considerations interfere with the public interest.

"When I appointed Dr. King, I was entirely confident he would stand like a rock for the people. He was then emphatically in favor of pushing the investigation to the end. I am profoundly grieved and completely puzzled by his deplorable change of front.

"It pains me more than I can say after these many years of friendship, and in spite of the admirable work done by the commission while he has been chairman, to be forced to recognize that Dr. King's usefulness as chairman of the Public Service Commission is at an end.

DENIED POWER

"Dr. King's name is now before the Senate fo reconfirmation or rejection. A decision of the Supreme Court prevents me from withdrawing it. Neither can I command his resignation. If I could his unexplained change of attitude would leave me no choice but to do so.

"The course of the investigation since the Attorney General was eliminated from it by action of the Senate majority has completely justified everything I predicted as to the intention of the ruling senatorial powers to make it a whitewash.

"This investigation must go on, the full story of public utility corruption has not been told, and the people have the right to know the facts. I will use every power I have to see that the facts are give nto the people."

King declined to comment on the statement, though yesterday, when asked if he would resign, said:

"At this time I have no thought of resigning."

REFUSES STATEMENT

King had been asked by the Governor on his second appearance last Tuesday before the Senate committee to read a statement similar to that he gave the Sun-Telegraph two weeks ago, asserting a complete accord with the Governor and denying that his first statement could be accepted as an invitation to cease inquiry.

This King refused positively to do, causing a scene in the Governor's office during which King and another member of the Public Service Commission almost came to blows as the latter insisted that King should agree to the Governor's proposal.

A second time, late last week, the Governor asked King to discuss the statement. On that occasion King, strong-willed and stubborn, no respecter of persons, refused even to see the Governor.

King's statement which caused the uproar was that the Senate Committee need investigate no further as a basis for legislation, with the addition that he knew of no corruption.

In subsequent conferences with the Governor he asserted the Governor was deserting him and that he was being double-crossed by Commissioners George W. Woodruff and P. S. Stahlnecker, the latter the Governor's former private secretary.

HITS AT SCHNADER

King also accused Attorney General William A. Schnader of attempting to undermine him, it is reported.

Administration circles were thrown into an angry storm against King. In the highest quarters he was referred to as a "prima donna," and his resignation was predicted. He not only cannot be removed by the Governor under the law, but there is grave doubt whether he cannot retain office after the Senate adjourns, if it takes no action on his nomination.

King, on many past occasions, has crossed the Governor, and the manner in which he has been able to flout Mr. Pinchot has been the amazement of members of the Cabinet. Apparently the Governor's patience raeched the breaking point with the utility issue thrown into the spotlight.

Meanwhile the Senate Committee, of which Senator John J. McClure, of Delaware County, is in the air over the resignation of Eaton. It has not accepted the resignation, though Eaton today reiterated a determination not to return under the authority of the present committee.

Eaton broke with the committee when McClure demanded, while King was on the stand Tuesday, that Eaton reveal any evidence of improper action his investigators might have uncovered. The committee overruled McClure, but Eaton felt that his usefulness was impaired as long as the Delaware Senator remained as chairman, and the Governor approved his course in a public statement.

CALL HAIRDRESS 'ELEANOR BOB'

The Pittsburgh Hairdressers' Association closed their three-day convention last night in the William Penn Hotel, with the creation of new hairdress in honor of Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt. Also the "Miss 1933" style hairdress was shown.

Isabel Spencer, of 307 Pioneer avenue, wore the "Eleanor Bob," named for Mrs. Roosevelt, while Leontine Kinkead, of 719 Liberty avenue portrayed "Miss 1933." A dance in the ballroom of the hotel climaxed the convention.

VAN DYKE BALKS AT RELIEF PLAN

HARRISBURG, March 9.—Gov. Pinchot's plea to Democratic leaders for complete co-operation on his legislative relief program met with rebuff yesterday at a conference between the Governor and Democratic State Chairman Warren Vandyke.

The Governor was notified the Democrats would not accept willingly the commissary plan for furnishing food to unemployed, and would stand for no additional taxation as a means of raising relief funds.

Van Dyke explained the Democrats believed relief funds could be provided by drastic economies in government, their aims on this score going beyond the limits outlined by the Governor.

Mr. Pinchot was seeking co-operation in advance of an appearance before the Legislature next Tuesday, when he will set forth the depletion of relief funds in the state, and the need for Legislative action this month if the means of furnishing assistance is to be continued. Unless the state does something, the federal Reconstruction Finance Corporation has notified state officials, no money can be expected April 1 from the U. S. Treasury.

SULLIVAN RAID TRIO HELD

Three men arrested in connection with the smashing of windows in the office of Alderman Luke Sullivan, 3404 Penn avenue, were held over as robber suspects in Central Police Court today.

Alderman Sullivan appeared against the three who gave their names as Joseph Fedor, 22, of 3509 Freeport street; Paul Regan, 23, of 435 Taylor street, and Walter Everson, 38, of 5427 Columbus avenue. Sullivan said his office windows had been broken three times by hoodlums who took this means of retaliating against arrests.

Regan and Everson admitted to Magistrate Leo Rothenberg they and others had smashed Sullivan's windows. All three denied participation in robberies or holdups.

Three Red Suspects Held, Four Freed

Three white men and four Negroes, alleged Communists, arrested in the City-County Building yesterday after being refused permission to address City Council, were arraigned before Magistrate Leo Rothenberg in Central Police Court today charged with being suspicious persons. Four were discharged and three held over.

May Free Ellingson In Theft Charge

SAN FRANCISCO, March 9.—(AP.)—Grand theft charges against Dorothy Ellingson, 24, who finished a San Quentin Prison term last year for slaying her mother in 1925, probably will be dropped, authorities announced here today.

Police said Miss Mary Ellis, who caused Miss Ellingson's arrest Sunday on a charge of theft of clothing and jewelry, had expressed a desire to withdraw the charge.

Gun Clue in Death Of Trooper Fails

The rusty revolver found in the mud near Acmetonia by County Detective Samuel Whismer, is not the one used in the slaying of Sergt. John J. Downey, in 1927, state police announced today. The revolver is of different caliber than the one used in the murder of the state trooper during a Sacco-Vanzetti protest meeting, it was announced in Greensburg today.

Discovered Women's Letters, Wife Says

Testifying she found names and addresses of other women in her husband's traveling bag, Mrs. Ethel M. Caldwell, 32, of 432 Jefferson street, Bellevue, was granted a divorce yesterday from Charles E. Caldwell by Judge John P. Egan. She said her husband insulted her in the presence of guests at a party while they were living in Avalon.

Child Puts Brush Behind Heater; Firemen Come

The E. C. Hennig's, of 123 Kennedy avenue, North Side, found their missing hair brush today.

The last time the brush—it had a celluloid composition back—was seen, a young son of the Hennigs' was playing with it. Firemen said the youngster had probably hidden it behind the heater.

FREE DORMONT 'CURE' AGENT

Leo Banks Barlett, of Dormont, was acquitted by a jury in Federal Court today on a charge of violating the food and drug act in connection with the labeling of a preparation called "Banbar" as a treatment for diabetes.

A sealed verdict was reached after court adjourned late yesterdays following two hours' deliberation. The case went on trial before Judge R. M. Gibson February 27.

Contending that the preparation contained no curative ingredients for treatment of the disease, government counsel called 50 witnesses, among them physicians. The defense called 29 witnesses, some of whom testified they used "Banbar" with satisfactory results. One of the latter was former Judge Robert E. Umble, of Fayette County.

A. M. Replogle, of defense counsel, placed in evidence 100 testimonials of persons who said they found the preparation beneficial.

STOLEN RINGS GIVEN DANCER

Those two diamond rings and the brooch stolen from the home of Gerald Firth, of the Firth-Sterling Steel Company, eventually found their way into the hands of a Negro chorus girl at a cabaret, detectives testified today in Central Police Court.

Emanuel Richards, of Braddock, once chauffeur for Firth, admitted stealing the jewelry, valued at $765, from the Firth home at 5575 Northumberland street, according to police court testimony. He said he sold it to Vandor Williams, Negro, for $35.

Williams, also arrested, gave the jewelry to the dancer, the sleuths said. Both prisoners were held for investigation. Williams denied knowing it was stolen goods.

Fire in Beechview Routs 2 Families

The families of S. M. Amigh and R. M. Roden, occupying a double brick dwelling at 547 Rossmore avenue, Beechview, were routed early today by a fire in the basement, caused, firemen reported, by an overheated furnace. The damage was slight.

STATE FORBIDS SHERIFF SALES

HARRISBURG, March 9.—(AP.)—The state today had extended a helping hand to persons caught in the swirl of the financial crisis.

Gov. Pinchot yesterday signed a resolution calling for a holiday on sheriffs' sales until April 3.

The resolution was offered in the Senate by James J. Coyne (Allegheny) and was approved quickly by both Senate and House.

The House approved a similar suspension of evictions for nonpayment of rent, but the Senate deferred action until Monday night.

Unemployment relief will be a major problem next week.

Auto Burns Fatal To Stage Magician

MACON, Ga., March 9.—(AP.)—Edward Wells, widely-known on the stage as "Webster, the Magician," died here yesterday of burns suffered in an automobile accident near Tifton, Ga., a month ago. Wells retired about two years ago and had lived here since that time.

Bandits Again Rob Maternity Hospital

CHICAGO, March 9.—(INS.)—Police were searching today for four bandits who staged a successful raid on the Chicago Lying-In Hospital last night, escaping with $1,500 cash and $5,000 worth of the patients' valuables. It was the second time bandits had invaded the maternity hospital in three weeks.

County Offices Get Pay Station Phones

County Commissioners' efforts to allocate telephone bill to the various offices has resulted in pay stations being installed in the offices of the Register of Wills and the Prothonotary. Desk telephones in the two offices previously had been used by attorneys and the general public as well as by the county employes.

GIRL DIES, FOUR HURT IN CRASH

A girl was killed instantly and four other persons were injured early today when the automobile in which they were riding skidded on the icy pavement and crashed into a pole on the lower Monroeville road, Patton Township.

Norma Holberg, 24, of 1127 Jones avenue, North Braddock, was dead when taken from the wreckage. David Moore, 34, of 617 McMasters avenue, Turtle Creek, driver of the car, is in the Braddock General Hospital suffering from injuries to his back and neck. He will be required to post bond with the Coroner.

Rudolph Pryts and his daughter, Helen, 18, were sent to their home on Pitcairn R. F. D. No. 1, after they were treated at the hospital for minor cuts and bruises. William Killops, of Torrence street, Turtle Creek, also was sent home after being treated at the scene of the accident.

RAIL ENGINEERS MEET HERE

Proposed organization legislation to be presented at the national convention of the Brotherhood of Locomotive Engineers today was being discussed at a session of the Eastern Union Meeting Association in the Fort Pitt Hotel.

Delegates from districts east of Chicago are attending the sessions which are to continue through Saturday. The national convention is to be held in Cleveland in June. The meeting association chairman, John Dugan, of Jersey City, said wages and hours will not be discussed at the sessions. W. H. Monaghan, Cleveland, is secretary. The Brotherhood is not affiliated with the American Federation of Labor.

N. Y. PLANNING FULL BANKING

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—Cheered by public reaction to partial reopening, looking to the scheduled end of national and state bank holidays tonight, and with Congress meeting today to enact emergency legislation, New York banks and trust companies prepared to reopen tomorrow on as close to normal basis as the Treasury will permit.

The New York Clearing House, believing the holiday will not be prolonged, that national currency will be expanded and strict supervision imposed on banks, has outlined a plan for full resumption of banking operations, it was learned.

Details of the plan were expected to be forthcoming after disclosure of the federal government's new bank program.

The New York Stock Exchange announced it would reopen as soon as "adequate" banking facilities were available and other markets were expected to follow that example.

Issuance of scrip seemed unlikely.

VANG'S WHARF PLANS SHELVED

A joint committee, comprising representatives of civic and social groups and city authorities, will present to City Council tentative plans for the improvement of Duquesne way.

Members of the group were named yesterday by John S. Herron, presdent of Council. The appointments followed a hearing before Council at which that body decided to "forget" the wharf improvement proposed by George Vang.

On the joint committee will be representatives of the Chamber of Commerce, the Pittsburgh Real Estate Board, City Planning Commission, Public Works Department, Building Owners' and Managers' Association and a representative of downtown property owners. They are expected to report to Council within two weeks.

Shout Interrupts Gem Window Looting

Police are searching for two men who early today cut a 10-inch hole in the show window of the jewelry store of H. L. Ehrhard, at 232 Brownsville road, Mt. Oliver, and stole three watches, but were frightened away before obtaining more loot.

Louis Friedman, of 230 Brownsville road, across the street from the jewelry shop, from his bedroom window saw the two men and shouted at them. They fled and Friedman notified Mt. Oliver police.

North Braddock Tax Rate Cut One Mill

North Braddock Council at a special session Tuesday night approved a budget of $116,342 for 1933 and set the tax millage at nine mills, one mill lower than last year.

URGES CONTROL OF WALL ST.

LOS ANGELES, March 9.—(Universal Service.)—Federal regulation of the stock exchange is vitally essential in restoring financial equilibrium to the nation, in the opinion of Samuel Untermeyer, famous New York attorney and civic leader.

In an address before the law alumni of the University of Southern California yesterday, Untermyer spoke of the fight for the regulatory bill of 1912, in which he led. That bill, he said, was defeated by the "lobby of high finance," though it would have averted, at least to a great extent, "the debacle and tragedy of recent years."

Untermyer called the stock exchange "the most powerful and despotic institution on earth." He added:

"It makes its own laws, sometimes contrary to the laws of the land. As in case of the bankruptcy of a member, the seat is sold by the exchange and the proceeds are divided among his co-member creditors to the exclusion of the defrauded customers."

Banker's Will Names 'Billy' Whitla's Kin

MERCER, Pa., March 8.—After distributing $275,000 among relatives and friends, the will of John Forker, Sharon banker, which was filed today, leaves the remainder of the estate to his three sisters.

Mrs. Eleanor Whitla, widow of Billy Whitla, receives $25,000 to be held in trust for her children; Henry Forker, Jr., $150,000; Mrs. Salina Whitla Braham, New Castle, $50,000, and Mrs. Julia Whitla, $10,000.

SCORE RESCUED IN ICE PERIL

ASHLAND, Wis., March 9.—(AP.)—Rescued from drifting ice floes headed toward the open waters of Lake Superior, more than a score of fishermen of the Madeline Island community, north of here, resumed the routine of their daily lives, unmindful of their escape.

Two of them, George La Rocque and Ollie Sandstrom, were blown for 50 miles across the bay on a large block of ice in a blinding snowstorm late yesterday. They were saved and landed at Little Girl Point, Mich.

Three dogs, stranded on the huge ice flow with La Rocque and Sandstrom, perished when they slipped through large cracks opened by the pounding waves. A light dog sled and fishing equipment also were missing when the two men were sighted off Little Girl Point and taken to shore in waiting boats.

Gale Blows Down Buildings in Newark

NEWARK, O., March 9.—A 60-mile gale, accompanied by rain, hail, thunder and lightning, caused heavy damage here. Trees were uprooted, electric light and telephone wires were torn down and small buildings blown over. The city was in darkness at intervals during the entire night.

Railroad Executive Goes Under Knife

SAYRE, Pa., March 9.—(AP.)—The condition of Edward E. Loomis, president of the Lehigh Valley Railroad Company, was said by physicians to be practically unchanged early today. Loomis was described as "very seriously but not critically ill" at a hospital following an appendicitis operation. He was stricken yesterday at Wilkes-Barre and was operated on immediately after reaching Sayre in a special train.

LIBERTY AT OLIVER

Patricia Pitt's Comment on Pittsburgh Society Happenings

In Mayfair
—With—
Patricia Pitt

This week-end will bring a most interesting event in the musical world, and that includes the social world since so many Pittsburgh women are interested in music.

The John E. Nelsons will give a large reception in their home Saturday night in honor of the eminent flutist—Georges Barrere and Mrs. Barrere.

Mr. Barrere will appear in the Y. M. and W. H. A. concert series Sunday night with his little symphony.

Among those asked to aid Mrs. Nelson are Mrs. Taylor Allderdice, Mrs. William Knox, Mrs. William Thaw, Jr., Madame Fitz-Randolph, Madame Julia Kasanoff, Mrs. Herbert DuPuy and Mrs. William Maclay Hall.

And here's something exciting to look forward to on March 18—a benefit hockey game by some of the amateur skaters of Mrs. George McClellan Kountz's Sunday afternoon skating class at Duquesne Garden, and the game will be there, of course, against the Nicholas Club, of Buffalo. Proceeds will be contributed to the Skimmed Milk Distributing Stations conducted by the Junior League. And tickets are to be sold at the Junior League rooms in the Clark Building.

* * *

The Civic Club of Allegheny County is going to be concerned with two events later in the spring which are of social interest. One is the University of Pittsburgh annual Cap and Gown Show, and the other a spring rummage sale.

Sponsor Show

The club will sponsor the opening night of "Pittsburgh in 1787, and the Founding of the University" on April 24, again this year.

After the Cap and Gown event will come the rummage sale—as yet the date hasn't been set. You'll recall that the Civic Club' sale a year ago, under the chairmanship of Mrs. Robert Carson, Jr., was a much-heralded event that lived up to all the expectations, and did even more than that.

* * *

National Park Seminary alumnae are planning something attractive for late March, and, of course, it's to be a benefit. The girls will give a dance March 25, in the Edgewood Club for their philanthropic work.

Among those on the committee will be Mrs. E. R. Braun, Jr., Esther Anawalt, Harriet Hespenheide, Betty Dougherty, Elizabeth and Eleanor Ewing, Mary Louise Riley, Alice Sample and Eleanor and Willa Smith.

Gossipy Chat With Nancy Jane

If, when you pass the home of the Wilmer M. Jacobys, Schoolhouse lane, you see two upraised hands, don't worry about a possible holdup going on.

The Jacobys use a pair of canvas workingmen's gloves to slip on when stirring the wood fire. And when not being used they are hung on the andirons as you can see at the right of the picture on this page.

* * *

Did you know that Schoolhouse lane has its name from the little old red schoolhouse on this picturesque little street in the East End. Quaker meetings, instead of school, are now held in it.

* * *

Mrs. Jacoby's dress in this picture is of black crepe and white satin with a gardenia-trimmed cape of white panne velvet. This smart woman's favorite color scheme is black and white.

* * *

Advance style note from Florida's exclusive bathing beach: A returned traveler tells me that rubber bathing suits, yes, rubber, with a crepe-like surface, are all the vogue. She tells me they look like silk, but do not cling to the figure so much.

* * *

A friend home from the inauguration told me she was struck by the prevalence of low-heeled shoes for daytime wear. All the women of the diplomatic and other official sets wore low-heeled shoes at the inauguration and the parade.

The newlywed William J. Kountzes, III (she was Bobby Wilson), are housekeeping in Roslyn place, East End, quite near both their families.

By MRS. CHARLES M. BREGG

Christ Methodist Episcopal Church, which has been the scene of many beautiful weddings, will serve as a setting for what is announced as "a benefit entertainment of unusual charm" on March 17. It's to be a pageant of brides under auspices of the Woman's Home and Foreign Missionary Societies. Guests will be received shortly before 8 o'clock by a group of men who will serve as ushers and will conduct the guests to their pews.

Walter Fawcett, church organist, will play and Mrs. Melissa Snyder Nowles will sing old love songs while the guests assemble. Mrs. Alexander Black, in the character of an old parishioner dreams of the lovely brides that have walked down Christ Church aisle and it is her dream which will be enacted in the pageant. The brides will wear authentic gowns in various style cycles and in the pageant will be several little girls as bridesmaids and flower girls.

Later there's to be a wedding reception in the church parlor and the Sunday school room will be given over to an exhibit of costumes and of antiques. Even to the decorations, the whole event will be like a reenactment of other days, for a local florist who has decorated the church for many of its most important weddings has been engaged for this occasion.

Among the brides will be Mrs. George McKee, Mrs. Boyd Miller, Mrs. Benjamin M. Dangerfield, Mrs. Robert M. Repp Jr., Mrs. Paul Jenny, Mrs Charles Dibert, Mrs. Clarence Vant, Mrs. John A. Succop, Mrs. Harold McCamey and Mrs. Alfred Huss. The bridesmaids will be Charlotte Ann Steffey, Peggy Lou Sheppard, Harriet Huss, Ann Heick, Helen Price and Ann Price, while little Nancy Succop and Kitty Lou McCrady will be flower girls.

Purim Carnival, Circus Viewed By 2,000

At least 2,000 persons attended the Purim carnival and circus given last night under auspices of the women's activities committee of the Y. M. and W. H. A. Hundreds of children saw the professional performance that was put on especially for them at 7 o'clock and for the 9 o'clock show the auditorium at the "Y" was filled. The "Temple of Wonders" and the fortune teller's booth also were well patronized.

One floor of the building was given over to exhibits of the work done by organizations affiliated with the "Y." The first prize went to the Jewish Home for Babies; second, to the Ladies Hospital Aid Society, and third, the Tuesday Sewing Circle, a small group of women who meet weekly to make layettes for non-sectarian distribution.

SMART PATTERNS DISTINGUISH THE NEW 1933 PIQUE BLOUSES

ONE OF the sure signs of spring is the pique blouse. It appears with the first robin, and in company with a good many harbingers of the season, it often has its wintry aspects. In spite of its summery character, the pique blouse is worn—early in the season, at least—under fur coats and with heavy woolen suits.

* * *

THE NEW 1933 pique blouse differs from the usual spring blouse in that it is smartly patterned with little dots and lozenges and squares. Many of the blouses look, at a distance, like [illegible]y printed silks. They [illegible]ot made in the usual manner of a lingerie blouse, but are in sophisticated design, with bias shoulders, fitted waists and other evidences of adroit cutting and designing.

* * *

ONE OF these new pique blouses accompanies the half-winter, half-spring suit of heavy woolen, that is pictured in today's sketch. The blouse is unusual in that instead of being pure white, it is a white of a slightly gray cast—a feature which makes it at home with less informality than the usual pique blouse. It, too, is patterned with tiny black dots. Its shoulders are broad, its sleeves wide, and its collar and yoke allied in an assymetrical fastening device that includes a bow of the fabric.

* * *

THE SUIT is woolen of a coarse weave. It is in black, in a ribbed texture. Both skirt and jacket are cut so that the ribbings, turned this way and that, form a pattern.

DINNER TO HELP FATHER COX

Friends of Father Cox throughout Pittsburgh and vicinity are rallying to his financial aid by sponsoring card parties, dances and other forms of entertainment, the proceeds of which go to the unemployment relief fund at Old St. Patrick's. All of these affairs must have the approval of the "father of the jobless" before they are announced.

Mrs. Eneanor A. O'Brien is sponsoring a chicken dinner and card party—euchre, bridge and "500"—next Sunday afternoon for Father Cox at Mountain Valley Lodge, Brookside Farms, beginning at 2 o'clock. The tickets are at $1 each including the chicken dinner.

Friends of Father Cox or others who would like to attend can reach Mountain Valley Lodge by the Washington Interurban car to Brookside Farms Station or by auto out West Liberty avenue on Washington road, turning to the left at Bethel road and then to Road Forks, turn on Brookside boulevard, turning in at Sylvania road.

The Father Cox Sun-Telegraph drive for subscriptions is going on with gratifying results. Every subscription that comes in on the blank on this page or is telephoned in with the request that Father Cox be given credit for it, brings a liberal cash commission to his unemployment relief fund.

Card Party to Aid Father Cox Fund

A card party for the benefit of the Father Cox Relief Fund will be held tonight in a hall at 6350 Frankstown avenue, under auspices of a group of East End women. The committee in charge includes Mrs. Lee Brennan, Mrs. R. Steinbach and Mrs. E. J. Cregan.

REDUCE NOW WITHOUT THYROID WITHOUT SALTS WITHOUT DIET
Here's wonderful news for women who want to make their figures slim and lovely. A great physician, who has specialized in research with the Pasteur Institute of Paris and famous clinics of America, has discovered an absolutely harmless tablet that will take off 5 or 10 pounds a month.
Now it is absurd for anyone to take dangerous drugs, or a daily dose of laxative salts that rushes food through the system half digested, and leads to chronic constipation. The new treatment contains no Thyroid Extract, no laxative drugs at all. It is a safe, natural regulator of the digestive ferments (Lipases) which control the production of fat in all human bodies.
You don't have to starve yourself or go through painful exercises. You simply take the tablets each day and continue to eat three ample meals. The fat disappears at just the places where you want to lose it. We will donate $500 to charity if anyone can prove that Vannay contains Thyroid, Iodine or any harmful drugs.
Start the treatment at once and all your fondest dreams of health and slim loveliness should come true. Ask your druggist for Vannay and be sure to see that name on the package. If he doesn't have Vannays, insist that he orders it for you.

Walter Winchell ON BROADWAY

Loot

You will remember, now that I am gone,
Only the bitter fruit of our affair.
You will wake dry-eyed in the sullen dawn,
Nor care to know if I am here or there.
So be it, dear; you own the moment's right
To crowd the glowing moments to the wall,
And kill the memory of each fair night
When we were close and love itself was all.

But I will keep close-locked within my heart
Some phrase that you made unforgettable,
Some lure or grace that made my pulses start
And held me in a strange and binding spell.

Oh, who will say that I am not more wise
To keep the best when love most surely dies!

—Don Wahn.

"I see that Mark Hellinger's dog got himself written up for being lost," observes Selma Diamond. "Bulldog nothing! He's a publicity hound!"

Bankheadliner

Those of you who admired Tallulah Bankhead in the flickers, and thought Hollywood failed her, rather than the reverse, and I'm sure there are thousands of you, will be interested in this piece of news.

Her new show, "Forsaking All Others," is a hit, so much of a hit that extra police have been required daily to keep enthusiastic Bankhead fans from storming the star's dressing room.

In fact, producers of the play are planning to play three matinees a week to accommodate the crowds that want to see Tallool in person. And Broadway is glad to hear it, because the artery loves a gambler, and Tallulah gambled her own money on "Forsaking All Others."

Sid Parrygraphs

A dramatic critic is a newspaperman whose sweetie ran away with an actor.

The Morning Mail

"Dear Walter: There is a chance that you might develop into a material institution, judging from the humble origin of the all powerful Lloyd's of London.

"Founded originally as a coffee shop by a rumor hound named Lloyd (a cynical individual not unlike 'Walter Winchell' in that he loved to dispense gossip), his establishment became the headquarters for betting brokers, who settled their wagers on any and all things with Lloyd as an arbiter in case of dispute. A rumor became authentic as soon as it was said, 'I heard it from Lloyd.'

"Betting brokers grew into underwriting syndicates and then into the present world-famous insurance company today."

Suggestion

To the chap who came in with a party of 12 and threw that big money at "Snake-Hips," the dancer at Connie's Inn, Saturday morning about 3 a. m: Weren't you the one, though? I mean the way you attracted attention by throwing that first $100 bill at Snake-Hips!

And when Snake-Hips crawled all over the dance floor in appreciation and screamed his joy—you kept throwing $100 bills at him until you had thrown six!

I don't know how or where you get your money, sir. But if it gives you a thrill to see someone's joy at receiving an unexpected donation, you might try throwing a small portion of that six hundred at some of the boys who sleep on the park benches. Their tootsies may not dance with joy—but their hearts will.

Wrong Turns to Right When A Clever Dramatist Stacks the Cards

By GEORGE SEIBEL

Perhaps few of the people who enjoy Paul Muni's acting in Elmer Rice's "Counsellor-at-Law" in the Nixon this week, stop to think that the play is built on the ethical paradox that wrong is right. They applaud the successful vindication of wrong as right—and that just shows how mankind's instinctive moral judgments rise above our rigid codes. Nobody in the audience doubts that George Simon did right when he did wrong in framing an alibi to save a young offender from a life term in prison. Later in the play nobody in the audience doubts that the ex-burglar did right in doing wrong when he committed a burglary to save George Simon from disbarment.

Mr. Seibel

There are other wrongs in the play which the audience approves as right—for instance, it is really blackmail when they get the goods on the civic reformer and make him quit to avoid exposure of himself. Few people in the audience would object if the Counsellor threw his wife out of the window and went to Europe with his secretary.

All of which shows how fragile our laws are in the hands of an expert dramatist who has also had training as a lawyer, like this Elmer Rice.

JUGGLES PROBABILITIES

Dramatist Rice juggles his probabilities just as expertly as he deals with ethics and the law.

Take the case of the ex-burglar in the law office. That is not very probable. But he has been put there by the dramatist to get the Counsellor out of a jam.

Now take the case of the civic reformer on whom the ex-burglar gets the goods by committing one more burglary. It is not very probable that this should turn out to be the only way to cut the knot.

But Elmer Rice dovetails these two improbabilities so cleverly that taken together they look like the work of Providence.

That is the art of the dramatist, which consists in preparing his audience to accept fictions as truth. In this play the telephone girl sees some one commit suicide by jumping from a window; then other people talk about it, all to prepare the audience for the Counsellor's tentative spurt in act 3 to end his life. In serious drama the audience must be convinced the dramatist is telling the truth.

SOMETHING ABOUT RICE

There are some personal notes about Dramatist Rice in the March number of The Stage.

...It tells that he is "large and fat, dressed in unpressed brown with a peach-colored shirt," and he "blinks mildly through his tortoise-shell glasses, radiating indifference, his face a blank. He keeps his hat on and rarely speaks."

"After the opening of one of his comedies, where he lounged out in a pastel shirt and the unpressed suit, he met a woman dramatist, who said, plaintively: 'Elmer, you're an elegant playwright, but a lousy dresser.' Softly came his mumble, 'You're a swell dresser.'"

"He says he dislikes the theater, that creative writing is unknown to him, and that he does it entirely for the money."

That is a pose, we may be sure, for he is said to be "intellectually thoroughly honest. He writes what he sees and he sees almost too much."

But he is a shrewd bargainer, as a recent experience shows which also reveals his intellectual honesty. Shortly after he had passed his bar examination, he quit the legal profession and started to write his first play, "On Trial." Fifteen years ago he sold this play to the silent movies, and stipulated that this sale did not include the use of sound. A short time ago he sold it all over to the talkies. When he re-read it he was shocked.

"You know," he said, "this is positively illiterate."

Sally Eilers And Tracy Together

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, March 9.—Last week, Fox decided to put Sol M. Wurtzel in charge of its old Western avenue studio and start production humming there once more. Now comes the news that his first picture will be "Lady Cop," co-starring Sally Eilers and Spencer Tracy.

Back in the days when the old studio was the hub of Fox production, these two were teamed in a picture which was to be, for them, a momentous production. It was "Quick Millions," a racketeer story, conceived by Rowland Brown.

This picture put Tracy over as a film bet, and it was responsible for Sally Eilers being given a chance to do the lead in "Bad Girl." Before that, the most important thing she'd done was a part with Marie Dressler.

Sally Eilers

The new film, "Lady Cop," tells the story of a young social worker, who tires of her job and decides upon the more venturesome career of a lady policeman. Judith Revel wrote the story, and Dudley Nichols is adapting it for the screen.

Starting dates are a little uncertain these days, but Mr. Wurtzel expects to have the company at work in two or three weeks.

Barter Art Exhibit In Warner Lobby

Coincident with the opening of "42nd Street" in the Warner tomorrow, an exhibition of works of Pittsburgh artists will open in the lobby of that theater. Thirty artists will be represented in the show, a barter exhibition, in which the exhibits will be purchasable in cash or in exchange for merchandise. "42nd Street" has been moved to the Warner because the success of its week in the Stanley called for a second week in a downtown theater.

Don Cossacks to Sing Here Tuesday

The Don Cossacks, the 36 stalwart Russians, will sing their final concert in Syria Mosque next Tuesday evening, March 14. This will be the seventh and closing concert in the May Beegle series for the season. Miss Beegle announces that checks on any Pittsburgh bank will be accepted in payment for tickets for this concert.

JOAN BLONDELL, TEARFUL, BETWEEN SCENES OF "BLONDIE JOHNSON"

Novel Movie In Fulton

By MARY SHINE

The Fulton is presenting an unusual feature this week, "Trailing the Killer," a picture in which a wolf dog is the hero, and a mountain lion the villain, while a family of engaging and inquisitive puppies provide all the comedy necessary.

Caesar, well-trained canine actor, is the shaggy but handsome Hairbreadth Harry, suspected of being a sheep-killer, who becomes an outlaw of the wilderness with his wolf mate and puppies. But in the end he vindicates himself in an exciting battle with the mountain lion and restores law and order to the much menaced herd of sheep, and the fadeout sends you away with a chuckle.

There's a second feature, "Breach of Promise," with Chester Morris being sued, his reputation ruined and nomination to the Senate squashed, by a blonde whose pride he has wounded. "Hell hath no fury—" you know the rest of it, but just like a woman, after Chester is quite beaten, she decides she loves him and there is much hullabaloo as she confesses to the court that she lied.

Plays and Players :: By WILLIAM J. LEWIS

Sam Mann, who will be seen in some of the principal roles of "Of Thee I sing" in the Nixon next week, for years was a familiar figure on the vaudeville stage. Those were the good old days when an act could come back many times and still be welcome. McIntyre and Heath rotated four skits for 50 years. "The Ham Tree," they expanded into a musical comedy that was good for two or three seasons. Likewise, Mr. Mann toured for 12 years in a vaudeville skit, "The New Leader," in which he characterized a conductor of a German band, and in which he was a headliner. However, he is back where he began, inasmuch as vaudeville did not know him until after he acquired four years of experience on the legitimate stage as a comedian in Jewish and Irish dialect character. He returned to the legit several years ago when Sam H. Harris drafted him to appear in a play called "The Americans." He plays a straight comedy role in "Of Thee I Sing," which co-stars Lois Moran, Victor Moore and William Gaxton.

All in a Day

By Mark Hellinger

SHEPHEARD'S HOTEL, CAIRO, Egypt.—Dining in Cairo is a most mysterious occupation. I can tell you the entire meaning of that remark in a few words, which is rather unusual for me. I was invited to dinner last evening by an Egyptian gentleman who had been most kind to me during my stay in his city. From 7:30 until 10:30, cocktails were served and served and served. And we only sat down to dinner at 10:30 because I, myself, suggested it!

I thought at first that I was being kidded, but I know now that is quite the usual thing in these parts. Very few hosts serve dinner before 10 o'clock or so, and almost nobody dreams of sitting down before nine.

The reason for the late dining very possibly lies in the fact that the better bars in Cairo insist upon stuffing you with the greatest variety of free lunch since the old Bowery days. As a general rule, I don't race from bar to bar. I sometimes walk, but I never race. In Cairo, however, that seems to be the accepted thing to do. The more bars you can cover in one evening, the better the time you are supposed to be having.

Drinks in Cairo cost, roughly, about 28 cents each in the best places. But with that drink goes the most astounding amount of free food that you can possibly imagine. Sardines, various meats, radishes, pickles, olives, native concoctions, cakes and different types of fish are to be had for the asking—plus any kind of sandwich you may wish to have prepared. All that goes with the drink. So, for 28 cents a man can get deathly sick without any trouble whatsoever.

Since it is quite the proper thing to cover two or three of these bars before dining, you can readily understand why the good people of Cairo do not relish the idea of eating at home until late in the evening.

These facts are presented to you in the event that you might some day be somebody's guest in Cairo. Until I got wise to the racket, I almost starved to death.

The night life of Cairo is just about what you might expect it to be. The cafes, for the most part, might have been transplanted intact from either New York or London. The shows, the music and the atmosphere are almost identical and there is nothing new for me to describe in connection with these night clubs. Accordinly, we'll let that slide.

The native clubs, for a single visit, are more interesting. The largest of these spots is located in a hall that will seat about 500 people. The tables and chairs all face a small wooden platform that has been built into the left corner of the room.

The entertainment is nothing more or less than the old-fashioned nautch dance that once gave grandpa such a kick and is still being used by carnivals and fairs to give the farmers a thrill. Nautchy but nice, as the saying goes.

Inasmuch as these spots are native and have not been disignated for the tourist trade, I suppose the color makes the single visit worth while. Besides, if you watch the faces of the natives as the girls dance, you can reach the same conclusion as I did.

And that is that, after all, there isn't a great deal of difference between the farmer in Southern Kansas, the farmer in Cairo and the farmer in the New York night clubs . . .

Highly interesting to me was my recent visit to the Heliopolis Hotel, on the outskirts of Cairo. I had heard about this place many times and I had heard many fantastic stories about it. So I determined to find out for myself. And the result was one of the most interesting nights of my trip thus far.

The Heliopolis—situated about four miles outside of Cairo proper—is unquestionably one of the most beautiful hotels in the entire world. Come to think of it, I'm almost willing to state that it is THE most beautiful. I've seen nothing to compare with it in either the United States or Europe. And I doubt whether the Orient can boast of any establishment quite as beautiful.

At the same time—and this should make some of the boys I know back in New York feel a little better—it is the largest hotel lemon in existence today. I have no actual figures at hand, but those who know their Cairo assure me that the Heliopolis is practically empty throughout the entire season. Ten guests in this vast and gorgeous establishment are considered a crowd; 20 guests are a convention. And there are plenty of days when this palace is absolutely empty.

Yet everything moves exactly as though the Heliopolis had guests in every one of its magnificent rooms. There are just as many servants, just as many bartenders, just as many clerks. They do nothing. Yet there they are.

The story behind it explains everything very simply. The owner is a Belgian who resides in Cairo, and he is one of the wealthiest men in the entire world. The Heliopolis development goes on for miles, and some of the finest homes and the most modern apartments in Cairo have been built upon it. It is a large city in itself—and the Belgian who owns the hotel also owns practically the entire place. And by that I mean power, cars, lighting, apartments — everything.

Accordingly, the Heliopolis Hotel was built as an advertisement rather than as a money-making proposition. If it would eventually turn into money, so much the better. But even if it didn't, it would always serve as a monument to the success of the Heliopolis development. With an eye toward the future, the builders also constructed a huge room that might some day be converted into one of the world's most attractive gambling casinos. But up until the present, the proper permission has not been secured.

The rates in the Heliopolis are not high. Indeed, when compared with other and far inferior hotels in Cairo, they are ridiculously cheap. But the distance from the main stem and the fact that the hotel has the reputation of never having anyone in it, keep the guests away.

Thus, when you walk through the gardens and enter the breath-taking lobby, you come upon a veritable temple of mystery. On the left stand clerks with no clerking to do. Distributed at different posts are servants who have no one to serve. On the right, through a short corridor, is an ultra-modern bar with the most amazing appointments. But the only signs of life are the two bartenders, who keep polishing and polishing for the customers who never arrive.

Throughout the entire establishment, everything is the same. Beauty is everywhere, but there are few to appreciate it. Sometimes, when there is a cocktail dance, the young people spend an hour or two in the hotel—and then leave abruptly. An hour or two of gaiety, and another week of silence.

Strange. All very strange. I left the Heliopolis with a feeling of awe, and not a little sadness. As I was driven away, I looked back and saluted involuntarily. It was like a futile gesture of farewell to a beautiful mausoleum.

TELL IT TO ELSIE

Follow This Unusual Feature Day by Day

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Marriages Through Pity Are Unsuccessful

Marriages for pity—do they ever pay?

Here's Joan, for example, whose Hero goes off and has a Good Hard Cry, if she refuses to share his weepy lot for life—

Is it up to her to be big-hearted and marry him, because he'd "be so lonely" if she quit?

A strange situation? No friends, one of the commonest. Many and many a girl has been nagged into matrimony because she couldn't say "no!" to a fit of pouts. But was it ever a success? You tell Joan.

Dear Elsie:

I've been keeping company for four years with a man who is eight years older than I. He is everything that is good. A steady worker, a good clean fellow. He has no bad habits, and he is wonderful to me. Two years ago, I promised to marry him.

Now, lately, I seem to be getting tired of him. I don't know why. I just am. I don't get any thrill out of seeing him, or even out of having him kiss me.

In fact, I seem to just "take him as a matter of course," while he is always doing something nice for me, and telling me how much he loves me. I don't even bother to primp up for him when he comes to see me, like I would—and did—for other fellows.

When I told him I didn't get thrilled about seeing him any more, he carried on terribly. He even cried. And everywhere I go he tags after me, until I think I'll go mad, I'm so fed up with him.

I really think we should "call it quits," but I hate to hurt him. I know that if I tell him that's what I think, he will carry on just as he did before. His parents are dead, and he is so alone that I feel sorry for him. Then, too, he being so much older than I, it is only natural that he should want to settle down and have a home of his own now. He has gone with lots of girls, and has really "had his fling," while I don't feel as though I have.

LIKES ANOTHER MAN

I have even prayed that he would fall for some other girl, so that I wouldn't have to tell him how I feel, and he wouldn't be hurt, but he won't look at another girl.

My friends all say that I should be glad to have such a wonderful fellow, but I am not. And can I help it if I don't feel the same way he does?

I've met another man now, too, and I like him a lot (he was introduced to me by this man I'm engaged to), but what good does that do me, even if he should like me too? I'm as good as married to the first man, it seems. Please help me. I'll be anxiously waiting for your answer. What shall I do?

JOAN.

What'll you do?

Make a break, youngster!

Tell this man the truth about the way you feel. And don't let him weep you out of it. No marriage gone into through pity can ever be successful. For you, it would be a prison. You would resent it, and resent the weakness of the man who had wept you into it. And no matter how hard you tried not to, you'd show that resentment. Then the rows would start—and another divorce would be under way.

"But he'll carry on so," you say.

LET HIM RAVE

Yes, he probably will. He'll Put On His Act, just as he did before. He'll remind you of all the favors he has done you; of the dreams he has cherished. He'll do everything in his power to make you feel that it is your duty to marry him and that you are a common cheat if you don't.

All right! Let him rave! But stick to your guns, sissy.

Nothing that he has ever done for you has given him a mortgage on your life. And no man with an ounce of character would try to bully you into marriage by tears or threats.

Suppose the situation were reversed. Suppose he had grown bored—as he often did grow bored in those days when he was "having his fling."

Would he think that any lady's tears gave her an option on his life if he wanted to quit?

He certainly wouldn't! So learn about love from that, youngster, and give him some of those answers which he has so often handed out. Tell him, firmly, that you won't go on—that marriage without love would be a tragedy—and that you refuse to continue living a lie.

But suppose he blubbers?

Then let him blub!

By FAY KING

When I read that the brave woman who grasped the arm of the assassin and saved President-elect Roosevelt's life, received a telegram from him thanking her, I could not help thinking that a telegram can never mean as much as a letter.

How rich are the treasures of original autographs and messages hand done by the great in other generations.

The telegraph is a great convenience when it come to saving time and for urgent messages.

But nothing can take the place of a hand-written letter to treasure and keep, and this generation loses so much of that great value in typewriting and telegraph.

Heart of a Wife

Continuation of Love's Reawakening

By ADELE GARRISON

Lee Chow Demands to Be Taken to Hugh

"Unable to get in touch with you." I repeated Lee Chow's words to myself, my pulses bounding with excitement and fear. They could mean but one thing, I thought. He had been in the power of the Chinese, and the thing we had dreaded was true. The Chinese bandits who had menaced us at the farmhouse were behind the kidnapers of Marion and Carolyn, and their situation was much more perilous than if Charles Owen had been the instigator of the plot, as we at first thought.

Fear was so strong upon me, that I forgot his demand to tell him everything that had happened since the day before, and blurted out:

"Then those Chinese bandits of the farmhouse did get you after all, as Hugh feared!"

"I do not know what Maj. Grantland feared. Perhaps you will be so good as to tell me what has happened?"

"Everything has happened," I said quickly, repressing a primitive desire to slap that quietly composed look from his face. Then, as briefly as possible, I told of my telephone from the Chinese-sounding voice, summoning me to the mountain glen tea-room; of my discovery of the message, ostensibly from the Chinese bandits, and demanding Marion's lockbox, which I had found, as they had directed, beneath the candles in the pewter "two horse candlestick"; and lastly, of Hugh's discovery that Lee Chow had been missing from his hotel for 24 hours.

ASKS ABOUT HUGH

"So! Major Grantland has discovered that the bandits of the farm house are behind this kidnaping, and that they captured me! Where is my friend now?"

I stared at him in astonishment.

"Do you not know? Did not Dr. Barnes tell you?"

"Dr. Barnes is a very cautious man, and justly so," he said. "Major Grantland seems to have been so sure that I—could not get away from—my captors—" Did I imagine it, or had that wraith of a smile made a second appearance?—"that he left no message for me. Naturally, all Dr. Barnes could do, as he said the men were all out of reach, was to ask you to come over. But please do not delay telling me where Major Grantland is."

There was urgent necessity in that voice, quiet and monotonous though it would have sounded to the casual ear, and I answered quickly, my own voice sharpened by vague fear.

"He is with my father, Mr. Underwood and a force of other men. They are starting up the mountain to the house where they believe the girls to be hidden."

"How do they know the girls are there? I know of the code note Marion sent, but—but—"

WANTS TO JOIN FRIEND

"My husband found the house Marion described," I interrupted quickly, "and today he was sure he saw their signal. He will fly low over the house exactly ten minutes before the time for the attack from the woods, and at the sound, the girls will barricade their door and lie flat upon the floor, out of the range of possible bullets."

"You have not mentioned Mr. Brixton. Is he one of the party?"

"Oh, You do not know, then?"

"Please do not delay telling me where he is.'

"No one knows, but we think he is in the hands of the kidnappers." And then I sketched briefly the other events.

Lee Chow was silent for fully a half minute after I told him this, then he spoke with quick decision.

"I must get in touch with Major Grantland immediately. You came in a car, did you not?"

"Then you must take me to him at once."

Correct Manners

By Mrs. Cornelius Beeckman

Correct Form of Signature

Dear Mrs. Beeckman:

I am experiencing difficulty in signing my name correctly since my marriage. I recently sent out invitations for a party, signing my name DOROTHY AIMES BURROWS, and I have since learned that this signature is used exclusively by divorcees, and so forth. I have been given to understand that the correct form would be Dorothy Burrows. Kindly advise me which is correct?

Mrs. William Burrows, Jr.

I can't imagine why anyone should tell you what you were told about the signature that you signed to these notes of invitation. If your maiden name was Dorothy Aimes and your married surname is Burrows, your correct informal signature is:

Very Sincerely Yours,
Dorothy Aimes Burrows.

You may, if you wish, drop the surname of your maiden name, and sign your name Dorothy Burrows but most women are proud of the surname of the maiden name and wish to keep it in the signature.

How to Keep Well

By DR. ROYAL S. COPELAND

"Ringing in the Ears" a Warning of Trouble

Recently I told you about the causes of common ear complaints and tried to advise you how to prevent them. Today, I want to point out some of the complications that may follow the neglect of ear trouble.

Dr. Copeland

Many persons are unaware certain symptoms from which they suffer really come from ear trouble. For example, vertigo, or dizziness, is sometimes a sign of a chronic inflammation in the ear. Few realize this.

Of course, not all cases of dizziness are caused by ear disease. Impacted teeth, eye disturbances, diseases of the heart and blood vessels, stomach or intestinal ailments, poisoning by quinine, alcohol or other drugs, may produce dizziness.

"Meniere's disease" is the name given to a group of symptoms which may be caused by various afflictions of the ear, or the nerve of the ear. Vertigo, that is, dizziness, is a characteristic sign of this disease. The vertigo, or dizziness may be so marked as to cause the sufferer to lose his balance and fall to the ground. Sudden loss of hearing and ringing in the ears are other signs of Meniere's disease.

"Tinnitus," or ringing in the ears, is a common complaint in chronic disorders of the ear. It is usually described as a ringing, or a hissing sound, like the escape of steam. Often it is the only warning of increasing loss of hearing. The sufferer is astonished when the hearing is tested and he finds himself to be partially deaf.

Tinnitus is sometimes found in certain constitutional disorders. For example, it may be a symptom in high blood pressure, Bright's disease, anemia, or thyroid disturbance.

Tinnitus is usually worse at night. Indeed, it may be entirely absent during the day time. In certain cases it may disappear for months and then reappear. It usually disappears in the late stages, just prior to the complete loss of hearing.

Such names as "vertigo" and "tinnitus" are not important to most of us. But since they are generally used in conversation and discussions about diseases of the ear, I mention them. If you have either, or any complaint similar to those I have described, I urge you to consult with your doctor.

Fortunately, Meniere's disease is a rare affliction. But there are innumerable forms of ear disturbances which, if neglected, lead to partial or complete deafness.

No matter what its cause deafness is a handicap and a stumbling block to happiness. Most cases can be traced to carelessness and the early neglect of ear complaints which are curable in the beginning.

Answers to Health Queries

A.—This is probably due to gas.

* * *

J. M. C. Q.—What causes gas in the stomach?

A.—This is usually due to a faulty diet and poor elimination. Send self-addressed, stamped envelope for full particulars and repeat your question.

Contract Bridge

HOW TO PLAY and HOW TO WIN

By JOSEPHINE CULBERTSON

Forcing Discards

While it is probably true that the game of Contract Bridge will never become wholly standardized, and it would be an unfortunate thing if this should ever happen, it is amazing to find how closely sound ideas of bidding are accepted throughout the world. Here, for instance, is a hand played in far-away New Zealand, down where the "hole in the sky," referred to in the Book of Job, is visible to the naked eye, and yet the bidding and play of Mr. Charles L. Eastgate, who held the South hand, followed closely the principles generally accepted in America, in England and in Continental Europe.

South, Dealer.
Neither side vulnerable.

	♠ K Q ♡ K 9 7 2 ◇ A K 6 ♣ Q 7 6 3
♠ — ♡ A Q 5 4 ◇ Q 8 7 4 2 ♣ A K 5 4	North West East South	♠ 5 3 ♡ J 10 8 6 ◇ J 5 ♣ J 10 9 8 2
	♠ A J 10 9 8 7 6 4 2 ♡ 3 ◇ 10 9 3 ♣ —

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
4 ♠ (1)	Pass	6 ♠ (2)	Pass
Pass

1—South's four-spade bid certainly is justified. The hand, at most, has six losers, and if this many tricks are to be lost, then East and West must certainly have a game.

2—Highly questionable; in fact, distinctly bad. South has guaranteed no outside strength and his bid is probably an overbid of 2 to 3 tricks.

3—With 3½ honor-tricks, the Double of the Slam appears justified, even with the strong warning of very freakish distribution.

The Opening lead was the King of clubs, which was ruffed by South. A small spade was led to the King in Dummy and another club returned and ruffed. The Dummy was re-entered by a second lead of spades and the third club led and ruffed, the Declarer hoping that the Ace might drop and thus assure the making of the contract. As this did not happen, however, it appeared to South that the only chance to make the contract was to force his opponents to discard. West was forced to retain the club Ace so long as the Queen remained in Dummy. He chose as his discards three hearts, retaining the Ace, and two diamonds. When the last trump was led, however, he discarded a small diamond, and South was thus enabled to drop both the Queen and Knave of diamonds on the Ace and King and make his contract.

TODAY'S QUESTION

♠ 10 9 7 ♡ A J 9 4 ◇ K 9 6 5 ♣ A 5

Answer—One heart, in accordance with the modern One-over-One principle—a Takeout in the shaded heart suit is preferred to a diamond Raise or notrump response.

Household Hints

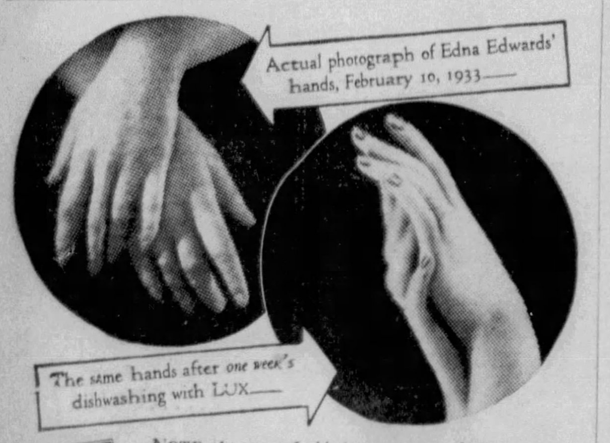
To give a glazed surface to pastry and cookies, brush the top, before baked, with 1 tablespoon of egg yolk mixed with 1 tablespoon of cold milk.

Milk can be prevented from boiling over by the use of an outer saucepan containing water. Place the smaller saucepan containing the milk in the larger saucepan of water and boil together. There is then no danger of the milk boiling over.



LUX

NOTE the remarkable improvement in just one week. If your hands are red and rough from using harsh soap, try using Lux for dishwashing and see them grow smooth and white!

FINANCIAL TITAN DOOMED, SAYS F. R.'S BOOK

NEW YORK, March 8. — (AP.)—President Roosevelt in his book "Looking Forward," says:

"I do not believe that in the name of the sacred word, Individualism, a few powerful interests should be permitted to make industrial cannon fodder of the lives of half the population of the United States."

The book will be published March 16.

Continuing, the President has written:

"I believe that the individual should have full liberty of action to make the most of himself.

"I believe in the sacredness of private property, which means that I do not believe that it should be subjected to the ruthless manipulation of professional gamblers in the stock market and in the corporate system.

"I share the general complaint against regimentation; I dislike it not only when it is carried out by an informal group amounting to an economic government of the United States, but also when it is done by the government of the United States itself.

"I believe that the government, without becoming a prying bureaucracy, can act as a check or counterbalance of this oligarchy so as to secure initiative, life, a chance to work, and the safety of savings to men and women, rather than safety of exploitation to the exploiter, safety of manipulation to the financial manipulator, safety of unlicensed power to those who would speculate to the bitter end with the welfare and property of other people.

"A mere builder of more industrial plants, a creator of more railroad systems, an organizer of more corporations, is as likely to be a danger as a help. The day of the great promoter or financial titan, to whom we granted everything if only he would build or develop, is over."

CLINIC PLANNED IN BEECHVIEW

Opening of a medical clinic in the Beechview Community Center today was expected to be accomplished next week with physicians in the district reported co-operating in the movement.

Mrs. C. V. Roper, chairman of the Beechview Community Center Medical Clinic committee, said dentists also were expected to offer services in the clinic. Mrs. Roper quoted one physician's viewpoint as:

"We are very happy to give our services. Most doctors have been donating services to many people for some time. Pride keeps many people away from the doctor when care is needed. If a medical clinic is established at the center, we will be able to do much more for the health of the community."

bine the qualities of a Cicerone and a high power advertising man, in wanting to show you things.

You enter a hall one hundred feet high and see a gigantic machine in the center capable of exerting fearful strength in crushing or in tension. As you enter, the giant machine, with trained professors of physics directing mechanics, is about to test the strength of a bar of high quality steel six inches in diameter.

Moved to an upper gallery you look down upon the performance. There is no knowing what unexpected results the application of great force may produce.

The steel bar is drawn out slowly without sound as its particles are dislocated. Finally it gives way, breaking with a most horrible roar that startles even those accustomed to such tests and shakes the building.

It has taken a pull of one million, four hundred thousand pounds to break that little six-inch bar. Yet the force that you have just seen exerted would not pull apart one of the atoms that make up that steel bar, of which a million might lie invisible in the palm of your hand. Thus little facts make you understand that this universe was built to "stay put."

IN ANOTHER building you meet Prof. E. L. Lawrence, only 32 years old, engaged in "bombarding" those recalcitrant atoms, driving the electrons, shining, from the nuclei to which they cling as our planet clings to its sun.

He develops fantastic figures in electric power by strange methods with complicated apparatus that would make the cavern of an ancient alchemist look as simple as a baby's playroom.

ON THE FLOOR of the great hall where you have seen the steel bar torn apart, a dozen skilled men, directed by members of the faculty, are constructing on a minute scale, only 100 feet long, a duplicate of the entire bridge that will reach from Oakland to San Francisco.

Every bit of metal, every column of steel, all cables for suspending weight, are included in that small working model that, with infinite pains and absolute exactness, duplicates what is to be the strength and the burden of the great bridge when it is constructed.

President Sproul, who accompanies you, explains that much less labor, trouble, time and expense are needed to build a model of the bridge as it will be, than to work out the mathematical calculations necessary to insure certainty of safety.

IT IS LATE in the afternoon, when you visit laboratories in which Prof. Lawrence is attacking the atom with radio bombardment and carrying on other important experiments.

You find him surrounded by enthusiastic, intelligent young undergraduates, their work for the day done, and they eagerly assist Prof. Lawrence "on their own time" to learn from him.

DR. GILBERT N. LEWIS, dean of the school of chemistry, that occupies one huge building, is dealing at the moment with a tiny creature of biology, about as big as a small paring from your little finger nail, almost transparent, one of the great family of termites.

Dr. Lewis, whom, by the way, European scientists have called "one of ten indispensible men on earth" because of his contributions to scientific knowledge and the value of his present studies, has at this moment thousands of these little termites at work on various samples of wood, which they devour ceaselessly.

They are important to you, for if they got the upper hand they might, like several of their brothers of the insect world, make human life on this planet impossible.

CERTAIN KINDS of wood they dislike they will not touch. Such woods should be used in hot climates where termites thrive. Certain chemical treatment of wood makes them avoid it. While most dangerous in the tropics, termites thrive as far north as British Columbia, and are always a menace.

The innocent ask:

"How can such tiny things digest hard wood?"

Dr. Lewis tells you they do digest it. Their bodies are filled with microscopic parasites that digest the wood after the termite has swallowed it. Having digested the wood the parasites produce some substance on which the termite lives.

Is that complicated enough for you?

A creature so small you can scarcely see it, gnawing at wood, and depending for its life on having thousands of other creatures, that the naked eye could not see. Dr. Lewis shows pictures of them, made by microscopic photography, working in the dark inside the termite host, then waiting for him to swallow down wood that they may eat it.

THE NEXT telegraph station at Gallup, New Mexico, is approaching, not allowing time to tell of Dr. Lynch's admirable work in the long fight against cancer, or of Dr. William J. Kerr's extraordinary achievement in attaining a degree of cold almost equal to the absolute zero that surrounds us in space.

All matter acts strangely at such a temperature. It is the natural condition of the universe, with here and there specks of dust called suns and planets. There is not time to tell you about the marvelous foetal skeletons, perfectly prepared to show you what you looked like at various times before you were born, beginning six weeks after your important career started.

A learned young doctor of philosophy from Glasgow is responsible for that, with a brilliant young Austrian who does the difficult work. It would interest and surprise you to see yourself at four months, unborn, with a magnificently developed skull almost as big as the rest of your body, and a forehead that if kept through life would make you the wonder of the ages.

Perhaps we shall come back to such shapes in times to come. Embryology that reviews the past may forecast the future.

THERE IS not time or space to tell anything about what is perhaps the greatest department of the University of California, the Hooper Foundation for Medical Research across the bay in San Francisco.

There science fights the diseases that threaten all human beings—infantile paralysis, botulism, tularemia, parrot fever. Of these works, and the scientists responsible, you shall hear later.

TRADE GROUPS BACK 'BUY U. S.'

The Master Plumbers Association of Pittsburgh and Vicinity, and the Merchant Plumbers Association of the North Side, have indorsed "Buy American" and pledged themselves to purchase as much as possible in the Pittsburgh area.

The passing of the resolutions was noted by F. J. Hanley, president of the Master Plumbers, and Thomas F. Scanlon, secretary, who sent the indorsement to the Sun-Telegraph:

Scanlon wrote:

"Please be advised that the Master Plumbers Association of Pittsburgh and Vicinity and the Merchant Plumbers Association of the North Side have indorsed the 'Buy American' program sponsored by the Hearst newspapers and in addition, a resolution was passed to patronize Pittsburgh dealers and employ only Pittsburgh labor."

Move to Extradite Slaying Suspect

HARRISBURG, March 9. — (AP.) — Gov. Pinchot yesterday signed requisition papers for the extradition of Jesse Hayes from Harlan, Ky., to Indiana County, Pa., to face charges of slaying John Bellas in November, 1928.

Last month Gov. Ruby Lafoon refused to extradite Hayes on the ground that information contained in a previous requisition was insufficient to justify surrendering the man.

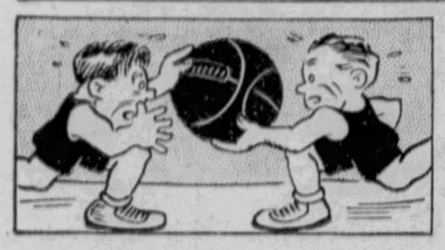
PIRATE SQUAD BREAKS CAMP, HEADS FOR 'FRISCO



SUN-TELEGRAPH SPORTS

BEST IN PITTSBURGH — THURSDAY, MARCH 9, 1933 — SEVENTEEN

SPORT COMMENT

By James J. Long

Reese Deal New Puzzle. South High Stirs Fans.

REPLACEMENT READY WHEN PIE SLIPS

EVERY PIRATE FOLLOWER hopes that the day when Pie Traynor will start to slow down is still far in the future, but it is consoling to know that when that times comes for the oldest of the Buccaneer regulars the club will be prepared for the break in the ranks by having a capable replacement at hand to send into the gap at third base. Bill Brubaker, rookie third sacker, continues to show up in the impressive style that made him one of the standouts among the young players tried out in the major leagues last fall.

Bill Brubaker

In seven games for the Bucs in 1932, Brubaker not only did a smooth fielding job, but socked the apple for the healthy average of .417. In the three practice jousts at Paso Robles so far he has batted .400 and is demonstrating that his fine showing of last fall was not a mere flash. He fields the position like a veteran, leaves no doubt that he carries a punch, and all around the 22-year-old recruit has just about convinced everybody that he is one of the best prospects in the big show. If Brubaker must be sent away for further seasoning, it probably will be an agreement for a quick recall, and there need be no worry about third base if Traynor should be incapacitated. The kid can step in and play the sack and hit the ball well enough to satisfy anybody.

DOWN IN MIAMI, Max Carey has been beseiged by youngsters who hitch-hiked to the Florida resort to get a tryout with the Dodgers. Most of them are without uniforms and may have to work out in bathing suits and street shoes.

They'll do some funny things to get a trial with a big league ball club. Almost three weeks after the departure of the first squad for the coast, Sam Watters, Pirate vice president, reports receipt of a letter from a rookie who wants a tryout with the Bucs. But that isn't all of it. The letter was sent by air mail from Coraopolis, 12 miles from Pittsburgh.

MANY FANS ARE wondering at the action of the Cardinal management in selling Infielder Jimmy Reese outright to Los Angeles instead of transferring him to one of the St. Louis club's chain stores.

The Los Angeles club is owned by the Cubs, and there are some guesses that the release of Reese to the Bruin farm may be part of a deal between the Cubs and Cards, possibly involving Dazzy Vance.

DIAMOND DUST: The American League has two pitchers named Walter Brown, but there is a great difference between them in size, the one with the Yankees weighing 215 pounds and the one with the Red Sox only 165. Whitey Glazner, former Pirate pitcher, has applied for a job on the Knoxville (Tenn.) club, along with two other veterans in Guy Morton and Red Wingo. With two left-fielders on his hands in Goose Goslin and Heinie Manush, Joe Cronin has decided to move Goslin to right. It took Ralph Kreas just five minutes to convince Lew Fonseca that he can't play second base, and now he gets a trial in the outfield. Bucky Harris thinks Ervin (Pete) Fox, Texas League batting champion, will be a regular outfielder for the Tigers. Lynwood Rowe, Detroit pitcher, has starred also in football, basketball, track, golf, tennis and swimming. Stanley Hack, of the Cubs, has received an aviator's license. New Jersey has 16 residents playing in the major leagues, but none among the Pirates.

Earl Averill

DURING THE WINTER, Joe McCarthy sought to get Earl Averill from Cleveland, trying to convince the Indian management that the slugging outfielder might lose his punch in the Cleveland Stadium, whereas he would find the Yankees' park greatly to his liking.

But Roger Peckinpaugh decided to keep Averill on the chance that Earl might be able to shift his batting style to suit the Indians' new grounds. Averill must change from right-field pulling to straightaway hitting.

But a hoist that would have cleared the wall at the old park is only a lazy fly to the right fielder at the new grounds. For a player who always had been strictly a pull hitter it would be almost hopeless to attempt a switch, but inasmuch as Averill originally was able to hit to all fields, the Indian bosses believe he can get back to it.

THE DEATH OF Tug Wilson in England the other day at the age of 86 recalled to fistic veterans the time when Wilson caused himself to be talked about by staying four rounds with John L. Sullivan and picking up $4,000 for his success in escaping a knockout. The affair was staged in old Madison Square Garden, New York, on July 17, 1882, five months after Sullivan had won the heavyweight championship from Paddy Ryan. Ordinarily such a feat would have made Wilson something of a fistic hero, but the way he did it brought only jeers from the ringsiders and oaths from Sullivan.

TUG STAYED THE four rounds by running and grabbing and flopping to the floor at every opportunity. One account says he went down 19 times and another puts it at 26. It must have been a swell evening for the referee. But Wilson got the $4,000 promised for a Sullivan failure, which evidently was his main object.

Moreover, Tug readily agreed to try it again when Sullivan proposed a second bout, but the authorities stepped in and prevented it. At that, though his performance against Sullivan was considered a joke, Wilson must have been either tough or cagey, as he took part in 50 fights and never was knocked out.

RIGHT NOW THERE is as much enthusiasm on the South Side over the capture of the city interscholastic basketball championship by South High School's crack team as there was in the days of that school's early successes in the floor sport almost a quarter of a century ago.

South High, with its Johnny Baker and Danny McGarey, won the title in 1909-10, next the Gentille-Callahan combination bagged it in 1916, and the Mickey Gross-Callahan outfit turned in another triumph in 1918. Those were all good teams, but many South Siders pronounce the present quintet the best of the lot. Some veterans say it's hard to decide, but there's no disputing the fact that in the new champions Grover Washabaugh, the able coach, developed not only a great team, but a rare combination of fighters, as attested by their success in winning many important games in the final minutes of play.

Grover Washabaugh

IT MAY BE timely to recall the make-up of those former South High champions. The players of 1909-10 were Johnny Baker, Dan McGarey, Ollie Lobert, a brother of Hans; Pulaski, Lloyd, Schein, Rectenwald and Erickson. The 1915-16 team had Al Callahan, Phil Gentille, Al Biegelman, Paul Gross, Rosser, Maynard and Joe Miller. On the 1917-18 squad were Callahan, Barney Broderick, Jack Lehner, Orson Valentine, Bryce Swyers, Francis McDonnell and Milton (Mickey) Gross. Four of the Gross boys have played important parts in South High basketball, first Charles, then Paul and Walter, and lastly Mickey. The last named will be on the alumni team in the game against the new champions next week, along with Baker, McGarey, Broderick, Gentille, Lehner, Callahan, McDonnell and other old South stars.

SCHOOL CHAMPIONS MEET

REGULARS WIN FINAL TUSSLE WITH YANS

By CHARLES J. DOYLE
Staff Correspondent.

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 9.—The Pittsburgh Pirates said farewell to their training quarters here this afternoon as they headed for San Francisco to begin their spring exhibition games. The trip to San Francisco was expected to take six hours.

The stay at Paso Robles has been so successful that Manager George Gibson could hand in a lineup of championship caliber were the National League season to open tomorrow. The start of the big chase is nearly five weeks away, yet the Pirates are set with practically every position decided and the batting order almost definite. The trick is now to keep the edge for five weeks.

HURLERS IN DOUBT

Only the pitching department bears a doubt as to makeup. The club will carry nine pitchers through a part of the season and there are 11 on the staff. Six or seven berths are practically decided with the others in an open fight for the loose-leaf berths. The status of Waite Hoyt, Charley Wood and Bill Harris, is doubtful, although this trio show enough in Paso Robles to merit serious consideration.

Hoyt, still a youngster in appearance, was one of the hardest workers since the sharpshooters landed here two weeks ago. Waite seems to have everything except a good curve, and his control and knowledge of his art might hold him on the club, provided he stays as serious as he has been from the day of the first drill.

Spades Woods is in the eclipse of a powerful lefthander named Ralph Burkofer, who stole the show at Paso Robles. The 200-pound Western Leaguer is making all the catchers seek new linings for their big mits. And his hook is a darb.

The four infield positions and three outfield posts already are decided with a chance that Adam Comorosky might crowd into the select circle. If you wish to see a serious-minded Pole, you should watch Commy since he landed.

INFIELD SET

Capt. Traynor is sure to be flanked by Arky Vaughan, Tony Piet and Gus Suhr, and if you think those four big, rangy boys are not ball hawks, you should be glad the banks are closed. Any one of the four can eat a baseball, and if things get any tougher around San Francisco, Gus Suhr will lay in a supply.

The only fly in the infield ointment is to be found in Pie Traynor's throwing shoulder. Pie has to "dip-si-do" the balls on account of the soreness, but he says he will be o. k. when the bell rings.

The Waner boys and Lindstrom in the pasture are as fascinating as sunset on the Pacific.

Oh, yes, the Hooligans took it on the chin in the last camp game yesterday. It was another close battle, however, the score being 2 to 1 in favor of the Regulars.

Aside from some clever pitching on the part of four rookies and sharp fielding by Adam Comorosky, the big moment of the game came in the eighth when Honus Wagner batted for Floyd Vaughan. The daddy of them all laid a per-

EXPLANATIONS OF RIPLEY'S CARTOONS OF YESTERDAY: A HOLE 35 MILES LONG—The longest hole ever played at golf was one measuring 35 miles in actual play, the tee being in Linton Park, near Maidstone, and the putting green at Littlestone on Sea, England. This remarkable golf match took place as a result of a wager to determine the number of strokes in such a long hole. The start was made in the early morning from the north gate at Linton Park. At the sixty-five shot, the River Beult was reached; at 11:25, Mr. Oyler reached Hertsfield Bridge; at the nine hundred and fifteenth stroke the players made Brensett. The main sewer draining Romner March had to be crossed, and the one thousandth stroke bounced off a sheep. A mashie shot landed the players on the first green of the celebrated links at Littlestone, a putt rested within four feet of the hole, and, with the one thousand and eighty-seventh stroke Oyler holed out at 11:38 on the third day. GIACOMO PUCCINI—The famous composer of Madame Butterfly was the son of Michele, the grandson of Domenico, the great-grandson of Antonio, and the great-great-grandson of Ciacomo, all of whom had been professional musicians of distinction. THE PARADOX OF A BUSHEL OF PLUMS—Conflicting state laws regarding the contents of a bushel of some particular products render this measure extremely variegated. A bushel of plums in Florida is equal to 40 pounds, in Iowa it equals 48 pounds, while New Jersey, North Carolina and some other states are legally bound by a bushel of plums equal to 64 pounds.

TOMORROW: THE CURIOUS META MORPHOSIS OF A FRENCH AUTHOR.

SOCCER TEAMS FACE BATTLES

By TOM BIRKS

Two interesting soccer games are carded at South Park over the week-end. On Saturday the semi-final round of the West Penn junior cup will be staged, with Beadling and Primrose set to battle for the honor of playing in the final round.

On Sunday the sensational young McKnight club, of Castle Shannon, will face its toughest test of the season when it meets the Mt. Lebanon Club, of the Central League, led by Joe Luxbacher.

One thing is certain, and that is McKnights will have to play better soccer than they did last Sunday to beat the Firemen. Joe Luxbacher had a rugged club in the Central League and Beadling fans openly assert that the Firemen will take the measure of the McKnights.

One of the best games of the week-end finds Sturgeon and Heidelberg clashing at Heidelberg in a return game. Last Sunday the Green and Gold won out in the final minutes of play.

Sportsmen to Hold Meeting in Bellevue

The North Boroughs Sportsmen's Association will hold its monthly meeting in the Bellevue Y. M. C. A., Lincoln avenue, next Tuesday night.

Movies, taken of wild life in Alaska, will be presented as well as pictures of interest to outdoor sportsmen.

PEERLESS GAMES OFF

The Peerless A. A.-Senators basketball games scheduled for tonight and next Wednesday night have been canceled.

SPORT VIGNETTES

Sunday baseball first was played by the old Louisville, St. Louis and Cincinnati clubs back in 1892, and today Pittsburgh and Philadelphia are the only cities in the major leagues which do not have games on the Sabbath. . . . That will be corrected when the Schwartz bill becomes a law, which will be very, very soon now unless a hitch develops. . . . Jimmy Walker, who also restored legalized boxing to New York State, sponsored the bill which gave the big town Sunday baseball in 1918. . . . The World War brought Sunday baseball to Washington, and Boston followed in 1929.

It seems that, officially at least, Johny Jadick didn't lose his world junior-welterweight title to Battling Shaw when he dropped a 10-round bout at the weight to the Mexican in New Orleans recently, for he had taken the precaution to surrender the crown to the Pennsylvania Athletic Commission before making the trip South, but he did not take any steps to prevent the New Orleans promoters from advertising the match as a titular affair to help the gate . . . Since then he has lost to Wesley Ramey, also in a match at the weight . . . The question is, when does and when does not a champion risk his title?

The entry list for the annual A. B. C. tenpin tournament, which opened today in Columbus, O., shows a total of 1,597 five-men teams, 2,339 sets of doubles and 4,687 singles, with entry money amounting to $86,650 . . . Bill Andrews, former sheriff of Lawrence County, who is 64 years old, has been connected with baseball for all but 11 of those years . . . He broke in as a student in the soldiers' orphans' school at Mercer, Pa., and since then has played both the infield and outfield, managed teams and headed leagues . . . He last played on a King Tut League team in 1926.

The Mt. Union College team has just won the Ohio Conference basketball title for the third consecutive year, equaling its record of 1924, '25 and '26 . . . Frank Tamburini, of New Castle, has shot down some five score crows this year . . . The Lawrence County Sportsmen's Association supplies him with the shells with which he wages war on the hawks and crows . . . He also destroys the nests of these predatory birds . . . It is claimed that Tony Canzoneri and Fidel LaBarba, both Italians, have a quarter of a million dollars salted away out of their ring earnings.

So they finally caught up with Young Stribling, disqualifying him for wrestling in the eighth round of a bout with Pierre Charles in Paris . . . Stribling always was one of our most awkward fighters, given to pushing and pulling, and it is a wonder this didn't happen to him long before . . . They have a new welterweight sensation up in Worcester, Mass., in Johnny Rossi, who has become a card around Boston. . . . He recently fought a close losing fight with Baby Joe Gans and defeated Eddie (Kid) Wolfe . . . Maybe they'll be offering him to our Ted Yarosz soon.—HARRY KECK.

RACE BILLS UP IN 20 STATES

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—In their search for new sources of revenue to replenish depleted treasuries, the legislatures of 20 states have turned to the race track and legalized betting as a possible contributor, a national survey by the Associated Press today disclosed.

Although there is no way of definitely diagnosing legislative attitudes except by past performances, correspondents on the spot report that racing and betting bills have as good as or better than an even chance of enactment into law in 15 of those states.

Only in Texas has racing been attempted without betting and it was soon given up. Tracks in New York state, deriving no revenue from the millions bet "orally" on their races, have been run at increasing deficits as more and more fans were kept away by the necessarily high admission prices.

The 20 states in which legislation is pending are Texas, Oklahoma, New Mexico, Colorado, Oregon, California, Connecticut, Massachusetts, New Hampshire, New York, Pennsylvania, West Virginia, Delaware, New Jersey, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Michigan, Ohio, Missouri and Alabama. The bills in Alabama, Pennsylvania, New Jersey and Texas are given little chance of enactment.

Only one state, Washington, has taken action so far this year, Gov. Clarence D. Martin signing a bill on March 3 which legalizes horse racing and pari-mutuel betting. The Indiana Senate and Assembly passed differing bills which died in joint committee.

E. PITTSBURGH, AMBRIDGE IN SERIES GAME

By JULIUS LEVIN

A place in the semi-finals of the W. P. I. A. L. basketball elimination series will be the big objective of the East Pittsburgh and Ambridge High School quintets tonight as they clash in a quarter-final battle in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

Eddie Gutowski

East Pittsburgh, champion of Section XVII, already has scored two victories in the tournament, having defeated New Kensington, champion of Section I, 37-26, in the first round, and Leetsdale, champion of Section II, 23-19, in the second round.

Ambridge, champion of Section IV, advanced to the quarter-finals by disposing of Mt. Lebanon, champion of Section IX, in the first of the second round battles, 31-27.

COACHES CORRECT FLAWS

Neither East Pittsburgh nor Ambridge appeared overly impressive in their last games in the tournament and both coaches, Johnny Coleman, of East Pittsburgh, and Moe Rubenstein, of Ambridge, have taken steps to correct the flaws that cropped out in the earlier engagements.

While Ambridge did not flash its best form until the closing period of its battle with Mt. Lebanon, East Pittsburgh displayed championship form in the opening period against Leetsdale, only to crack wide open in the final three stanzas, during which the Shamrocks counted only nine points.

Two of the outstanding guards in the W. P. I. A. L. will be pitted against each other in tonight's fray, Bill Narey, of East Pittsburgh, and Eddie Gutowski, of Ambridge, both distinguished themselves in their early appearances in the tournament.

The winner earns the right to engage the Duquesne-Rankin victor of Saturday night in a semi-final tilt on Tuesday night, March 14, in the Pitt Stadium pavilion.

SOUTH HIGH TO PLAY

South High, champion of the City League and District VIII representative in the P. I. A. A. playoffs, will invade Beaver Falls tomorrow to meet the high school team of that town in the preliminary to the Geneva College-St. Thomas game. South also is dickering for games with Homestead High and the Pitt and Duquesne University freshies in order to keep in shape for its battle with the W. P. I. A. L. champion on March 21.

Finals in the eighth annual Westmoreland County scholastic tournament, originally slated for tonight, have been postponed until next Tuesday evening. The decision was made by the Westmoreland County Coaches' Association sponsoring the tournament and is due to Norwin being a finalist in the county tournament as well as the opponent of New Castle in the W. P. I. A. L. elimination here tomorrow.

Finals in the three classes of the Washington County tournament are scheduled tomorrow at Washington. The Mercer County tournament, at Grove City, will be concluded on Saturday night.

MONESSEN ADVANCES

The Monessen Greyhounds, champions of Section V and the only school to win the basketball championship of the W. P. I. A. L. three times, made rapid strides towards their fourth title last night when they defeated Ford City High, champion of Section VI, in the first battle of the quarter-final eliminations, 21 to 15, on the Pitt Stadium court.

The victory, the second scored by the Greyhounds in the tournament, advanced the Dittymen to the semi-finals and they will meet the winner of the New Castle-Norwin battle in the Pitt Stadium pavilion next Monday night for the right to compete in the championship game the following Saturday.

Strategy employed by Coach Neenie Campbell, of Ford City, which was successful in giving the Armstrong Countians a 20-19 victory in their second round engagement with Cecil, took on reverse English last night and played a prominent part in the downfall of the Section VI champions.

BAYNOR FORCED OUT

Baynor, the best bet on the Ford City roster, who turned almost certain defeat into victory against Cecil, was injected into the battle last night despite the fact he was lame because of a twisted knee. Baynor started the contest, but suffered a recurrence of the old injury shortly after the first tap-off and he gave way to Michalik, a substitute who kept his mates in

LOCAL COLLEGE VARSITIES FACE BUSY WEEK-END PROGRAM

DUKES BATTLE W.-J. FIVE IN FINAL FRAY

By JESS CARVER

College Memos:

From Duquesne—Dukes wind up season at Wash-Jeff tomorrow. Coach Chick Davies to name captain for each game next year. Appointments and elections out.

From Pitt—All Panther varsities away over week-end. Basketeers and boxers at West Virginia; track and field squad at South Bend; wrestlers at Waynesburg tomorrow.

FINAL FOR DUKES

Just one more ball game and the Dukes will have completed their most successful basketball campaign. If they beat Wash-Jeff tomorrow night (and if they don't, then we can look for the Boston Red Sox winning the world series next fall) the Bluffites will have captured 15 games out of 16 starts. It's too bad their schedule wasn't a more representative one, for the Dukes have a swell team and are deserving of more applause than they are going to get for whipping their district rivals.

In fact, it would have done the Dukes more good to have lost a couple games to ranking teams outside the immediate Pittsburgh area than to have made a clean sweep of their local schedule.

PITT TEAMS BUSY

With Rocco Cutri in Charley Hughes' varsity guard position, Dr. Clifford Carlson is preparing his Golden Panthers for a tough session with the suddenly aroused West Virginia Mountaineers Saturday night.

Track Coach Olsen is taking a squad of five men to South Bend and Notre Dame for participation in the Central Collegiate games tomorrow and Saturday.

Tomorrow evening, Pitt's varsity wrestling squad makes its first appearance, and also its last, of the season, matching grips with [illegible]nesburg's grapplers at Waynesburg.

Both the Pitt and Tech boxing teams are confronted with honest-to-goodness tough ones Saturday. Joe Orsini, who instructs the Panthers in the manly art, hikes along with the basketballers, both varsity and freshmen, by the way, to Morgantown, where he'll attempt to secure revenge for the 6-to-1 licking the Mountaineers administered here earlier in the campaign.

GENEVA VERDICT NEAR

Everyone but the janitor at Vassar has been mentioned in connection with the football coaching job at Geneva. Among those who have been considered are Frank Wolf, present head coach and athletic director at Waynesburg; Bob Waddell, recently resigned mentor at Tech; Dike Beede, former Tech star and Westminster coach; George Kavel, co-captain, along with Bill Sample, at Tech last year; Lud Wray, former Penn mentor; Jimmy Robertson, another Tech hero of the past; Moe Rubenstein, present highly successful Ambridge High School coach, a Geneva alumnus, who is too smart to quit a good high school job for any small college post; Glenn Killinger, former Penn State star; Ken Loeffler, present Geneva basketball coach, and Cal Hubbard, one of Bo McMillin's white-haired lads when the "Cunnel" was the big shot at the Covenanter institution.

The Tipoff

It took a team from good old Western Pennsylvania to hand the crack St. John's College of Brooklyn varsity basketball quintet its first defeat on its home floor in five years. That is exactly what Westminster's Titans accomplished last week as they beat the Saints, 25 to 15.

Perhaps Hank Day isn't superstitious, but it's a pretty safe bet that the W. & J. mentor won't permit photographers to snap him Presidents before any grid battles next fall. Coach Day recalled recently when the 1932 Detroit game entered a discussion that he was pestered by Detroit news cameramen to catch several of the Prexy players in various poses before the game.

Hank was unwilling, but relented in the end, however, and several varsity backs and linesmen went before the camera. The score that night was 7-0, Detroit.

Wash.-Jeff, by the way, will have no single football captain next fall. Under a ruling made at a recent meeting of the athletic council, Coach Hank Day is to appoint a captain before each game, and at the end of the season the lettermen are to elect an honorary leader for the campaign. The step was taken in hopes of eliminating "fraternity politics" that frequently has cropped up to make complications in pre-season captaincy elections, and which many President followers believe has often left an unfavorable hangover that lasted throughout the campaign.

Despite the accurate shooting of Michalik, Baynor, still limping, was sent back into the game. Baynor failed to score a point and he missed the only free shot he got from the foul line.

Ford City jumped away to a big lead at the outset, but was overtaken shortly before the first half came to a close. Field goals by Pryor and Suhorsky and single foul shots by Cullen and Valasek gave Ford City six points in the first period. Monessen, thanks to the continued brilliant play of Joe Tucci at guard, escaped a shutout, the Greyhound flash counting the only points through the medium of a field goal.

MICHALIK STARS

Michalik then started his drive to place Ford City in a commanding position by counting the first of his three field goals. Doubledeckers by Kudlik and Tucci, and a foul by Galaski, however, reduced the score to 8-7 when Tucci and Michalik engaged in a brief scoring duel. Michalik sank his second field goal, but Tucci came back with another and Ford City retained its one-point lead at 10-9. Hughes placed Monessen in front for the first time by registering a basket shortly before the sound of the gun, giving the Greyhounds an 11-10 advantage.

Tucci started the scoring in the third period by sinking one from under the hoop, but Michalik kept Ford City in the running by making his third field goal. Here Baynor was sent back into the game and Monessen started to pull away. Field goals by Galaski and Winstone followed in rapid order and the end of the third period found the Greyhounds leading, 17-12.

Ford City got only a field goal by Valasek and a foul by Proyor in the final period, while Monessen counted a field goal by Winstone and single fouls by Hughes and Galaski. The lineup:

A. M. A. Lifts Ban On Lou Peresenyi

The registration committee of the Allegheny Mountain Association of the A. A. U. has announced the lifting of the long suspension of Louis Peresenyi, who was barred for competing in the Scotch games.

The Hub A. C., of Oil City, has been granted a boxing membership, subject to the approval of the board of governors. The committee took under advisement charges of professionalism against Oil City A. C. boxers. The charges were filed by Tusky Haizlett, of Franklin.

Merkle, Tallman Victors in Florida

ORMOND BEACH, Fla., March 9.—(AP.)—Fred Merkle, of Ormond Beach, the medalist, won his way through the first round of the Ormond Beach golf championship yesterday with a 4 and 2 victory over George J. Adams, Jr., of Washington, D. C.

D. N. Tallman, Minneapolis, defeated S. L. McKay, Sarnia, Ont., 3 and 2.

Hank Day Abolishes Captain at W. & J.

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 9.—Wash-Jeff will have no single football captain next fall, it was announced today by Coach Hank Day.

The Red and Black mentor has announced the adoption of a new policy, that of appointing a captain for each game.

PIRATES HEAD FOR 'FRISCO

Chillysauce

Honus Wagner had about two minutes' notice that he was to get into yesterday's game. Bosse Gibson took Vaughan away from the plate in the eighth and the players and crowd cheered when Gibby shouted: "Go up there and hit, Honus."

Now that was unfair to get a rookie all flustered in his first time at bat. But Honus was not so shaken that he did not see Suhr on first with none out. Jimmy Crandall had been fooling the Regulars with a lot of stuff before Wagner reached the plate.

The old trick stuff was on display in a jiffy. Wagner feigned a bunt by choking his bat, but when Crandall let fly, Honus took a "cut" at the ball. It was outside and he missed it. Then, with the infielders dropping back for a sizzling wallop, Honus dropped a perfect bunt on the grass for a sacrifice.

Wagner was the recipient of two notes which gave him contrasting emotions. The first told of the death of Harry Smith, a great Pirate catcher in the days of Wagner's glory. Harry passed away at Salem, N. J., where he has lived for some time. For many years, Smith was active in the Dupont Baseball League of that section.

Thousands of Pirate fans will shed a tear for Smith, who was a lively member of the Bucco band and Pal of Honus Wagner and his brother, Alber. Claude Ritchey and Smith were teammates at Steubenville almost 40 years ago.

Wagner's other message gave him a smile. It was from Jap Barbeau, once a third sacker for the Pirates. Honus' return to the game is bringing echos from all points of the compass.

PALO ALTO, Cal.—Joseph Coughlin, Stanford captain, defeated Mrs. Helen Wills Moody, 9-7, in an exhibition tennis set here yesterday. Paired with Phil Neer, Mrs. Moody defeated Alice Marble and Jerry Stratford, 4-6, 6-0, 6-0.

NEW YORK.—A possible golf champion of the future was getting his first look at the world today. He was the new-born son of Johnny Farrell, former U. S. open champion.

NEW ORLEANS.—The race meeting at the Fair Grounds here will be resumed Saturday, and the meeting may be extended an extra week. The Agua Caliente meet will not be resumed until the California banking holiday ends.

TORONTO.—Thirty-two sports writers have selected as the 1933 all-star National League team the following: Roach, Detroit, goalie; Shore, Boston, and Johnson, Rangers, defense; Boucher, Rangers, center; W. Cook, Rangers, and Northcott, Maroons, wings.

PHILADELPHIA.—The State Athletic Commission has suspended Jack Pfeffer, New York manager of wrestlers and reinstated Phil Glassman, wrestling promoter.

RENO, Nev.—Larry Bettencourt is to wed Miss Anne Pagni, of Oakland, Cal., before reporting to the Milwaukee American Association club next week. Bettencourt is an outfielder.

KANSAS CITY.—The Wichita Henrys meet the West Texas Teachers in the quarter-finals of the A. A. U. basketball tourney here tonight. In other games Chicago meets the Pasadena Majors and Phillips U., of Enid, Okla., opposes the Tulsa Diamond Oilers.

CHICAGO.—St. Catherine's of Dubois, Pa., has entered the National Catholic high school basketball tournament to be played here March 22 to 26.

LOS ANGELES.—An agreement whereby Young Corbett promised to give Leslie Fields a return bout within six months if he won the title from him in their battle on Washington's Birthday has prevented the signing of a match between Corbett and Jimmy McLarnin in May, Jack Kearns insisted that the agreement be observed.

N. England Loop Back in Action

BOSTON, March 9.—(AP.)—The New England Baseball League has come into being again with five teams in line.

Three other teams are to be selected from a list of applicants. Claude Davidson was elected president at a meeting last night.

SCHOOL QUINTS GAIN FINALS

WASHINGTON, Pa., March 9.—Finalists have been decided in all three classes of the annual Washington County scholastic basketball tournament and will clash here tomorrow night for the titles.

Last night, in class II, Claysville defeated Peters Township, 30 to 25, to enter the final round with Centerville, which eliminated Ellsworth-Cokeburg, 25 to 22.

In class I, Donora fought its way to the final round by beating Charleroi, 22 to 21, in a closely contested battle. California became the other finalist, winning over Monongahela, 19 to 18.

FARRELL WINS

GROVE CITY, Pa., March 9.—The preliminary round in the eighteenth annual Mercer County scholastic basketball tournament, being staged on the Grove City College floor here, has been completed. Semi-final competition will be staged tomorrow night.

Last night, Farrell advanced at the expense of Sharpsville, 28 to 20 and West Middlesex defeated Mercer, 26 to 20. Tomorrow, Farrell will meet West Middlesex and Grove City will take on Greenville.

ROBESONIA NAMED

READING, Pa., March 9.—(AP.)—Mohnton high, champion of the Central division, nosed out Robesonia, Western circuit titleholders, 27 to 25, last night in the third game of a round robin series for the Berks County scholastic basketball crown.

The Mohnton victory leaves the Berks League without a champion, as the three teams in the series each won a game. Robesonia defeated Kutztown, Northern division titleholders, while Kutztown trounced Mohnton, earlier this week.

At a meeting after the game, Robesonia was selected to represent the circuit in the district 3, P. I. A. A. playoffs at Lebanon.

TITLE FRAY CARDED

MEADVILLE, Pa., March 9.—(AP.)—Randolph Township High School, of Guys Mills, Crawford County champion, and Girard Union, Erie County winner, will meet tomorrow night at Cambridge Springs to determine Northwestern Pennsylvania's Class B scholastic basketball champion. The winner will enter the Section 10 play-off in the P. I. A. A. eliminations.

W. Va. Passers Defeat Wesleyan

BUCKHANNON, W. Va., March 9.—West Virginia University varsity passers secured revenge for an early season defeat suffered on their own floor by beating the W. Va. Wesleyan Bobcats, 44 to 36, in a free-scoring game here last night.

Capt. Leo Sortet led the scoring for both teams with seven field goals and one foul for a total of 15 points. The lineup:

Wesleyan	G.	F.	Pt.	University	G.	F.	Pt.

Cue Champ Loses In Title Tourney

William Kish started off very much on the right foot last night in the opening engagement of the annual city three-cushion billiard championship tournament as he defeated the defending champion, Dale Campbell, 50 to 48, in Tobin's parlors, Smithfield street.

Both players had high runs of six.

In tonight's match, R. C. Davidson meets Pete Killmeyer.

Fight Results

At Dallas—Bobby Fernandez knocked out Harmon (Kid) Swinney, 4 rounds; Charley Montgomery won by a technical knockout over Chuck Ryan, 4 rounds.

At St. Louis—Benny Bass defeated Joe Ghnouly, 10 rounds; Allen Mathews knocked out Jack McVey, 7 rounds; Joe Huff knocked out Jack Malone, 8 rounds; Chick Raines defeated Rosy (Kid) Baker, 8 rounds.

HOLDOUT RUTH DRILLS WITH YANKEES

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla., March 9.—(AP.)—Babe Ruth, home run slugger, was the only member of the Yankees' "big three" in the holdout group to report for practice with the regular squad yesterday. Babe attracted a crowd of about 700, some 500 more than the usual gathering for the New York Yankees' drills.

Lou Gehrig, star first baseman, and Rufus Ruffing, giant right handed pitcher, the other holdouts, are expected to remain away from camp until their salary differences are ironed out. Manager McCarthy said he had heard nothing from either of them.

Joe Sewell, third baseman, is detained in Alabama on business, but will report within a few days.

Baseball Briefs

BRADENTON, Fla.—(AP.)—James J. Mooney, the Tennessee schoolmaster, whose brilliant 1931 pitching record was dulled by a tailspin while with the Giants last year, may come back and star with the Cardinals. Manager Gabby Street believes. Street said he was puzzled at Mooney's failure last year until he found that Mooney was a high ball pitcher in 1931 and the Giants tried to make a low ball pitcher out of him.

BILOXI, Miss.—(AP.)—Even baseball in these parts threatens to feel the pinch of the banking holiday. The Washington Senators' first game of the training season may be called off because depositbound fans over in Mobile were reported a bit short on ready change.

TAMPA, Fla.—(AP.)—Chick Hafey took his first workout this season with the Cincinnati Reds yesterday and celebrated his recovery from last year's illness by hitting long drives off Eppa Rixey, Larry Benton and Ben Cantwell.

SARASOTA, Fla.—(AP.)—Bernie Friberg, the Lynn (Mass.) veteran, who has spent 13 seasons in the National league, yesterday introduced himself to the new owners of the Boston Red Sox by banging one of Henry Johnson's offerings over the leftfield fence, a distance of 400 feet. Old inhabitants agreed the driver set a new Sarasota record.

HURST STILL HOLDOUT

WINTER HAVEN, Fla.—(AP.)—Don Hurst, unsigned first baseman of the Phillies, announced he probably would remain a holdout tomorrow, the day he is due in the spring training camp. He said he favored Sunday for a conference with club officials. Previously, Hurst announced he would await Legislative action in Pennsylvania on the blue law before making any salary demands.

WEST PALM BEACH, Fla.—(AP.)—Their numbers increased by the arrival of Bengough and Hebert, and the signing of Dick Coffman, the St. Louis Browns took a long workout 'n the sunshine yesterday. It was also announced that Art Scharein and Lin Storti had accepted terms.

ST. PETERSBURG, Fla.—(AP.)—Faced by Shanty Hogan, monstrous catcher, the Boston Braves yesterday gave Manager Bill McKechnie a display of long range hitting. Hogan whaled two balls out of the park. Bob Worthington reported for duty and denied he was holding out for more salary. Rabbit Maranville and Bill Urbanski were still missing.

FORT MYERS, Fla.—(AP.)—The Philadelphia Athletics Regulars yesterday again applied the big stick to the club Yannigans in a training camp game, and batted out a 17-to-5 victory.

AVALON, Santa Catalina Island, Cal.—(AP.)—Lon Warneke, Guy Bush and Roy Henshaw have been named as the pitchers for the Chicago Cubs' third exhibition game with the New York Giants at Los Angeles tomorrow. The announcement came from Manager Charley Grimm after the Regulars had won a 5-to-4 practice game from the Yannigans.

SIMMONS SOCKS 'EM

PASADENA, Cal.—(AP.)—White Sox worries over Al Simmons' health vanished yesterday as the big outfielder drove ball after ball over the fence in batting practice. Manager Fonseca intimated he may use Red Kress in right field this season. In the first inter-club game lineup he sent him to that position in place of Evar Swanson.

MIAMI, Fla.—(AP.)—Hack Wilson, one of the Brooklyn Dodgers' two holdouts, has arrived at the training camp and a conference with Joseph A. Gilleaudeau was in order today. Hack had nothing to say about his contract when he pulled in last night with his wife and his young son.

NEW ORLEANS.—(AP.)—Manager Roger Peckinpaugh watched the Cleveland Indians' pitching staff run through a long workout and intimated he may send a pair of freshmen hurlers against the New Orleans Pelicans in Saturday's and Sunday's exhibition games.

LOS ANGELES.—(AP.)—John (Bloodie) Ryan may or may not make himself a place in the New York Giants' regular lineup, but he has become the sensation of the training camp and offers a serious threat to Travis Jackson's hold on the short field berth. Ryan has turned in the flashiest fielding seen in the camp and under Manager Bill Terry's tutelage his hitting has improved.

SAN ANTONIO, Tex.—(AP.)—Ervin (Pete) Fox, Beaumont outfielder, made an auspicious debut yesterday with the Tigers and lived up to advance notices. He did some satisfying work at bat, and may be slated to play the Tiger sun field this season.

SQUASH PLAY NEARS FINAL

By PAUL G. SULLIVAN

Fast and interesting semi-final contests comprise this afternoon's program of competition in the annual city Class A squash racquets championship tournament on the courts of the Keystone Athletic Club.

In the upper half of the draw, McCook Reed, Pittsburgh Golf Club ace and defending titleholder, battles his veteran nemesis, Frank McClintock of the P. A. A., while in the lower sector Dr. Dave O'Loughlin, another accomplished Winged Head entrant, meets Bill Bickel, rangy hope of the K. A. C. Both frays are slated to get under way at 5 p. m.

M'CLINTOCK VICTOR

McClintock crashed the penultimate round through narrow-margined victory over Charley Fagan, crack home club contender, in yesterday's lone encounted. The affair went the full five games distance with McClintock spurting to triumph at 15-8, 10-15, 15-10, 7-15, 15-11.

Julius Boise, noted Allegheny Country Club tennis professional, left this morning for New York, where he will take in the national indoor championships at the Seventh Regiment Armory next Saturday and ensuing days. Boise will probably join his protege, Sam Harbison, in Gotham and aid the former Princetonian in preparing for the latter's role of Pittsburgh representative in the nation-wide board court debating.

MAY LINE UP HICKS

It is likewise the aim of Boise to communicate with Paul Hicks, lately of the crack Edgewood team here and a recent migrant to the metropolis, with a view to the alignment of the ex-Pittsburgher as Harbison's partner in the national indoor doubles, which will be run off concurrently with the singles action.

COLUMBO BOUT AT ARENA STIRS FANS

TONIGHT'S FIGHTS

Joey Speigal vs. Paul Oger and Frankie Reilly vs. E. S. Carpentier, 8 rounds each, and Tommy Blankenship vs. Battling Torchy and Nick Pallotto vs. Bob McGown, 4 rounds, Fairmont, W. Va.

Freddie Miller vs. Little Dempsey, 10 rounds, Sacramento, Cal.

By HARRY KECK

Sports Editor

It's a good bet that most of the fans who take in Signor Lew Raymond's box party in his North Side Arena tomorrow night will do so to pass judgment on one Jimmy Columbo, last of a series of fighting brothers hailing from Clarksburg, W. Va.

Jimmy Columbo

Columbo is the pleasant young chap who recently defeated Battling Gizzy 'n Clarksburg, just before the Gizzler went to Savannah, Ga., to lose by a knockout to Chino Alvarez, the well-known false alarm, who took a drubbing from Charley Baxter at Motor Square Garden last Monday night.

Jimmy has been well schooled. Learning the fundamentals from his brothers, he passed on into the capable hands of Jimmy DeForest, famous trainer, for a period before the latter's death, and now he has been turned over to Frank Klaus, of Braddock, former middleweight champion of the world, who will handle him in tomorrow night's fight, in which he meets Jackie Davis, of Cleveland, and formerly of Chicago, who has boxed Barney Ross, Harry Dublinsky, Pete Nebo and other stars. Davis is a Jewish lightweight of considerable promise.

RILEY COMES BACK

This is one of three 10-rounders. In the main event, Frankie Goosby, undefeated local Negro middleweight, meets Cowboy Owen Phelps, of Phoenix, Ariz., and the other distance event brings together Georgie Riley, Negro featherweight of Detroit and New York, who wowed the fans when he won by a technical knockout over Johnny Datto, local Filipino, in the same ring recently, and Frankie Wallace, of Cleveland, Johnny Chiodo, of Johnstown, and Sammy Burns, of the Hill, round out the card with a six-round engagement.

Between Rounds

Lou Scozza boxes Charley (Trader) Horn, of New York, at Scranton next Monday night. Norman Conrad meets Sammy Slaughter and Steve Halaiko takes on Paris Apice in Boston the same night. Young Zazzarino and the Cocoa Kid mix at New Haven the following night.

Eddie Zivic, brother of the famous Jack, Pete and Fritzie, engages in his first 10-round bout when he meets Battling Gizzy in the semi-final of the Motor Square Garden card next Monday night and he recognizes this bout as his big opportunity to establish himself as a topliner in his home town. He has not been beaten since his first professional bout, at the Moose Temple, last winter. Jimmy Thomas, local Negro bantamweight, and Tommy Paul, of Buffalo, former N. B. A. featherweight champion, are in the main event.

An amateur boxing show will be held in the Municipal Auditorium, Apollo, Pa., tomorrow night for the benefit of the Apollo Baseball Club.

Harry Ebbetts will box Doc Conrad in the eight-round semi-final to the Maxie Rosenbloom-Adolph Heuser light-heavyweight championship battle in New York's Madison Square Garden tomorrow night. Charley Massera meets Bob Olin and Andy (Pickles) Heinz opposes Juan Olaguibel in five-rounders, with Lou Foster engaging Phil Cohen in a four-rounder.

The card for the show at Motor Square Garden, Monday night, has been completed with the signing of Carl Montebano, of Braddock, to box Paul Pirrone, of Cleveland, in the first 10-round bout, and Joey Bazzone, of McKeesport, and Ward Tyson, a Schenley High School student, formerly of South Carolina, for the six-round opener.

It begins to look as if Bunny Buntach started a bigger blaze than he bargained for when he began to "rib" Jules Beck and Lew Raymond about not using his Joe Marcus. Now both matchmakers are on the lookout for somebody to beat Marcus and do such a good job of it that they'll never be worried about him again. Manager Joe Mazer, of Motor Square Garden, has ordered his matchmaker, Beck, to get the toughest lightweight he can corral to knock both Marcus and his manager back into Braddock and silence. And is Bunny sore? He's one gentleman who relels in a scrap. He's been looking for a fight, and, now that he has it, he's in his glory.

PIRATES' WHO'S WHO

Our Flag Contenders Answer Quiz, Giving Fans Lowdown on What's What and Why.

By CHARLES J. DOYLE

Staff Correspondent

NO. 12—INFIELDER WILBUR LEE (BILL) BRUBAKER

PASO ROBLES, Cal., March 9.

Stand up, Bill! The Pirate roster says you are 6 feet 1 inch tall and that you weigh 175 pounds. Is that correct?

Not any more. It probably was when they measured and weighed me, but I guess I am still growing, for I now am 6 feet 2½ and weigh 185.

How did you break into professional baseball?

Well, I guess I will have to give most of the credit to Jimmy Crandall's mother. You see, Jimmy and I were playing together on Joe E. Brown's team. The motion picture comedian is a fine baseball player, and he had his own club around Los Angeles. Jimmy pitched for us, and his mother came to the games. The first time I played for the team she saw me and apparently she "scouted" me by proxy for Jimmy's dad, who is the coach of the Pirates. The first thing I knew he was on my trail. When the Pirates were in Los Angeles last year, Otis Crandall brought me out to see Manager Gibson, and Gibby got a promise out of me to sign the following June, when I was to be graduated from U. C. L. A.

That's all very interesting, Bill. Is it true you have designs on Pie Traynor's job?

Yes and no. I just want to be a ballplayer. You know, jobs are pretty scarce, so the chips will have to fall where they may. But I am not foolish enough to think I can carry Pie Traynor's glove at present. Besides, I can play other infield positions.

What positions did you play in college?

I played short, third and first, in that order, in my sophomore, junior and senior years. In each year I had the honor of being selected for the all-star team on the All-Coast Conference team.

Do you like the game?

I love it, but my dad was not so keen about it.

Did you have an easy time getting through high school and college?

Not so easy. I worked my way through high school and college. I have had a job ever since I was in high school. Much of the time I worked at night, but, somehow, I was able to get in a lot of baseball. Meantime I had to play without my dad knowing anything about it.

What does he think about it now?

Dad is won over to baseball. He even wants me to make good in the majors, but he wants me to be a lawyer, too.

What do you think about that?

I would like to be a lawyer, but, first of all, I would like to be a big leaguer. I plan to "bear down" in baseball for a few years; then, if I can get some money ahead, I will go in for the law.

You never played in the minor leagues?

No, I joined the Pirates right after I was graduated last June. I guess I was lucky in getting with such a nice gang. They treated me fine, and Manager Gibson put me in several games near the close of the season.

And you batted .400 or better?

Let's talk about something else, until I can show .300 for 100 games or more.

Are you one of those famous Native Sons?

No, I am an adopted son. I was born in Cleveland and lived there until I was 14.

What's your age, Bill?

I am 22, and I hope I have finished growing up.

TENPIN EVENT ON TOMORROW

Bowlers from all sections of the tri-state district are primed for the opening of the twenty-sixth annual ten-pin championship tournament sponsored by the Pittsburgh City Bowling Association, which is scheduled to get under way tomorrow evening on the Strand alleys in Oakland.

Competition will continue daily through March 16.

Five-men teams will bowl tomorrow evening, with both five-men and doubles competition on Saturday.

Jamison Third In Pinehurst Event

PINEHURST, N. C., March 9.—(AP.)—The defending champion, Richard S. Tufts, of Pinehurst, yesterday took the lead in the Tin Whistle golf championship tourney, scoring 39-40—79 over the No. 2 course.

Another Pinehurst player, Halbert J. Blue, was second with an 80, followed by J. M. Jamison, of Greensburg, Pa., with 83 and Eric Thomson, of St. Andrews, N. B., with 84.

PAIN DEADENED CHEST COLDS LOOSENED WITHOUT DRUGS

Get quick relief from neuralgia pain, sciatica pain, neuritis pain, rheumatic pain, lame back, stiff neck, headache, strains and chest colds by rubbing plenty of Baume Bengué (pronounced Ben-Gay) on the spot. It doesn't blister or stain. Rub it in till it sinks down and soothes the pain or breaks up the chest cold. Take no drugs, for any drug that is powerful enough to "deaden" pain or loosen a chest cold may not be good for you.

But beware of imitations. Ask your druggist for Baume Bengué by name (called "Ben-Gay" in English). There are many analgesic balms, mostly cheap imitations of Ben-Gay made out of synthetic drugs. That is why they are cheap. That is also why they are ineffective. Insist on Ben-Gay and you will get real results.

New Comedy Stars Shine On Air

By AIRCASTER

Somewhere, recently, I read the statement of a radio scribbler, vowing that when Jack Pearl left the air in June to make a film, Solly Ward, another dialectician, would fall into his place to give the magic carpet presentation the same sort of characterization.

And in the same spot, if I am not mistaken, I glanced at a paragraph which assured us that Mrs. Roosevelt's daughter would succeed the First Lady on Leo Reisman's Friday broadcasts.

How these fairy stories get around! Mrs. Roosevelt's daughter, who is Mrs. Curtis B Dall, it turns out, has signed for a WEAF series, which brings her to the mike twice a week, beginning March 17. And Solly Ward, according to official announcement, has aligned himself with WABC's share of the Five-Star Theater and begins his fun-making there March 21.

* * *

Because they usually turn sour, I am not partial to predictions. It is true that I did have some luck when I heralded my belief that Jack Pearl would become top comedian of the air. And now, if I may, I'd like to hazard the prophecy that one George Givot, who quite spontaneously introduced his weird Grecian dialect on a recent Cantor program and who will be one of Rudy Valee's stars tonight, will shortly be ranked among the favorite comics of the air.

* * *

And while in the mood for prediction, I see, too, a fertile future for Miss Artie Bell, who is the cullud lady of John P. Medbury's excellent act and who is known to eavesdroppers as Magnolia. Miss Bell is really colored, and possesses a rich dialect and a sense of humor that go to make up some excellent aerial assets.

Globe-Trotting

By LOUIS L. KAUFMAN

Hello, ladies and gentlemen:

If they don't get the money situation settled pretty soon some of my listeners have threatened to use Lucky Bucks. You would be surprised, though, with what keen anticipation people are awaiting any development in the plans to circularize money. If it's scrip, they write in and tell me that they have scrip from 'way back and they are sort of anxious to have scrip just to see how it works. If it is something else, why the people are for that, too. In fact, judging from the letters received, the globe trotters are for anything and everything as long as there is something to be for.

* * *

This Mr. Eby, who is the Globe Trotter's guest on Friday, seems to have made a tremendous hit with his garden charts, a simple and effective explanation of when to plant and how to plant, and the nicest thing about it is that it is free. A lot of people never before interested in gardens are thinking a bit more seriously along those lines now. You can have one of these charts by writing to him in care of the Garden and Poultry department of the paper. Listen for him again tomorrow at noon.

* * *

This idea of putting carrier boys on the air has met with a surprising response. Although it is primarily for the Beechview and Brushton Globetrotters, listeners everywhere seem to be getting a kick out of listening to these youthful salesmen making their radio debuts. Your comments along any line are appreciated and welcome.

In an old tax receipt from 1854 submitted by Mari R. Betz, of Bennington avenue, I note that they used to spell it Allegany County.

Have you ever considered the City Fire Department as an aid to your housekeeping? The fire laddies, we understand from Bob Luby, made a rush call to a home in Lowell street, arriving there to find the lady of the house out and the pot of beans burned.

A husky Democrat arrived March 4 at 7425 Finance street. She is Margaret Louise James and she already has made her mark in the world, especially with the two lower teeth with which she was born.

COURT ACTION STARTED BY FRICK AGAINST CARNEGIE

Transfer of Stock To Treasury of the Company Opposed

FROM THE LIFE OF ANDREW CARNEGIE
By BURTON J. HENDRICK

Abridged for exclusive publication in the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph by special permission of Mrs. Andrew Carnegie

When, in January, word came that Carnegie was about to make another call, Frick had little doubt as to the nature of the forthcoming interview. Several lurid accounts of this, perhaps the tensest moment in Carnegie's life, have been published, and therefore the present writer will content himself by reproducing Carnegie's memorandum describing the episode:

"I sent a messenger to ask whether Mr. Frick was in his office and whether I could see him. He returned saying yes. I went up to see him, shook hands with him, sat down, began by expressing deep regret that he had not accepted my proposition, but he remembered I had advised him to resign from the Board because the members had decided to ask for his resignation, so now I wanted to talk to him about his threat to stop the works of the company of which he was a partner by enjoining the Frick Coke Company from delivering coke under a contract that he had made, and I got just as far as to say, 'Now Mr. Frick, let me tell you, you cannot be right to do that. If you strike such a blow at the firm of which you are a member, remember what I told you, your partners can never submit to it, and you will certainly be put out of the firm.'

"He jumped up and clenched his fist and said, 'Why, I expected that, now you will see what a fighter I am. This is a fight,' and then he began a tirade of personal abuse. I sat very soberly, because there is nothing sobers one man so much as seeing another give way to passion.

"I said slowly, 'Keep calm, I did not come to fight but to endeavor to make peace; if you don't stop I cannot stay here.' He became wilder and I was forced to leave. There was nothing but war. I returned and reported to my partners the reception that our endeavors had met with.

"It seemed as if a flash had run through the members of the board. I am quite sure I was not the first to say, 'He will no longer be a partner with us,' because it was just when I had ceased speaking that I heard a remark that we would not have a partner in the concern who was going to enjoin our supply of coke and fight us.

Agreement Signed

"It was late in the afternoon when I left the office. Our legal department brought the necessary agreement under the 'Iron Clad' agreement. I signed it and Mr. Schwab signed it; perhaps one or two others did before I left the room, but I am not clear about that. But I never asked a man to sign it; I never saw any man on the subject; I learned that the necessary three-fourths had signed it promptly and our legal department took charge of the matter."

On January 15, 1900 formal demand, signed by more than three-fourths in number and in interest required by the partnership pact, was made for the surrender of Frick's 6 per cent ownership in the Carnegie Steel Company. To this requisition Frick made no reply. Acting on the instructions of the board, President Charles M. Schwab, on February 1st, transferred Frick's stock to the treasury and tendered compensation under the terms of the "Iron Clad." Frick, if the partnership agreement held any force, was no longer a member of the Carnegie association.

That a man so determined would accept his elimination in a patriotic spirit no one believed. Indeed, Frick was known to be spending a large part of his time in consultation with lawyers. Philander C. Knox, for many years his legal adviser and personal friend, was frequently seen entering and leaving Frick's office. Mr. Knox occasionally dropped in on Carnegie's champions, making suggestions for a settlement, but his offers in this direction met with no conciliatory response. On January 29th a paper served on Schwab as president gave a sufficient indication of the plans taking form in Frick's mind and in that of Henry Phipps. This document has great value in the present narrative, for it sharply brings to a focus the issue in a dispute that had been under way for several years. It is therefore worth quoting in full.

The Frick Proposal

"To
"The Carnegie Steel Company Limited:

"We desire to call your attention to the fact that the fair values of the properties of the Carnegie Steel Company Limited, are not shown on its books. In repeated instances, the values shown thereon are very far below what the real and fair values are, and, in other instances, such values are not shown at all. If there are not now entries on those books showing the fair value of all outstanding and existing contracts, and of the earning power, and of the good will, there certainly should be.

"We insist that the books shall be so kept that they will, by an aggregation of all the accounts, fairly show the present real value, as a whole and going concern, of the Carnegie Steel Co., Limited, and that this be done so that each of our interests in the Company will be thus fairly shown prior to and on the first day of February, 1900.

"We believe that said value considerably exceeds the sum of $250,000,000. If you dissent from this, we are willing to refer this question of value to three satisfactory and disinterested business men, to be agreed upon by you and ourselves. If we are unable to agree upon the three men, then let each side choose a man and the two chosen, a third, and their decision, or the decision of the majority of them, to be final and conclusive upon the parties.
(signed) "H. C. FRICK,"
"Pittsburgh, Pa.,
"January 29, 1900.

Lawsuit Begins

In mid-February Carnegie, following the custom of several years, was visiting his sister-in-law, Mrs. Thomas M. Carnegie, on Cumberland Island, off the coast of Florida, far from newspaper reporters and the perturbations of Pittsburgh, finding relief from the cares of "Iron Clad" agreements and contentious partners in golf and yachting. While he was engaging himself so pleasantly, "the greatest private law suit in the history of the country" began its career in the courts of Pennsylvania. "The Clash of Steel Kings" was the phrase most frequently used to describe these proceedings.

In order to maintain his case Frick was compelled to attack boldly the inmost citadel of the Carnegie organization — that "Iron Clad" agreement which had provided the center of discussion for the previous 10 years. This once destroyed—its legality, that is, having been disapproved—the old established Carnegie regime would come to an end. The burden of Frick's declaration was that the transfer of his stock to the treasury was contrary to law. The court was asked to undo this transfer and reinstate the "orator" in the Carnegie companionship.

Frick repudiated any agreement to surrender his stock on demand—at least any agreement that was valid. A paper, it was true, existed, which apparently bound him to such an understanding, nor was there any denial that Frick had served as the Carnegie agent in separating more than a dozen partners from the parent body under the provisions of such a compact. This stipulation, however—so ran the argument—possessed no virtue; all the eliminations under it had been unlawful. Besides these legal sinuosities, into which there is no intention to enter at this place, there were pungent phrases in Frick's complaint that stirred the popular interest.

Carnegie Belittled

For the first time the public was informed that Andrew Carnegie had played little part in the development of his company. Many important contributions made by Frick, on the other hand, were highly extolled. Frick's main reason for asking reinstatement in the conduct of the great enterprise was that its future was unsafe in Carnegie's hands.

Technical points, and even the delight afforded by the "Knights of Steel Arrayed in Mortal Combat," vanished from popular consideration when Frick's statistics on the profits of the Carnegie company burst forth in the headlines. Much was also made of Carnegie's assurance, quoted by Frick, that the property, under favorable investment conditions, could be sold on the London market for $500,000,000. Amid a foliage of legal phraseology these figures loomed like a challenge.

Certain penetrating critics suggested that this prosperity, under a regime which Carnegie had admittedly dominated for 30 years, hardly bore out Frick's charges of incompetence. Journalists and economists began seeking an explanation for such accretions. Free-traders and low-tariff men had a field day—an especially animated one, because a Presidential election was pending, and a McKinley one at that! Such were the results of a protective tariff!

Again steel, one of the most favored items, was depicted in cartoons as an "Infant Industry" But in this discussion two points were overlooked. Plenty of other American steel companies had enjoyed the same tariff as Carnegie's, yet their profits had reached no such magnitude. A still more important point was disregarded: Carnegie agreed with his severest critics.

Waives Protection

For several years, greatly to the disgust of the steel brethren, Carnegie had been proclaiming that steel no longer needed protection, and he had been advocating the obliteration of the schedule. American steel—he uttered the conviction in books, magazine articles, and before Congressional committees—could beat the world and required none of the artificial fostering that had been essential in the early period.

Over and over again he had proclaimed himself a follower of John Stuart Mill, the great economist who regarded protective duties as desirable to encourage industries at the start—industries that, from natural conditions, warranted such stimulation—but who similarly believed that manufactures full grown should not be guarded by such favors. American steel Carnegie had for years been pointing to as a perfect illustration of the John Stuart Mill doctrine.

WHEAT STRONG AT WINNIPEG

WINNIPEG, March 9.—Wheat was active and strong here today. Favorable developments in the American banking situation were a factor, and talk of inflation of the United States currency added to the strength.

Heavy country deliveries of grain of the past two days, induced by the price advances of Saturday and Monday, were absent today. Offerings were light and contributed largely to the upward surge.

Unable to transact business in their own market, Chicago traders again poured buying orders into the local wheat pit. United States millers have been forced to suspend their operations owing to the Board of Trade's closing.

Closing prices:

Wheat—May, 51⅜, up 1; July, 52⅝, up 1⅛; October, 54⅛, up 1¼.

Oats—May, 26, up ⅜; July, 25, up ⅜; October, 24⅜, up ⅝.

Barley—May, 19¾, up ⅜; July, 29⅜, up ¼; October, 28⅝, up ½.

LIVERPOOL, March 9.—Liverpool wheat closed unchanged to ¼d higher.

MINNEAPOLIS, March 9.—(AP.)—Flour unchanged. Shipments, 16,284. Bran, 12.00@12.50.

Sugar Less Active, Refined Unchanged

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—Raw sugar was less active today and the market's undertone was easier under the increased offerings. Prices declined 5 points to the basis of 3.00 for spots. A sale of 31,500 bags of Porto Rican for prompt shipment to a local refiner was confirmed at 3 cents and additional offerings were made at the same price. Buyers, however, had withdrawn and the best bid in the market was 2.90.

No further changes occurred in the refined market and aside from moderate withdrawals against recent purchases there was little business. Prices were unchanged at 4.10 for fine granulated.

U. S. Steel Tonnage Reflects Holiday

NEW YORK, March 8.—The report of unfilled orders of the U. S. Steel Corporation as of February 28, last, will reflect the let-down which occurerd in buying in connection with the bank holidays in various parts of the country. As a result, it is likely that a decrease probably somewhere near the 69,496 tons reported for January will be shown. The statement will be published at noon Friday.

Farm Relief Plan Seeks Acreage Cut

WASHINGTON, March 9.—A new plan of farm relief probably may be announced within two or three days. It is said to involve a major emphasis upon what is known as the leasing plan. The central basis for the proposal is the idea of leasing land from farmers by the government and taking this land out of production.

British Employment Conditions Improve

LONDON, March 9.—Registered unemployment in Great Britain on February 20 amounted to 2,856,638 compared to 2,903,065 on January 23 and 2,701,173 on February 22, 1932.

American Buyers Boom Silver In London

LONDON, March 9.—(INS.)—The price of silver rose to 18⅛ pence an ounce on the London market today. This was a gain of ⅛ pence.

MARKET READY TO REOPEN

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—The New York Stock Exchange and other security markets are prepared to reopen as soon as banking conditions permit. The hope is for the resumption of trading tomorrow, if the banks reopen for nearly normal business.

This is not definite, and there is opposition in the exchange, itself, as well as from the outside, to reopening before the government completes its financing operations. This would be March 15. The government has a $600,000,000 maturity to meet on March 15 and, in addition, must raise several millions to cover the deficit.

Brokerage houses report a fair balance of buying and selling orders for stocks. These, however, are changing hourly, with cancellations and additions. Selling orders are largely in the heavy industries, like steel, and electrical, while there seems to be a preponderance of buying orders in issues that have a link with commodities.

N.Y. LIST FIRM IN LONDON

LONDON, March 9.—(AP.)—Business was quiet on the stock exchange today and Wednesday's improved tone was maintained. Gold mine shares and gilt edged securities were steady.

Leading American shares traded on the stock exchange here closed today unchanged to two points higher. Final quotations, showing the net change from the closing previous sale, follow:

BRITISH BANK'S RESERVES AT NEW TOP

LONDON, March 9.—Reserves of the Bank of England, £72,373,000, now stand at the highest point in its history. The previous high mark was £71,181,000, June 25, 1931. The improvement is the outcome of steady acquisition of gold by Bank of England.

LONDON, March 9.—(AP.)—The domestic banking emergency in the United States has not changed Great Britain's policy so far as return to the gold standard is concerned, it was learned today from the highest financial quarters of the British government.

The British policy was reaffirmed thus: While the nation looks forward to an eventual return to gold as the most suitable international standard of value, no return can be contemplated until there is promise of a more workable system than existed just before Britain abandoned gold in the fall of 1931.

POLICY UNCHANGED

It was said that the government's policy remains as explained by Prime Minister Ramsey MacDonald in a statement to Parliament February 9 when he said:

"There are a number of economic, as well as financial, conditions which must be fulfilled before restoration of the international gold standard can be a practical possibility."

Broadly speaking, the conditions to which Mr. MacDonald referred are stabilization of national currencies, lowering of trade barriers, raising of commodity prices, and settlement of the war debts.

The last week's events in the United States have not altered the British financial policy because the interpretation here is that the American difficulties are purely domestic and certainly temporary.

SEES "STANDARD'S" RETURN

Britain, looking toward eventual return to gold, is rebuilding her gold stocks and now has a greater reserve than at any time since she was forced off gold.

The Bank of England since last Thursday has bought gold at the rate of £2,000,000 a day. Yesterday's purchases were £3,282,639, and purchases in the last four days totaled £9,683,782. The total reserves of bullion and coin now are £160,650,518.

The British view is that the whole trend of events in the United States and elsewhere has justified the London government's monetary policy.

Price of Platinum Soars With Ban On Gold Sales

NEW YORK, March 9.—(AP.)—A sharp rise in the price of platinum has been attributed to the bank holiday.

Because of the embargo on gold, a speculative demand for platinum forced the price upward from $21 a troy ounce to a point where bids as high as $30 were reported.

Dental laboratories face a possible gold shortage, it was reported, as the United States Assay Office declined to sell gold for any purpose. Commercial dealers in gold were investigating orders to forestall hoarding.

Sinclair Negotiates Gas 'Cracking' Pact

CHICAGO, March 9.—(AP.)—Oil companies interested in the licensing of oil cracking patents announced an agreement had been reached today by officials of the Universal Oil Products Company, the Gasoline Products Company and the Sinclair Refining Company.

H. H. Halle, president of the Universal said the agreement reached after extended negotiations gave Universal and Gasoline Products companies the authority to grant their licensees the right to use Sinclair patents. In return, he said, Sinclair Refining was privileged to use patents of the other two.

Bond Bids Absent, Cities Issue Scrip

NEW YORK March 9.—Issuance of scrip or warrants by municipalities, which were scheduled to offer bonds within the period of the bank holiday, is expected in municipal bond circles. This week offerings have attracted no bids, it is said, because of the banking situation. Some communities previously using scrip are said to have found it a satisfactory medium of circulation locally.

LEAD SUPPLIES SHOW GAIN

NEW YORK, March 9.—Total stocks of lead in the United States on February 1 amounted to 270,433 short tons, comparing with 263,296 tons on January 1 and 227,233 on February 1, 1932, according to the American Bureau of Metal Statistics.

World lead production in January totaled 104,809 short tons, against 104,214 in December and 122,092 in January, 1932.

BOSTON, March 9.—American Smelting and Refining Company has advanced the price of lead 25 points to 3.25c a pound.

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—The upturn in commodity prices has spread to the sorely depressed copper industry. Plenty of copper had been available at the record low price of 5 cents a pound. There was no more 5-cent copper, with leading producers asking 5¼ to 5½ cents a pound, according to reports in trade circles.

NEW YORK, March 9.—Sales of prime western zinc have occurred at 3 cents a pound, East St. Louis, an advance of 20 points from yesterday and 35 points since the beginning of the bank holiday.

Moratorium Applies To Freight Storage

WASHINGTON, March 9.—(AP.)—The Interstate Commerce Commission today issued a statement saying that the present bank holidays should be considered in the same light as Sundays and legal holidays in figuring demurrage and storage rates on freight shipments.

The commission several days ago issued a statement authorizing railroads to extend credit for freight bills to persons who have established their credit with the railroads.

PRICE OF PORK DROPS BACK

CHICAGO, March 9.—(AP.)—Wholesale fresh pork prices declined sharply again today, erasing almost entirely the 100 per cent gains registered earlier in the week. Choice 10 to 12 pound loins were offered at 10 to 12 cents a pound, compared with 13 to 16 yesterday, but buyers were few.

The falling price of fresh pork accompanied a severe decline in quotations on live hogs. Liberal receipts of 20,000 hogs at Chicago, allayed all fear of a meat shortage and prices receded. Few sales were made, buyers bidding $3.75 a hundred for choice light hogs, while sellers asked $4.

Government officials at the stock yards said that dressed meat buyers ignored pork offerings in a manner reminiscent of a "buyers' strike" in 1921. Other meats moved fairly well at the same price as last week.

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—Influenced by a sharp drop in buying, prices of food stuffs here steadied today and in some instances even declined slightly.

The increased buying on Monday and Tuesday following the announcement of the bank holiday which had started prices rising was checked when it became apparent that there would be no food shortage.

Motors' February Sales Take Drop

NEW YORK, March 9.—Sales of General Motors cars and trucks to consumers in the United States during February totaled 42,280 units, compared with 50,653 in January and 46,855 in February, 1932.

Sales to dealers in the United States in February were 52,212 units.

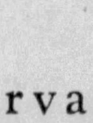
It's Not a Job for a Woman



MOST women understand why husbands do not burden them with the cares and responsibilities of the position of executrix and trustee.

Adjustment of the affairs of a business man is a difficult business problem. Appraising and realizing upon business good-will, partnership interests options, claims due, and various kinds of personal property, are tasks requiring broad business experience and keen judgment.

The advantageous sale of securities, when conditions make such disposition advisable, demands expert knowledge. The supervision of real estate and attention to rentals, management, and other matters require experienced handling and guidance.

Scrip Would Promptly Get Things Going

—By B. C. FORBES—

"'THE NEW DEAL' requires new chips."

THE CHIPS required at this particular moment could appropriately take the form of scrip, especially in the nation's financial center, New York, where nobody would have the slightest reason for questioning its trustworthiness and acceptability.

Mr. Forbes

Although America actually has outstanding at this moment the greatest volume of currency in its whole history, there has been so much hoarding, especially in recent weeks, that the available supply was being rapidly reduced. Remember, nobody has had the slightest qualms about the soundness of our currency, but only about the soundness of our banks.

There would not be temptation to hoard scrip. The "new chips"—the apt phrase at the opening of this column comes from a reader, Robert L. Pierrepont—would, if issued, be used only temporarily. When the need for them passed, they would be abolished. Nobody would think of secreting them in strong boxes or mattresses for permanent retention.

SURELY, ANY kind of money is better than none. Surely, it is out of the question to expect free buying, free spending to be resumed so long as currency is doled out extremely niggardly, like starvation rations in a beleaguered city during the war.

HEADS OF the strongest banks in New York should not, simply because they are in such a liquid position that they could ladle out money to depositors, ignore the condition of banks elsewhere in the country. They should not oppose either local or nation-wide resort to scrip.

Diligent questioning has failed to bring one negative or even qualified answer to the query I have put to many, many people:

"Would you hesitate to accept scrip?"

IF OUR financial metropolis could solve all its banking difficulties by scrip, would not the effect throughout the whole country be very helpful? Would it not go far toward breaking the whole deadlock? Would it not influence other communities to adopt scrip without misgivings should such a course be decided upon?

Give us a full supply of currency that will circulate and not be hoarded—say, in the shape of thoroughly collateralled scrip, and normal business activities could be immediately resumed.

It is not as if we didn't possess an abundance of everything else, an abundance of wheat and other cereals, an abundance of beef and pork and mutton, an abundance of cotton and its products, an abundance of other clothing, an abundance of dairy products, an abundance of fruit, an abundance of sugar, an abundance of coffee, an abundance of steel, an abundance of copper, an abundance of cement, an abundance of brick, an abundance of lumber, an abundance of motor cars, an abundance of buildings, an abundance of transportation facilities, an abundance, in short, of everything which makes possible prosperity and comfortable living.

REMOVE ALL temptation to hoard. Give us an ample supply of any well-secured circulating medium which will actually circulate, and watch the invigorating, inspiriting result!

Bank Holiday Cuts Passenger Traffic

NEW YORK, March 9.—(INS.)—The bank holiday has caused a curtailment of both passenger and freight traffic on railroads running out of New York, it was announced today.

Although all the roads with the exception of one—the New York, New Haven & Hartford—have kept all trains running on schedule, it has become necessary to cut down the size of the trains. At the offices of the New York Central, the Pennsylvania and the Baltimore & Ohio it was said that if the decrease in traffic continues as it has in the last few days, it would become necessary to drop some of the trains.

World Oil Output Drops 5 Per Cent

WASHINGTON, March 9.—World production of crude petroleum during 1932 totaled 1,305,563,000 barrels, compared with 1,372,532,000 barrels in 1931, a decline of nearly 67,000,000 barrels, or 5 per cent, according to the Bureau of Mines.

Youngstown Mill Operations Hold

YOUNGSTOWN, March 9.—Raw steel output in the Youngstown district is holding firmly, with operation averaging 18 per cent of capacity or 2 points above the rate a week ago, due to resumption of an idle plant.

JOBS FOR IDLE ROOSEVELT PROGRAM

By MERRYLE S. RUKEYSER
Universal Service.

NEW YORK, March 9.—As soon as the banking machinery functions smoothly again, the new leadership will turn its attention to the basic problem of putting idle men to work.

President Roosevelt, in his inaugural address, emphasized the human aspects of the economic problem. He knows that it is futile to attempt a patchwork prosperity at the top without building soundly from the bottom.

Mr. Rukeyser

Besides recruiting the unemployed for public works, including reforestation, the new Chief Executive is also thinking in terms of a planned redistribution of our population. This will be accomplished in part by government financing to enable idle men, with a farming background, to re-settle as sustenance farmers on the land. Ample land is becoming available for this purpose in land repossessed by governmental subdivisions for non-payment of taxes.

SPREAD OUT INDUSTRY

President Roosevelt, it is understood, would like to see a decentralization of industries, which could move into the rural areas, also. This would give sustenance farmers an opportunity to get cash income by sending one member of the family into such rural factories. For years, Henry Ford has entertained this idea, and has also experimented with it.

A thoroughgoing analysis of the labor market indicates that unemployment may last beyond the depression unless permanent methods for redistributing population are set in motion.

The great immediate banking need is to facilitate the exchange of goods and services.

SCRIP AIDS BANKS

Under conditions of depression, there has been a price spasm, which has resulted in inequities which make such free trading difficult.

The exchange value of the farmer's work, for example, has declined so much that he is virtually out of the market.

The economics behind the emergency need for scrip inheres in the fact that the deposit liabilities of banks exceed by more than four to one the available coin and currency in the country. The issuance of scrip is a device for making ineligible assets of the bank available for collateral for the emergency currency. It thus enormously heightens the capacity of banks to meet special demands.

Playgirls in Love

By MAY CHRISTIE

Loranda insisted she must have fresh air after luncheon. The sun was still bright in the sky. Her foot didn't really hurt her any more, provided she kept it raised, she said. She wanted to take a sleigh ride over the snowy country.

"Barry, order a sleigh. I'll wrap up well. There's an inn 10 miles from here where we can have our tea—or something stronger—"

She was insistent.

He did as he was asked, and presently—with a merry jangle of bells—a two-horse sleigh drew up at the front door. Loranda was ready in her fitch sports coat. She smiled brightly, invitingly, at Barry.

"D'you mind if we come too?" asked Genevieve, arriving at that moment on the scene in her mink wrap, a bright blue scarf about her neck. "Cliss and I played backgammon all the morning—we're lazy bones, the pair of us—we, too, like our air without exercise."

Loranda's mouth twisted. She could have slapped Genevieve for butting in on her chance to be alone with Barry.

MAKING AMENDS

She surmised that Genevieve was doing this for some ulterior motive of her own. There wasn't any love lost between Genevieve and Loranda.

"You want to chaperone us, is that it?" she turned to Barry, pouting. "When Genevieve was a flapper, the girls did have watch-dogs most of the time! But I haven't the least objection to the old folks accompanying us!"—she giggled, to soften the sound of the words.

Genevieve said nothing, but smiled a slow, cryptic smile. The score against Loranda was piling up. There would be a day of reckoning.

But if the truth were known, she was butting in today because of a queer, half-shamed idea she had of making amends to little Judith. It was through her own stupid questioning that the poor child had been embarrassed at the luncheon table. Unwittingly she had delivered Judith into Loranda's hands. So she wasn't going to let Loranda get away with Barry. . . .

The four got into the sleigh. A fur robe was wrapped about their knees. Barry waved farewell to Judith, who was out in the sunshine with Jack Ordway.

* * *

On a wet night of early April, Judith sat before a very tiny fire in the livingroom of her little apartment on West 56th Street, and awaited Barry's arrival.

FAILS TO APPEAR

It was nearly half past eight. He would be here at any minute.

Judith tried to read. She had a slim little volume of French poetry in her hand that Jack Ordway had given her. But she found it difficult to concentrate just now.

Her ears were keyed to the sound of a footstep on the stairs . . . the whirr of the front-door buzzer.

She had spent four dollars of her salary on flowers today. The air was sweet with the smell of violets and freezia and syringa.

The minutes slipped away. She was alone. This profusion of sweetness was being wasted . . .

She rose. It flashed through her mind that she had given up many opportunities of meeting people, because of Barry Deane—that as Zella, irritated with her, had deliberately phrased it the other day, she had put all her eggs in the one basket.

"You haven't time to see anybody else—forgive me for saying so, but you're making a mistake, Judith."

ZELLA'S ADVICE UNHEEDED

But not even Zella, that true friend, knew that more than once, when Judith had waited a whole evening for him, Barry had failed to show up.

She told herself she wouldn't permit these thoughts of him to run riot. They were like ugly weeds trying to destroy an exquisite flower . . . wasn't there an Italian proverb to the effect that love was "a delicate plant that requires careful watering"?

She'd water it, even with her tears. She wouldn't be disloyal, not even in her thoughts, to Barry.

She got another station. Schubert's Rhapsody. That was better. She listened, wrapped in dreams. Then she cut off the music, for fear she might not hear Barry's footsteps.

"You have to make your own life and your own pleasures. You've got to go out among people, Judith, and gather in your friends, and hold them," Zella had counseled her more than once.

But Judith was deaf, dumb and blind to platitudes like these. Judith was in love.

The days she didn't see Barry—(she wasn't in his department now, even though they worked in the same branch of the bank)—were blank for Judith. She merely marked time till those blessed hours—too short they often were, of late—when she could be alone with him.

Curiously enough—although she had at one time been so anxious to entertain company in the little flat, and had planned the gay parties Zella and she would have—Judith had now given up all thought of entertaining.

Her life centered around Barry Deane alone. She told herself she hadn't time to see anybody else. But she couldn't deceive Zella.

"You're an idiot, Judith. You're just at an age when you ought to be having the time of your young life."

Synopsis

Barry Deane, bank executive, loves Judith Brian, pretty secretary. Wealthy Loranda Tewson is jealous of Judith. Although Barry makes no secret of his interest in Judith, he cannot antagonize Loranda for business reasons, as she is the friend of his employer's daughter, Betty. On a weekend party at Betty's Canadian lodge, Loranda exercises all her wiles to keep Barry away from Judith. One of the guests couples Barry and Loranda in a toast. To hide her hurt, Judith encourages the attentions of Jack Ordway, playboy friend of Loranda. Barry disapproves and goes trekking with Loranda. Next day, Barry and Judith steal away by themselves. He makes ardent love to her.

SUN-TELEGRAPH-WARNER JUNIOR KOMIC CLUB

Mildred Rotthoff, assistant cashier of the Rowland Theater, where the Sun-Telegraph-Warner Theaters Junior Komic Club meets every Saturday at 12:45, acts as mistress of ceremonies each Saturday. The first activity at any of the meetings is the reading of the club pledge and the singing of "America." Mildred has her little charges singing at the top of their voices before the meeting is many minutes old, and last Saturday was no exception. In fact, the youngsters sang so well that Manager Dick Brown congratulated them.

The Komic Club Orchestra, under the able direction of little David Stanley, then played two numbers: "Is I In Love, I Is" and "Sweet Jenny Lee." David sang both these numbers to the delight of everyone present. The orchestra then played the accompaniment for Phyllis Batemana, who sang "Underneath the Harlem Moon."

The Johnson Sisters accompanied on the piano by their mother, performed a difficult tap dance which brought rounds of applause from the members. These two talented young girls were dressed in very pretty costumes. Katherine Bauman sang with the orchestra, "I'm Sure of Everything But You," and the military tap dance offered by Louella McIntosh stopped the show. Louella received several curtain calls. Katherine Bauman then sang another number and the Johnson Sisters returned and did a very neat acrobatic dance. Mildred closed the entertainment by leading the youngsters in community singing.

Head Worrier to the King

The diplomats all fear things in March in order to worry themselves into a conference with all expenses paid.

Herriot started it last month by fearing Hitler and the Kaiser.

Lloyd George tops Herriot by fearing Hitler, the Kaiser and Bock Beer. That's the triple entente.

Any time they hear a laugh in the Alps the Italian war ministers grab pots of gray paint and start for their battleships.

To the north they have the bear that walks like a man on a jag. Is Russia drunk with power or can it take it or leave it alone?

Nobody knows the answer so they all fear Russia. Across the dark, gray flood is England. That's verse seven from the hymn of eight.

If Turkey hops on Greece what will perfidious Ablion do? That phrase was Napoleon's last wise crack. He also called 'em a nation of shopkeepers, but the depression has cured that.

So everybody fears England who returns the compliment with accrued perplexity and compound doubt. That's the reason why the conferences are held. They want to see who has the most wrinkles.

The bags under their eyes will be their portfolios. By their worries you shall know them. And the nation will sleep soundly knowing that the cabinet is up all night in an effort to catch up on panicky treaties.

There will be no more secret documents. Everybody's hand will be shaking too much to sign one.

In that way we shall achieve the peace that passes all understanding and reparations

The Reckoning Postponed

Pennsylvanians Will Not Be Satisfied Until Crooked Utilities Have Been Brought to Account.

The State Senate's investigation of the public utilities is fizzling out like a defective firecracker.

Oliver K. Eaton's resignation as chief counsel for the investigating committee in protest against its obvious intention to whitewash crooked utilities may be the final sputter.

The people have been betrayed. Not only has the Senate committee shirked its duty; apparently it has been abetted in shirking by Chairman Clyde L. King, of the Public Service Commission, a Pinchot nominee, from whom much was expected.

As things stand now, the investigation has failed to bring benefits. Senator Samuel W. Salus introduced bills to correct the evils uncovered by the inquiry, but they are being superseded by new bills introduced by Senator John J. McClure, who, it is charged, has extracted the teeth in the Salus measures and made the proposed legislation perfectly innocuous.

Pennsylvanians will not rest content until dishonest public utilities companies have been brought to book and the public protected from their practices.

Civil Service Is Safe

The Merit System Is Not to Be Abolished by the Roosevelt Administration.

Suiting executive action to the word of his inspiring inaugural, President Roosevelt "put first things first" when he declared a moratorium on the distribution of Federal patronage until his program to end the financial emergency has been adopted by Congress and the several states.

This is a moratorium that will be welcomed by every American whose support of the President's vigorous leadership is prompted, not by a desire for Federal office, but by patriotic devotion to the national welfare.

For the first weeks of his administration, the President, the Cabinet and the Congress are entitled to protection from interference by office seekers and their political supporters in order that the government at Washington may devote its time and its best efforts to mobilizing the army of the people for a victorious warfare against the common enemy.

Those Democrats who are best qualified for office under the new administration will gladly bide their time because they will not flinch from the test which a thorough examination of their fitness will impose.

The President's announcement that Federal employes in the classified service need not fear removal puts all job seekers on notice that the merit system is not going to be abolished by the Roosevelt administration.

And the American people will hope that one of the outstanding achievements of the Roosevelt administration will be an extension of the classified service to include many subordinate Federal offices that ought to be filled by civil service examination, instead of being auctioned off to the highest political bidders.

If Federal expenditures are to be reduced and the standard of Federal administration raised, the extension of the merit system in many directions is absolutely essential.

By "putting first things first" at the beginning of his administration, President Roosevelt is blazing the way for a reorganization of the Federal government that will give the people better administration at less cost and vindicate anew the efficacy of "government of the people, by the people and for the people."

Extend the Air Mail

The New Congress Should Restore the Appropriation Which the Senate Reduced

Instead of expanding our national air mail service, Congress has reduced from $19,000,000 to $15,000,000 its appropriation to aid this most valuable agency during the next fiscal year.

This reduction was reluctantly agreed to by the House in order to induce the Senate to recede from its amendment to the Treasury-Post-Office bill striking out the entire appropriation for the air mail.

There is no economy in the warfare against the maintenance and development of our national air mail service which a disgruntled minority in the Senate has waged ever since the Seventy-second Congress began.

With Federal aid, our national air mail has become one of the modern wonders of the world. In this service we lead the world with nearly 28,000 miles of airway in operation.

To cripple this service at the present time would well nigh destroy the aeronautical industry in this country and wipe out investments, governmental and private, aggregating more than $300,000,000.

Doubtless the House was justified in compromising its differences with the Senate by agreeing to accept a $4,000,000 reduction in the federal appropriation for the air mail, because this compromise saved the Treasury-Post Office appropriation bill from dying in conference.

But under the Roosevelt administration, the new Congress will be gravely derelict in its duty if it does not restore the appropriation for the air mail to the sum originally voted by the House and initiate legislation for the development and extension of this valuable service to all parts of the nation.

The American people are rapidly becoming an air-minded nation. They know how important a link the air mail is in fostering national unity by better communication, better transportation and better defense.

Expanding our air mail service is a step toward that supremacy in the air which is America's rightful destiny. And that step the American people expect the new Congress to take.

Time for Home Repairs

A Concerted Campaign for Improvements Would Be an Additional Stimulus for Business

The District of Columbia Bankers Association has formed a $500,000 credit pool from which small loans will be granted to home owners for desirable home improvements and repairs.

Some sort of concerted campaign should be started by the trade and civic bodies of Pittsburgh to induce home owners here to "renovize" their property. Now is the time, for the house cleaning and renting season is nigh.

A successful campaign of this sort would give an additional stimulus to business.

Love's Thoughts

Oh, I might be in London,
The largest town on earth,
A-glow with all its countless lights,
A-throb with song and mirth;
But I should still be lonely
Through London's fog and fire,
If you were not along with me,
My dearest heart's desire!

Or I might be marooned on
The smallest, nameless isle
That lifts above the tropic waves
Beneath strange planets' smile,
And I should still go singing,
Nor barter for a throne
Bliss which would brim that sea-washed spot,
If you were there, my own!

Old thoughts, old dreams, old speeches
Which lovers all have shared
Since first youth knew the rapt delight
Of hearts that greatly dared!

NEW YORK DAY BY DAY

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, March 9.—They are never seen along Broadway or even Park or Fifth avenues. They may be seen only in shadows of a closing day, walking from the Union League and other starchy clubs, to their homes—mostly in the Murray Hill environs.

Baird Leonard monotypes them, in The New Yorker, as "The Gentleman of the Old School." The only time they ever are seen on Broadway is to debouch, perhaps, from a carriage and pair, at the opera. Tailors come to their houses with samples—samples always of dark blue, dark gray or black.

The barber, too, comes to the house weekly, for these venerable aristocrats never visit the barber-shop. They are supporters of the Metropolitan Museum of Arts, the Bronx Zoo and S. P. C. A. They address letters to the Park Commissioner, in the Times, about the deplorable condition of the Mall.

Outside of the opera, they only lend their presence to the Heckscher Theater movement and varnishing day at the Academy. Their favorite authors are Hardy, Meredith and Stevenson. They are the very last of the boutonniere buyers and users of dry cologne.

The imported marionette show, a hit in a difficult season, revealed that 36 persons were required to manipulate the strings. They are expertly trained to use their fingers, feet, hands and elbows. It is an amazing feat in rythmic timing. As Tony Sarg says, they must know their ropes. And J. P. Morgan or his double sat in front of me, eagerly applauding.

George M. Cohan was the Noel Coward of 20 years ago. His straw hat, worn at the exact tilt of Chevalier's today, his bamboo stick, and shoes with fawn uppers, were sartorial highs of Broadway. He touched popularity at every tangent. Every noon he swung in at the Claridge, and his table, along with Nat Goodwin's nearby, was graced by such notables as Raymond Hitchock, Gene Buck and others.

There used to be a venison and old-ale-in-pewter-mugs place in 33d—the name escapes me—lively with noon-day clamor, when Broadway was a street. I remember going there, with Lee Kugel, to meet the late Henry B. Harris. At the table were: Robert Hilliard, with lapel nosegay; Ralph Herts, who wore a stock of pink, and Eddie Dunn, sporting the first deep purple vest I ever beheld. They spoke familiarly of Lillian Russell, as Lillian, and Fay Templeton as Fay. It was a Valhalla of those bleak, comma-fixing, copy-reading days, and marked a discovery. Some one mentioned that over at Hammerstein's was a young comedian, assisting Bedini and Arthur, who bore watching. I went over and saw Eddie Cantor.

LISTEN, WORLD

By Elsie Robinson

A failure?

You can't believe it, even yet.

You, a failure?

Only two words, but how much more than that they mean to you! Somehow, monstrously, they've become alive. All day, like ghosts, they stalk beside you—sneering. All night, like fiends, they lie beside you—jeering. No matter what you are doing—reading a book, watching a show, visiting a friend—never are you free from their nightmare nagging: "FAILURE! FAILURE! FAILURE!

But how did it begin? Such a little while ago you were warm with hope, strong with confidence. Such shining dreams, and presently they would all come true! It would be so easy!

Failure? That word had nothing to do with YOUR life. Those drab beings whom daily you passed by the score—they had failed, and the reason was plain to see. They'd been stupid, lazy, unreliable. Thank Heaven, no one could bring charges like that against YOU! You'd never fail, for YOU were different.

But now—what has happened? Where have your dreams gone? Why has your confidence failed? This broken creature with its faltering step, its empty stare—surely it can't be YOU! But it is!

A FAILURE—YOU!

Oh, you won't admit it. Other people believe it. You see it in their indifferent eyes; feel it in their hatefully pitying words. But you can't realize it.

Yes, you know your job's gone; so's your money. You're shabby, too. But still—

DON'T TRY TO BELIEVE IT—FOR YOU'RE NOT!

Never mind how your record looks to the world. There's another, truer record which the world can't see. That other record isn't written in books. It's written on your hearts; on your brain. It doesn't tell your worth in dollars and cents. It tells your worth in character. It gives your real assets—those rare and priceless things which no market crash can ever take from you.

And what is your greatest treasure? What, out of all your experimenting, has proved most profitable?

BUT THE TIMES YOU'VE TRIED!

Trying. That was what counted most. The battles you put on inside yourself. But you didn't win those battles? That doesn't matter. Nine times out of ten results are beyond our human control. We live in a mad-house where the best-laid plans go smash. Through no fault of ours, fortune and reputation may be swept away in the twinkling of an eye!

BUT NO ONE CAN TAKE AWAY CHARACTER.

COURAGE, COMMON SENSE, INTELLIGENCE, PRIDE—THESE THINGS SURVIVE ALL DEPRESSIONS. AND THESE THINGS ARE IN YOU TODAY. YOU PUT THEM THERE BY TRYING!

AND EVERY TRIAL YOU MADE WILL NOW PAY DIVIDENDS—IF YOU'LL USE YOUR SPUNK AND GO ON.

A failure? Not you!

YOU'RE A SUCCESS—AND IN YOUR HEART YOU KNOW IT!

THEN PROVE IT!

PROVE THAT YOU STILL BELIEVE IN YOUR DREAMS. PROVE THAT YOU STILL BELIEVE IN YOURSELF!

YOU LICKED FATE ONCE. YOU CAN DO IT AGAIN! YOU STILL HAVE ALL THE MAKINGS.

THEN USE THOSE MAKINGS—AND WIN!

President's Ringing Call to Confidence

By Claude G. Bowers

Author of "The Struggle for Democracy in America," "Founders of the Republic," "Jefferson and Democracy," "The Tragic Era" and other important works, now writing for the Pittsburgh Sun-Telegraph.

At this hour the United States is at war. It is a war that can and will be won—unless Americans have turned yellow. If too many had not turned yellow in the last few months, there would be no such crisis as we have today.

And that means that henceforth until this war is over, Americans will be divided into two categories—those who are loyal and those who are traitorous.

It means the necessity for quick and decisive action backed by power—and that means that President Roosevelt must have powers equal to those he may exercise in case of war.

* * *

Men of Wealth Led the Wreckers

The enemy today is fear, hysterical fear; and the truth will serve—the reason for the fear in the masses is that too many men of great means have turned yellow, subordinated their country and organized society to personal selfishness, and turned hoarders. There have been too many distinguished Americans of great wealth sending gold out of the country.

This knowledge had been spread. It has been common talk in the streets. And men of small means, with life savings in the banks, have been frightened by these leaders of wealth and have imitated them.

It was these "big men" who formed and headed the yellow procession; they are the leaders and the wreckers—and the truth will serve.

The time has come to separate the sheep from the goats.

* * *

Sway of Reason Will Win Battle

The bank holiday was made necessary because of the craven fear and disloyalty of "big men," who have been withdrawing money from banks in enormous amounts. It was wise and necessary to give time for action, and for the hysteria to die down.

It is not customary for us to think of Americans, facing an enemy, turning yellow, giving way to hysteria, turning tail and running like whipped spaniels.

But this is not the first time resort has been made to such bank action as has been made necessary by hysteria. Most of us can remember that it was done in 1907. It was done several times before.

The moment Americans permit reason to resume its sway, and assume some of the qualities of courage and confidence once thought part of the American birthright the battle will be won.

* * *

Political Holiday Is Demanded Too

And along with a bank must go a political holiday. Mr. Hoover, Mr. Mills, and others of the old administration manifested the right spirit during the last 48 hours of its regime. There is no more right for partisan maneuvering now than in the midst of a serious war with a foreign foe.

Any man who feeds the craven fear for partisan reasons at this juncture is as much a traitor as Benedict Arnold.

* * *

Roosevelt's Appeal For Public Confidence

The inaugural speech of President Roosevelt was a magnificent, courageous, fighting speech—the kind of speech that a great general addresses to his army on the verge of battle. No one of the millions who heard it or read it but was impressed with its power, with the confidence and determination of the speaker, with his realization of his heavy responsibilities.

It was an appeal to the people for confidence and co-operation, and it carried a perfect diagnosis of the reason for the present crisis:

"The only thing we have to fear is fear itself—nameless, unreasoning, unjustified terror, which paralyzes needed efforts to convert retreat into advance."

This appeal for confidence was not predicated on any pollyanna view of the President. He bluntly called the roll of our ills. He admitted "the dark realities of the moment." But he pointed out the absurdity of despair:

"Nature still offers her bounty and human efforts have multiplied. Plenty is at our doorstep, but a generous use of it languishes in the very sight of the supply."

* * *

Unscrupulous Show Their Cowardice

Then what is the trouble? He tells the reason:

"The rulers of the exchange of mankind's goods have failed through their own stubbornness and their own incompetence, have admitted their failure and abdicated. Practices of the unscrupulous money changers stand indicted in the court of public opinion, rejected by the hearts and minds of men."

For a long while men who have dwelt upon these practices have been scorned as "demagogues" by the money changers themselves; and we are afraid too many of their victims stupidly have echoed the epithet.

And then came the exposures—and confidence collapsed—as was inevitable. And then these beneficiaries of unscrupulous practices that now threaten our civilization, a little terrified by what they have wrought, have sought to restore confidence by plans that have no application to the present time. President Roosevelt speaks plainly and refreshingly:

"True they have tried, but their efforts have been cast in the pattern of an outworn tradition . . . They know only the rules of a generation of self-seekers. They have no vision and where there is no vision, the people perish."

It is a tragic thing that the financial and business world has been unable to produce a leader in the present crisis with any conception of the necessities of the new day.

* * *

"Money Changers" Flee High Seats

Now they have abdicated—too many of them turned mere hoarders. As President Roosevelt puts it:

"The money changers have fled from their high seats in the temple of our civilization We may now restore that temple to the ancient truths."

Thus there is a new leadership with a new conception, which faces the realities with a grim determination—a leadership that understands the needs and demands of the millions and sympathizes with their wrongs.

With confidence in his purpose with co-operation from the people, with power to do whatever justice and reason and necessity may require, he has the will and the capacity to meet the obligations that now are his.

He has given the nation in his inaugural address every reason to have confidence in his leadership and that confidence can save the situation.

* * *

Banking System Will Be Changed

Congress meets today in extraordinary session, not for interminable debate, but for action. Just what action will be taken to meet the immediate crisis we soon shall know.

One thing we know—there is going to be a change in our banking system to prevent recurrences of the disgraceful condition of today. They have had a tragic situation in England, but no run on banks there. No failure of banks there. Only America has been flooded with bank failures—and there is a reason. The American people propose that practices of greed which disregard the sacred rights of depositors shall be made criminal in law—as they are in fact. The time is overdue.

Meanwhile, calm courage and confidence in America will bring us out of the morass. Calm courage, confidence—and patience. But action cannot be delayed.
